YANKS STORM ACROSS ROER WIN JUELICH, ENTER DUEREN

U.S. 1ST AND 9TH ARMIES ADVANCE ON 22 MI. FRONT

Drive 2 Miles East of River; Light Casualties.

PARIS, Feb. 24 (Saturday)—(AP).—The American 1st and 9th armies launched their long awaited drive toward the Rhine yesterday on a 22 mile front along the Roer river, quickly captured the ancient fortress city of Juelich and fought their way into Dueren.

After hurdling the still swollen Roer in the opening assault of what may be the final great offensive of the western front, the doughboys of both armies advanced up to two miles to the east of the river.

Five Other Towns Fall.

Juelich as well as five other smaller towns east of the Roer were seized by Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army, which pushed steadily ahead along the whole portion of its offensive arc in the initial stages of the drive.

They captured Glimbach, Gevenich, and Boslar, northeast of Minnich, Rurich northeast of Linnich, and Selgersdorf southwest of Juelich.

The citadel in the northern part of Juelich still was holding out, but had been by-passed.

The citadel is a cluster of buildings surrounded by walls which measure more than 2,000 yards around. The walls are 13 to 14 feet thick and some 50 feet high, protected by a moat 20 feet deep and 70 to 100 feet wide. It was believed to be lightly held and expected to fall momentarily.

Casualties Light.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army, driving ahead on the right flank of the 9th, fought into the streets of Dueren, the German stronghold 10 miles southeast of Juelich, and also captured the towns of Huchem and Stammein. Birksdorf, a northern suburb of Dueren, also was broken into.

Casualties in the attack were reported surprisingly light in view of the tricky maneuver of crossing the flooded river in darkness.

The armies jumped off at 3:30 a. m., and behind the greatest

HERE'S PICTURE OF YANK FIGHT TO SPAN RIVER

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Feb. 23.—United States army engineers bridged the raging Roer river swollen to a torrent at various places after the initial waves of Lt. Gen. Simpson's attack had traversed the stream in wooden assault boats and rubber craft to open the drive on the Rhine.

At a certain village on the Roer, at one of the narrowest points of the stream, I saw how the Yanks encountered and fought desperately to solve grave difficulties and obstacles, both expected and unexpected, in crossing the racing river.

Last night I went to the command post of this unit and listened to a briefing of the operation, in which every phase and development was meticulously and gravely explained and pointed out on a vast map, elaborately marked in colored crayons, by a staff officer.

Nazi Planes Bomb Area.

After a snack in the officers' mess, when factors favorable and unfavorable for the operation were solemnly discussed, I had 2 hours' sleep, interrupted constantly by enemy planes swooping low to drop 500 pounders, and the tack-tack-tack of heavy machine gun fire as anti-aircraft guns spat red tracers at the raiders.

Getting up at midnight, bitter cold from the stinging wind, with the deadly serious business ahead not conducive to hilarity, officers and correspondents donned battle dress and steel helmets.

The familiar cliche describing executions—the condemned men ate a hearty breakfast—ran persistently thru my mind as our group climbed soberly and silently into waiting jeeps to go to the front line, or river bank. Even the sergeant chauffeurs failed to squawk about nonoperating windshields and refrained from cursing the alligators, trucks, bulldozers, and tanks that wouldn't move over so we could pass.

Pass Long Lines of Men.

The simile was heightened as we passed long lines of infantry, laden with packs, three days' rations, Mae West life preservers, and weapons, marching single file, spaced 10 feet apart, on either side of the road, like mourners plodding behind an invisible hearse at a funeral.

No wise cracks or even beefs came from the G. Is as the jeeps spurted mud on their already caked leggings and trousers.

We swept past trucks, crammed with doughboys festooned with equipment, each one staring fixedly and moodily toward the front, where enemy flares and star shells lit up the river and forward area.

Lights Are Doused.

Photos Aid Yanks in Drive

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Feb. 23 (AP).—Every platoon leader who took his troops across the Roer river today carried a photograph of the position he was to capture, and knew the exact location of enemy gun positions, fire trenches and in some cases, even mines.

For the last few weeks, while Lt. Gen. Simpson was massing his forces for this attack, Lightning pilots had been flying over enemy lines daily, photographing the landscape between the Roer and the Rhine. Prints of these pictures kept Simpson informed on enemy movements, and photo intelligence units used them to prepare detailed maps.

A Lightning squadron commanded by Lt. Col. Leon H. McCurdy, former Cornell university professor from Ithaca, N. Y., has been winging over enemy territory thru rain, wind, and snow since the 9th pulled up to the west bank of the river.

Armed only with cameras, McCurdy's men usually shoot from 20,000 feet, but once when the weather was particularly bad and the general needed to know what was going on behind enemy lines, Capt. Thomas A. Roberts, Beeville, Tex., and three others volunteered to go in at 2,000.

AUTO ACCIDENT TOLL THIS YEAR SHOWS DECLINE

Motor vehicle accidents in the first six weeks of 1945 fell sharply in comparison to the corresponding period of last year, Joseph Stech, manager of the Greater Chicago Safety council, disclosed last night.

Despite icy roads and record snowfalls, only 36 fatalities were reported this year, compared to 60 last year. To date, there have been 1,166 accidents, with 1,443 injured, while last year 1,499 accidents and 1,820 injuries were reported.

Slippery streets made motorists drive more slowly, fewer cars were out in the bad weather, and pedestrians were more observant, Stech declared. The accident rate among children also dropped, he said, proving that the hardest winter in many years has had its advantages.

21 Brides Get Dowries from Poet's Estate

Port Allen, La., Feb. 23 [Special].—The postman didn't have to ring twice today at the homes of 21 West Baton Rouge parish brides of 1944, for he was bringing them dowries bequeathed to them more than a century ago by a disappointed lover.

The brides, who live on the west bank of the Mississippi river, received checks ranging from $50 to $300 from the Julien Poydras dowry fund, which was set up in 1824.

Poydras, enshrined in Louisiana history as the state's first poet and then its richest man, set up a fund of $30,000, the interest from which was to be used for the annual distribution of dowries. A successful money maker, he believed in romance; a bachelor, he believed in marriage. And being a poet, he conceived a plan that would aid lovers for years after he had died.

Maintain Tradition.

Poydras provided in his will for all the brides of West Baton Rouge parish [county] where two of his plantations were located, and for those of Pointe Coupee parish, where his home was situated. The Pointe Coupee fund later was used to build a school, but West Baton Rouge hewed to the traditional custom.

Each January a commission consisting of the sheriff, the president of the police jury, and the parish treasurer meets to determine who will get dowries and how much. These meetings have been going on since the fund was established 121 years ago.

The rule under which the commission operates is that the less property a girl's family has, the more money she gets. This year some got as much as $300, while others got only $50. Sometimes brides in the wealthier group waive their right to the dowry. Their share is divided among the others.

Native of Parish.

At its meeting the commission totals up the interest and profits of the Poydras fund, most of which is invested in property, and divides the sum among the eligible brides. A girl must have been born in the parish to be eligible.

USES NORMANDY APPLE TREES TO FIX WAR CRAFT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Feb. 23.—Propeller shaft bearings for amphibian ducks made from Normandy apple trees by Ensel Dye of Detroit played a vital role in maintaining the flow of supplies over the Normandy beaches during the invasion, it was disclosed here.

The steel shelled craft on wheels ferried thousands of tons of cargo ashore on round the clock schedules, stopping only for refueling and change of drivers. Parts wore down more quickly than expected and replacements went on the critical list.

Worn strut bearings supporting the propellers had to be replaced. Dye, an army technical adviser, hit on the idea of fashioning split type bearings from the trunks of the apple trees, which grew abundantly on the beachheads. They proved better than the original ones.

Coat Racks Don't Please Them, 75 Start Strike

Seventy-five workers employed in the cam and cam gear departments of the Dodge Chicago plant, where engines for B-29 Super Fortresses are produced, left their war work at 6 o'clock last night because they did not like the coat racks provided for them, the company announced.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, Feb. 24 [Saturday]—(AP).—The battle for Iwo swayed slowly in favor of three United States marine divisions Friday as they occupied one end of an air field in the island's center and strewed the volcanic slopes of Mount Suribachi on the south tip with Japanese dead.

It still was a slugging match, with the leathernecks requiring more than three days to cover 700 yards up sloping ground to the south tip of the two-runway fighter field.

The Japanese, constantly blasted by the guns of the United States 5th fleet and dived on by carrier planes, fought back from concrete pillboxes.

Score Limited Gains.

Headquarters, assessing the situation up to 6 p. m. Friday, said the leathernecks had scored limited gains against "elaborate enemy defenses."

It was the first report of any real gains since Wednesday noon, when they began the 700 yard drive from captured Motoyama bomber field, No. 1, in the south end of the island, north toward Motoyama fighter field, No. 2.

The advance, by three divisions in an enveloping movement, is up slopes toward the plateau on which the fighter field is located. The Japanese have put up such bitter resistance, throwing in strong counter-attacks, that many of the marine casualties have occured there.

Advance 300 Yards.

Today's bulletin made no further addition of casualty figures, which up to Wednesday night had exceeded 5,000.

[In Washington Friday a navy spokesman said the Iwo casualties were "approximately 6,000."]

In the drive toward the only other usable air field still in enemy hands, the 4th marine division on the right flank edged forward 300 yards.

In the center of the advancing line, other elements succeeded in occupying the south end of the air field which, in American hands, would base fighters within flying range of Tokyo.

On Mount Suribachi, on the south tip of Iwo, where marines raised the United States flag Friday, a total of 717 enemy dead has been counted, with the cleanup continuing. That was added to a previously announced figure of 1,222 Nipponese dead counted elsewhere.

Japs Fight from Caves.

"In all sectors the enemy is resisting our advance from concrete pillboxes, entrenchments, and caves," the bulletin said.

The guns of the warships, which began unlimbering on Iwo three days prior to Monday's landings, still thundered in support of the attacking marines. Carrier based planes, including a new type of Hellcat dive bomber, also aided the drive.

Japanese on Kangoku rock, just west of Iwo, fired mortars at the marines, but an American destroyer's gun knocked out the rock's defenses and also destroyed several landing craft.

Supplies Come in Faster.

The unloading of supplies, now facilitated by steel mats spread over the loose, volcanic ash, continued. The bulletin said "their rate of movement across the beaches is considerably improved, in spite of the surf created by recent southeasterly weather."

To neutralize any bases just north of Iwo where the Nipponese might shuttle planes from Tokyo, carrier aircraft made an offensive sweep over Chichi in the Bonin islands.

Staff Sgt. David Dempsey, New York, marine combat correspondent, described a section of the beach where troops landed four days ago as "a scene of indescribable wreckage. And the wreckage is ours."

YANKS FIND 100 FORTIFIED CAVES ON IWO VOLCANO

BY THOMAS MORROW.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IWO ISLAND, Feb. 23.—The biggest thrill of the Iwo Island campaign came today as the American flag was raised atop Mount Suribachi, gun-filled volcano mountain at the southeast tip of this spot of land, by Lt. George Schreier, Missouri marine.

The flag went up at 10:35 a. m. Two hours later Maj. Tom Pearce of Columbia, S. C., took me on a tour of the lower reaches of Suribachi.

Forces Jap to Come Out.

"Snipers over there," he said casually as a gun shot came from scrub growth near the base. A passing marine stopped.

"Tell the Japanese trapped in the cave to come out or I will go get a flame thrower," Pearce said. The marine called to the Jap. He padded out and gave himself up.

A second marine, wearing a beard after four days of fighting, surprised a Jap in a cave. The Jap had a sword, so the marine took it away from him and cut off the Jap's head.

Find 100 Caves.

The base of the mountain is lined with trenches. More than 100 caves hold wrecked enemy gun positions the Japanese found it impossible to reassemble. Boulders line the top area. Some of them had been rolled down on the assault troops by the defenders.

A kitten had wandered in from somewhere. Several marines lost interest in their chores temporarily while they tempted the cat with food. Two others played gin rummy while waiting for something to happen. One was happy with a Japanese bicycle he had found.

Use Flame Throwers.

After the marines performed what looked like an impossible assault on the lava rock gun turret, they scaled the mountain and went to work with flame throwers to clean out the enemy.

"The boys just got mad and went up and around the mountain," said Col. Chandler W. Johnson of 507 S. Sheridan rd., Highland Park, Ill., who aided in directing the operation. "Three men went up to reconnoiter, found the going good, and went to the top. A 40 man patrol followed, then several hundred more joined them.

"They were supposed to send us two cases of brandy. Where is it? That was a prize for the boys."

Charles Kovel of Lyons, Ill., displayed the back and knee of his pants, cut away for several inches, and announced he was glad to be around.

Jap's Throat Cut.

"A Japanese jumped my foxhole," he reported, "and got me there with a bayonet. I cut his throat." Kovel, who has four brothers in service, also got hit by a piece of shrapnel over his heart. It was stopped by an ammunition magazine he carried in his pocket.

"It was pretty rugged," said 1st Lt. Elwin R. Armstrong of 839 N. Grove av., Oak Park. "We lost plenty of men getting across the beach to vegetation in a terrific mortar barrage. A tank was worth a million dollars when one arrived to lead us in."

Pvt. Charles B. Allen of Rochelle, Ill., complained about the enemy. "You can't see what you're fighting," he said. "They're like rats—always in holes."

First Sgt. John Daskalalis of Freeport, Ill., took part in the hotly contested push around the mountain. Others included Lt. George Wells, 1401 N. Green Bay rd., Lake Forest; Vernon Niemire of 6046 School st., Chicago, who wants his wife, Mary, to know he's "in good shape and plans to stay that way." Charles Voltz of 2121 69th pl., Chicago; Milton Thompson of Route 1, Joliet, and Chaplain Glen E. Baumann of Highland.

Troops Smash Into Walled City and Free Filipinos.

TO HOME FOLKS

MANILA, Feb. 24 [Saturday]—(AP).—Doughboys of the 37th division, bursting into the ancient Intramuros yesterday thru two breaches in the outer wall made by artillery, engaged Manila's last Japanese defense garrison amid a tragic scene of civilian massacre.

The 20 foot thick northeast wall of the Intramuros [walled city] was pierced in the most concentrated ground shelling of the Pacific war. The 3d battalion of the 129th regiment then dashed from the protection of the postoffice, crossed a wide boulevard and an old golf course which was once a moat, and entered the shell wrecked medieval citadel.

It had become a place of horror for thousands of civilians held within the walls by the Japanese.

Fight Hand-to-Hand.

Simultaneously, under a smoke screen, the 2d battalion of the 145th regiment swept across the Pasig river in assault boats and went ashore near the wrecked Philippines mint building. The troops crossed the golf course and leaped thru another breach in the wall.

The Yanks encountered heavy sniper fire and strongly entrenched enemy pillbox positions. Gen. MacArthur said in his bulletin today that the troops, in bitter hand-to-hand fighting, were "successfully seizing all remaining points of resistance."

Many half starved, frightened, and beaten civilians who survived the merciless Japanese were dispatched to safety by the Yanks. A number were hurt by the American artillery barrage. Wounded and dying civilians lay among the dead.

Reports Mass Murder.

Newsmen reaching the Intramuros reported scenes of Japanese atrocity and brutality against civilians matching anything before in the Pacific war. Many civilians bore Japanese bullet and bayonet wounds. Some had been raped.

George T. Folster of NBC termed the Intramuros "a wrecked place of murder," replete with "more mass murder of civilians."

He said he saw dead civilians on all sides. He reported finding a large pile of dead Filipinos, their heads shaved and their hands tied behind their backs. The Japanese had tried to burn the pile of bodies, he said, but the fire failed to consume them.

Blue Network Correspondent Arthur Feldman said among civilians brought out immediately on Yank assault boats were 11 nuns, two priests, and one civilian. Three of the nuns were on stretchers.

Filipino is Bayoneted.

Thirty-one nuns remained behind in their convent, Feldman said. "Its walls were fast crumbling, but they feared to leave the refuge."

Feldman said he saw another nun "holding a 'kerchief from which blood was spurting. A middle aged Filipino had been bayonetted thru the right shoulder. He kept mumbling about the Japs killing every one, and about how lucky he was."

MacArthur said among the brutalities practiced by the Japanese during the clearing of Manila was their shelling of liberated internees at the Santo Tomas camp, but "fortunately casualties were very light and families have now all been informed."

An American force took complete control of San Bernardino straits, vital shipping lane between the United States and Manila, by invading tiny Biri Island on Thursday. Only light opposition was reported in this second invasion in two days of islands in San Bernardino straits between Luzon and Samar. Capul Island was seized Wednesday.

First cavalry and 6th division troops captured the towns of San Mateo and Taytay in their push toward the Marikina watershed east of Manila.

Yanks on Corregidor continue to mop up the remnants of Nipponese still clinging to their tunnel and cave defenses. While flame throwers scorched the Japs in their Corregidor hiding places and demolition squads sealed others inside the tunnels, the Yanks cleared a landing strip on "the rock," and the first plane landed.

CHINESE DRIVE ON BURMA ROAD TAKES PANGHAI

CALCUTTA, Feb. 23 (AP).—Troops of the Chinese 50th division, pushing down the old Burma road from northeastern Burma, have captured Panghai on the north bank of the Namtu river opposite Namtu and about 20 miles northwest of the important center of Lashio, allied headquarters announced today.

Two Japanese counter-attacks against the new British-Indian bridgehead across the Irrawaddy river opposite Myinmu, 35 miles below Mandalay, were reported to have been repulsed.

There was no official indication that either of the allied forces converging on Mandalay had made appreciable progress in the last 24 hours and it was apparent that Japanese resistance was stiffening. Allied planes continued their methodical bombing in the Lashio area and around Mandalay.

'LARGE FORCE' OF B-29S RIPS AT SINGAPORE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 [Saturday]—(AP).—India based Super Forts of the 20th bomber command struck at Singapore, harbor crossroads for war traffic between Japan and Japanese occupied territory, in a daylight attack today.

Headquarters of the 20th air force here said a "large force"—a term usually indicating upwards of 150 planes—hit at dock and harbor facilities.

Results of the mission will be announced when operational reports are received in Washington, the preliminary report said. It was the first B-29 raid on Singapore since Feb. 1.

Clear Out Trapped Japs in Manila

WITH 11TH CORPS TROOPS ON CORREGIDOR, Feb. 22 [Delayed]—(AP).—All Corregidor shuddered last night from a mighty blast set off by the desperate Japanese.

Flames shot from three openings of tunnels which honeycomb the rock. A great chunk of Malinta hill's solid rock face was blasted loose. The resulting avalanche buried several American soldiers alive, injured others, and ripped out the road encircling the hill.

Rocks and boulders showered the beachhead like giant hailstones, causing additional lesser injuries. Hundreds of stunned soldiers dashed wildly into the comparative safety of the bay.

Hill Shakes Like a Tree.

"It was like a blast from 50 flame throwers," said one officer. Another said Malinta hill "seemed to shake like an apple on a tree." Some occupants of the bomb wrecked concrete barracks a mile away feared the skeleton buildings would collapse around them. Men in foxholes atop Malinta said it felt like the hill was trying to jump from under them.

Whether the Japanese were motivated by a desire to destroy the Americans or whether it was a grandiose suicidal plan, remained a mystery. Col. George M. Jones of Memphis, Tenn., American commander on Corregidor, believed the concussion must have killed hundreds of Japanese.

An estimated 30 to 50 Japanese dashed from the entrance of the main tunnel behind the smoke of the explosion. The Americans above opened up with machine guns and grenades. Twenty-seven Japanese bodies were found outside the tunnel this morning.

Hears Shots in Tunnel.

Pvt. Clarence Grahar of Guntown, Miss., said the Japanese were jabbering wildly, and some were yelling "banzai" as they rushed out. He said the orders of the Japanese officers were plainly audible as they made three separate sorties from the tunnel.

Pvt. Bill Crawford of Winter, S. D., another machine gunner, said he heard what seemed to be pistol shots in the tunnel after the charge. He believed the Japanese were committing hara-kiri. Others corroborated the story.

The explosion blew a gaping pit 50 feet wide and 15 feet deep.

Yanks Buried to Necks.

Staff Sgt. Donald J. O'Neill, Oshkosh, Wis., was sleeping with two others 100 feet from the largest landslide. "There was a terrific jolt," he said. "I thought we were flying out over the bay."

Two men injured in the slide were buried up to their necks and had to be dug out.

Pvt. Frank Stibil Jr., Buffalo, N. Y., walked past the enemy dead at the tunnel entrance. A possum-playing Japanese grabbed Stibil and tried to bayonet him. Stibil broke his knuckles on his assailant's jaw before companions killed the Jap.

FLAT HUNT BAD AS PACIFIC WAR, DYESS PAL SAYS

Death March Veteran Gets Chicago Post.

Lt. Col. Michiel Dobervich, one of the 10 Americans who escaped from a Japanese prison camp in April, 1943, and who later returned to the Pacific to fight with the 1st marine division, arrived in Chicago yesterday to assume duties with the central procurement division of the marine corps. Col. Chester L. Fordney, commanding officer, announced Dobervich's assignment to Chicago.

Lt. Col. Dobervich.

After recalling some of his experiences yesterday, Col. Dobervich remarked that the war in the Pacific is not much worse than battling to get an apartment in Chicago. His wife, now at Quantico, Va., expects to arrive in Chicago next week.

A Lieutenant Colonel at 29!

Col. Dobervich, 29, is one of the youngest lieutenant colonels in the marine corps. He fought with the 4th marine regiment on Luzon in the Philippines from Dec. 8, 1941, until the surrender, serving for part of the time as the commander of a detachment assigned to guard Gen. MacArthur.

When Bataan fell, Col. Dobervich was taken prisoner and made the 80 mile "Death March from Bataan," which was described in a series of articles in THE TRIBUNE by the late Lt. Col. William E. Dyess. Col. Dyess was killed in December, 1943, in an airplane crash in California.

Dobervich, Dyess, and eight other prisoners escaped from the Japanese prison camp at Davao, in the southeastern part of the island of Mindanao, and later fought for months with the guerrilla forces.

Helped Plan Peleliu Action.

After his return to the United States, Col. Dobervich asked to be returned to action against the Japanese, and was assigned to the 1st division. He was assistant planning officer for the Peleliu action, serving with distinction until his health broke and he was returned to the United States.

Col. Dobervich was born in Ironton, Minn., and was graduated from the North Dakota State college at Fargo in 1939.

JAPS USING NEW ROCKET MORTAR IN IWO BATTLE

ABOARD ADM. TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF IWO, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Japanese are using a new weapon—1,000 pound rocket mortars—in their fight for Iwo Island, American gunnery experts said tonight. The missiles exploded on Iwo's southeast beach, where the United States marines landed four days ago.

MARINE LOSSES ON IWO TO SET RECORD FOR WAR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—Iwo Island may become the most costly battle in the history of the marine corps in this war, according to compilations of casualties.

Losses are reported at 5,372, with 644 dead, 4,168 wounded, and 560 missing. While these are short of the 6,214 losses suffered at Peleliu, they are expected to pass the casualties of the latter engagement before Iwo is cleared of the enemy.

However, Peleliu is expected to remain the costliest engagement in the war from the point of percentage of casualties for men involved. At Peleliu the marines had one reenforced division of about 17,000 men and suffered total casualties of 1,198 killed, 4,974 wounded, and 42 missing.

More Divisions Employed.

At Iwo the marines have employed three divisions, the 3d, 4th, and 5th, approximately 45,000 men. At Peleliu in September, 1944, the 1st marine division was entrusted with capture of the island.

Before Peleliu, Tarawa in November, 1943, was the costliest engagement for the marines. There the reënforced 2d division, or about 17,000 men, had losses of 3,179. These were 984 dead, 2,191 wounded, and 4 missing. The losses at Tarawa brought heavy criticism of the planning and conduct of the attack, along with praise for the gallantry of the men.

In contrast to marine corps casualties, the army, under Gen. MacArthur, has suffered very low loss percentages. In the Leyte and Luzon campaigns MacArthur has employed about 125,000 men with losses at about 1 per cent.

Luzon Losses Cited.

On Luzon, where he had 11 somewhat skeletonized divisions and various special army units, MacArthur directed three almost bloodless landings. His total losses in the Luzon campaign, according to the latest announcement by Secretary of War Stimson, totaled 12,929.

In the Leyte campaign, where MacArthur also employed 125,000 men, the losses were 11,245—2,630 dead, 8,443 wounded and 172 missing.

Army spokesmen said no disparagement of the marine corps and its battle tactics should be inferred from the comparison of MacArthur's low casualty percentage with the heavy losses of the marines. It was explained that MacArthur's strategy in the Philippines and that of the marines in attacking Tarawa, Peleliu and Iwo differ widely. MacArthur's strategy was described as a "maneuver in space" embodying large scale troop movements, while the marine actions were frontal attacks on small, well fortified objectives.

After Tarawa, the question was raised in congress whether better planning might not have avoided losses. It was stressed that MacArthur had accomplished much with little by thoro planning and efficient operation.

Reef Causes Losses.

A large proportion of the Tarawa losses were attributed to the fact that landing boats encountered a reef offshore, which they were unable to cross. Many men had to leave the craft and wade ashore exposed to Jap machine gun fire.

At Tarawa Jap losses were first reported at about 6,000 men. Later it was disclosed that this total included more than 1,500 workers. Still later it was said Jap losses were below those of the Americans, but this could be expected because the attacking force is always at a disadvantage.

On Leyte MacArthur's men accounted for 75,000 Japs. On Luzon the count of Jap dead was 97,000. The army has no count of Jap wounded as yet.

Red Letter Day on Guam: Not One Japanese Killed

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, Feb. 17 [Delayed]—(AP).—This was the first day no Japanese were killed on Guam since the invasion of the island last July 21. The total count of Japanese killed here is 18,002. Prisoners number 659, of whom 152 have been lured in by loud speaker appeals.

Mrs. Menaul told of a radio message that Mr. and Mrs. Patterson had sent to their daughter, Virginia, a student in Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal.

Mrs. Jess W. Tarnaski, 3019 Lowell av., said she was notified that her daughter, Mignone, 29, a professional dancer, was released. Miss Tarnaski departed on a world dancing tour in 1938.

Sister Ann Lappe, 50, whose release was announced in Washington, D. C., Thursday, is in poor physical condition, Holy Ghost convent, Techny, was informed. A missionary from the convent, Sister Ann had been sister superior of a hospital at Manila before the war.

FLEET ATTACKS JAPS' AIRDROME ON PARAMUSHIRO

AN ALEUTIANS BASE, Alaska, Feb. 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—For 20 minutes just before midnight last night North Pacific warships of Vice Adm. Fletcher's force bombarded the enemy's largest air field on Paramushiru.

On this sixth surface raid of the northern Kuriles since Pearl Harbor, the criss-crossed airstrip, the hangers, shops, radio station, and shore installations at Kurabu cape at the southern tip of the island were hit.

Rear Adm. McCrea, commander of the tactical force of warships, said there were no casualties or damage to the American cruisers and destroyers, which retired in good order after the midnight attack.

PATTERSON ASKS MORE WORKERS TO SAVE LIVES

Robert P. Patterson.

The nation needs more men in the services and in war connected industry and must get them quickly if the war is to be ended rapidly and with a minimum number of casualties, Undersecretary of War Patterson told the Executives' club in Hotel Sherman yesterday.

"Nine hundred thousand more will be needed in the army and navy in the first six months of this year," he said. "The army production program for this year, with the program of the navy and the maritime commission, calls for an increase of 700,000 workers in war industries and supporting industries in the first six months of 1945."

The men needed for the services, he asserted, were to replace those who fall in battle and to increase the nation's armed strength so that the pace which has been set in both the European and Pacific wars could be maintained.

TEXTILE MILLS FACE IDLENESS IN LABOR DRAFT

Citizens Protest the Edict of WMC.

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 23 [Special].—New Bedford appealed to Gov. M. J. Tobin today to use his influence to try to stop the war man power commission's drastic labor draft here, which industrialists warned might cause a complete work stoppage in the city's war-important textile mills.

Challenged by an almost unanimous defiance, the WMC, meantime, moved into the crackdown enforcement stage of its "change jobs or be fired" edict, now receiving its first test in the United States. The local WMC office notified managements to prepare to discharge 106 designated workers who did not accept job shifts to tire cord factories.

Gov. Tobin agreed to meet Monday at Boston with a New Bedford delegation headed by Mayor Arthur N. Harriman after the chief executive had received a message from a citizens' committee urging that "something be done to correct the situation in New Bedford, due to errors or misunderstanding of the situation by the WMC."

Warns of Peril to Mills.

The warning of a possible complete work stoppage was issued by Fred W. Steele, executive secretary of the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' association and a member of the delegation that will meet with the governor. Other objectors to the WMC's labor draft have pointed out that the textile mills are engaged in such war work as making netting for the army.

"Stripping these plants of their workers, either by drafting them for work in tire cord plants or firing them, would leave the mills unable to carry on," Steele said. "There has been no previous labor stoppage in the mills of any kind since the war began."

The draft became effective Monday upon the order of Paul Devine, New Bedford WMC area director, with the approval of the national WMC headquarters in Washington and with the backing of the army, which has a representative here urging the shifts so more tire cord can be produced for military vehicles.

Officials Sign Telegram.

Identity of authorities pressing the campaign was indicated by the signatures of Undersecretary of War Patterson, Acting Secretary of the Navy Bard, WMC Chairman McNutt, and WPB Chairman Krug to a telegram advising Mayor Harriman that "tire cord is the bottleneck in tire production."

Authority for the draft is claimed under WMC Chairman McNutt's sweeping controls of last July designed to check labor turnover and channel workers from the less essential to critical war jobs. The decree imposed employment ceilings and the necessity for a referral from the United States employment service in any change of jobs. The draft first was tried out last month in the Allentown, Pa., area where it was met with resentment but compliance without challenge.

Edict Follows a Test.

It was invoked here after a WMC survey a month ago, conducted to determine this No. 1 area's labor needs and shortages, which showed that 118 workers were needed in two tire cord plants. A two weeks house to house canvass of 1,000 textile workers was made but produced only seven persons willing to change jobs. As a result of this failure of voluntary compliance, the forceful labor draft was launched.

In the five days the draft has been under way here it has been denounced by AFL and CIO leaders, employers, workers, city officials, and leading citizens. They have called it unconstitutional, unnecessary, and an example of "power-mad federal agencies," and demanded a congressional investigation.

"It promotes servitude, not service, and will promote confusion, not production," said Joseph Salerno, president of the Massachusetts CIO. "Military conscription forces a citizen to serve the government but industrial conscription forces a citizen worker to serve a private employer for profits."

Despite the storm of protests, the WMC went ahead with its draft which even Paul Devine, New Bedford WMC area director, admitted was "temporarily unsuccessful."

The directive was placed in effect by lowering the man power ceilings of 24 plants—10 textile mills and 14 other establishments by 118 persons. The 118, designated by agreement between managements and the WMC, were ordered to report for interviews held thruout the week.

Of the 90 workers scheduled to be drawn from the 10 textile mills, 84 either failed to appear for interviewing or, when they did, refused to submit to the job shifts. Only six accepted referrals to cord plants.

Only 22 of 28 Report.

Of the 28 workers from bottling plants, department stores and small nonessential factories, 22 failed to appear or refused other employment, and six accepted referrals.

The CIO-Textile Workers Union of America was reported to have instructed its members not to report for interviews. The AFL Warehousemen and Teamsters union was said to have advised its adherents to report but refuse to change jobs.

The 106 out of 118 who did not accept referrals were notified by the WMC thru registered letter they would be allowed three days to report or to accept job transfers.

UAW'S LEAFLETS SEEK TO SMASH RIVAL CIO UNION

Thousands of pamphlets, explaining advantages of United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers union membership, were passed to workers at the tractor works and the McCormick works of the International Harvester company yesterday as the UAW began its campaign to "absorb" the membership of the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union [UFE]. Both unions are affiliates of the CIO.

Asserting that the UAW was not seeking trouble, the pamphlets said that UFE officials had failed the workers in Harvester plants by "keeping wages low" and by "destroying democratic procedures in local unions." Among top UFE officials is Joseph Weber, a Communist, whose real name is Josip Ruic.

Pat Greathouse, UAW field agent, said the UAW had sought an amalgamation with the UFE in 1941, but "the deal fell thru because UFE leaders wanted to keep similar positions in the UAW after the merger." As a part of the same campaign, the UAW has petitioned the national labor relations board for an election among employes of the Caterpillar Tractor plant at Peoria, where the UAW claims 9,000 of 16,000 workers, altho the UFE has bargaining rights.

BRAZILIANS TAKE HEIGHT IN ITALY; YANKS TAKE 2D

ROME, Feb. 23 (AP).—Swift and well timed "one-two punches" by United States mountain troops and the Brazilian expeditionary force have knocked the Germans off the last heights from which they had dominated for months the long stretch of highway 64 from Pistoia to the battlefronts southwest of Bologna, the allied command announced today.

Brazilian troops in their first major victory of the war captured 3,000 foot Monte Castello on Wednesday and then American doughboys on their left took the summit of 3,500 foot Monte Della Toraccia.

Allied casualties were described as relatively low. An aerial cable tramway was constructed for evacuation of casualties. The line makes a vertical descent of 1,350 feet in a complete run of only 1,800 feet. This reduced the time needed to evacuate the wounded from 10 hours to four minutes.

BEATEN IN JOB APPEAL, WOMAN WILL FIGHT ON!

BY JUNE GESERICK.

Miss Lorraine Goyke, 23, of 7344 S. Emerald av., yesterday learned that she has lost another bout in her fight to win United States employment service permission to accept a new job.

Miss Lorraine Goyke.

In a letter from the area office of the war man power commission, Miss Goyke learned that the appeals panel of the Chicago labor management committee, with which she met on Thursday, upholds the action of the USES in refusing her a referral to accept a desired position with a loop mortgage company.

Miss Goyke filed an appeal after a USES interviewer refused to give her a referral. She had accepted the mortgage company job before Feb. 5, when a WMC ruling made it necessary for all women to receive USES permission to take new positions. She was unable to start her new job immediately, however, because her former employers requested that she work two additional weeks until they could replace her.

Vows to Continue Fight.

"It's against the principles of American democracy that a citizen should be unable to accept a job she got on her own merit," Miss Goyke declared after hearing that her appeal had been denied. "If I thought I could use my special training in the jobs suggested by the USES, and so help to win the war, I would be grateful for the opportunity. As it is, I'll keep fighting this as long as there's some one to appeal to. It's just another attempt by the administration to gain additional dictatorial rule."

A Tribune reporter accompanied Miss Goyke to the hearing, which was held in the USES office at 308 N. Michigan av., but was refused permission to hear the proceedings. Asked whether relatives and friends of those who file appeals are permitted to attend hearings, Miss Marie B. Naughton, administration assistant, admitted that they are. The appeals panel still refused to admit the reporter, who also is a friend of Miss Goyke, because "we know you are from a newspaper."

Ancestors Early Settlers.

Miss Goyke said her maternal ancestors were among the first settlers of America. Her paternal grandparents came here from Germany when they were young. Her grandfather served in the Civil war, her uncle in the Spanish-American war, and her father in World War I, she reported. Miss Goyke's sweetheart is fighting with the United States navy in the Southwest Pacific.

The young woman said she "particularly resented" the suggestion by the USES that she take a civil service job with the federal housing administration.

"Would that be helping to win the war?" she asked.

Costs Her Time and Money.

Miss Goyke has kept an account of the time and money she has expended in her endeavors to get permission to take the new full time job. She said 11 hours and 55 minutes have been spent waiting in USES offices and in traveling to and from the agency offices. She has spent $19.74, including $18.48 in losses because she could not work full time at the job which is waiting for her.

Her new employer is permitting her to work part time, a type of job which does not come under USES jurisdiction. Miss Goyke said she will work less than 30 hours, if permitted to do so, until she hears the results of another appeal which she will file with the regional office of the war man power commission.

"I've been having 10 per cent of my salary deducted for war bonds and have purchased extra bonds during special drives," Miss Goyke said. "However, I cannot live on a part time job salary and still keep up my bond purchases. As I see it, the war program and I both are losers."

An appeal for 500 WAC recruits to become hospital technicians in a battalion of mercy was transcribed yesterday by Gov. Green and WAC officers in Chicago. Radio stations in Chicago and downstate will broadcast the appeal. Five hundred WAC recruits are needed in Cook county alone to work in army general hospitals, to which hundreds of wounded soldiers are being returned monthly from overseas.

U. S. TO RETURN 70 BITUMINOUS PITS TO OWNERS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—The government expects momentarily to turn back 70 bituminous mines it has operated since the foremen's strike last September, Charles F. Potter, deputy solid fuels administrator, disclosed tonight.

Altho John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' chieftain, begins negotiations with the operators for a new contract next Thursday, Dr. Potter said the action had nothing to do directly with that situation.

The mines are located in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Kentucky. Potter said John McAlpine, president of the United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Employes, a unit of the UMW's District 50, had notified Interior Secretary Ickes he was withdrawing a strike threat which he first imposed last September, and that so long as this threat had remained the government retained control over the mines.

English to Honor Eddy for Fostering Good Will

WINCHESTER, England, Feb. 23 [Reuters].—For developing cordial relations between American G. I.'s and the people of Winchester, Maj. Gen. Manton Eddy of Chicago, commanding the 9th infantry division, which took part in the French landings, will probably be honored with the freedom of the city. A resolution will be proposed Thursday.

UNION 'CLEARS' SERVICE BANDS, LEADERS ADMIT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 [Special].—Coast guard officials have to ask permission of American Federation of Musician locals before allowing touring bands to play for SPAR recruiting rallies, Capt. Ellis Reed-Hill told the house interstate commerce committee today.

"We make it a point always to ask local unions if we are interfering," he explained, "because we must, by law."

The managers of the theaters where coast guard bands play are forced by the union to pay a standby orchestra, Reed-Hill declared, unless the theater has an orchestra of its own.

Clear with Union.

Army and navy officers, while denying that they personally ask permission of James C. Petrillo's unions before letting their bands broadcast or play, said they have frequently told radio or theater managers to "clear it with the union first."

"At patriotic rallies and charities there is no question of our right to play," Capt. Frank Gary of the navy said. "It is only in border line cases where we must be careful not to crowd legitimate professionals out of their livelihood."

Gary said his office frequently receives objections and protests from the AFM after the navy bands have played, but that each commanding officer must decide "border line" cases on their merits.

"The reason we ask theater and radio owners to get union waivers ahead of time," Capt. William F. Loventhal, representing the United States Navy band, explained, "is because it is a trouble saver.

Kick to Petrillo.

"Otherwise a musician finds out we have played, kicks to his local union, who kicks to Petrillo, who writes the secretary of navy, who refers it back to me for explanation. The advance way is easier."

Chairman Clarence F. Lea [D., Cal.] said the committee would seek to broaden the senate bill now under consideration to curb Petrillo's powers, and would consider imposing direct criminal penalties for violation.

Hearings were concluded "for the time being," but Lea said the committee expects to hear Representative Clare Hoffman [R., Mich.] at a later date.

'Trouble Maker' Fired; 350 Workers Go on Strike

Three hundred fifty workers went on strike yesterday at the General American Aerocoach company, 135th st. and Brandon av., because a fellow worker had been discharged for "breeding insubordination." Capt. George Barnes, head of the police labor detail, said the workers first attempted a sitdown strike, but when he ordered them either to go to work or leave the plant, they chose to leave. Most of the strikers are members of District 50 of the United Mine Workers' union.

RUSSIANS SEIZE POZNAN, CLEAR WAY TO BERLIN

Kill 25,000 Nazis, Take 23,000 Prisoners.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 24 (AP).—Russian shock troops conquered the west Polish stronghold of Poznan [Posen] yesterday after a month's siege, killing or capturing 48,000 Germans and opening vital arteries for the impending knock-out offensive against Berlin.

The last big Polish city held by the enemy fell to artillery, tank and infantry teams which blasted their way thru six huge three story subterranean fortresses and scores of lesser ones, finally reaching the cornered Nazis' last refuge, the Citadel, an old fortress on the west bank of the Warta river.

Combined with soviet artillery which blew gaps in its walls Russian ladder teams scaled its moated sides and with bayonets and grenades snuffed out the last German resistance.

A total of 23,000 Germans, including the commander and his staff, were captured at Poznan and 25,000 were killed, Moscow announced on the 27th anniversary of the Red army. Hundreds of planes, guns, and freight cars were seized.

Other soviet forces broke into the southern part of Breslau, besieged Silesian capital with a population of 630,000, capturing 20 city blocks, while in Pomerania the Russians captured Arnswalde, a seven way road junction 38 miles southeast of Stettin, Baltic port for Berlin. Arnswalde, encircled since Feb. 11, had a pre-war population of 110,000.

Squeeze in East Prussia.

In East Prussia another Russian army squeezed the remnants of 25 or 30 trapped German divisions into a 325 square mile area southwest of Koenigsberg, besieged provincial capital, Moscow announced.

Berlin said other soviet forces, threatening to turn Berlin's eastern defenses, had broken into Guben and Forst, 51 and 57 miles southeast of Berlin, crossing the Neisse river and establishing bridgeheads less than 10 miles from the Spree, last water barrier protecting the reich capital.

Red army troops also were attacking on the approaches to Goerlitz, Silesia's second largest city, on the upper Neisse river 48 miles east of Dresden, Saxon capital.

Communications Freed.

Poznan's capture released thousands of soviet troops for the spreading assaults inside Germany, and freed communication arteries feeding the Berlin, Stettin, and Dresden fronts.

Poland's third largest city of 270,000, Poznan lies 100 miles east of Frankfurt, besieged Oder river stronghold 33 miles from Berlin. Communication spokes jut out to all parts of eastern Germany. Nine railways and six highways converge there.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

Friday's German war summary, as broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, said:

"Our attacks against the remainder of the soviet bridgehead on the Gran made further headway against tough enemy resistance.

"A soviet attempt to break thru our front on the Neisse toward the west failed, with heavy casualties to the enemy. Ground temporarily lost west of the Neisse was regained in counter-attacks.

"Southeast of Liepaja and south of Tukums our tested Courland formations yesterday smashed concentrated strong soviet attacks, destroying numerous enemy tanks, and in powerful counter-thrusts wresting from the enemy ground which had been temporarily lost."

German Planes Chased from Antwerp Sea Lanes

LONDON, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Germans made an unsuccessful bid last night to provide fighter plane protection for E-boats attempting to break into allied shipping routes to Antwerp, the air ministry disclosed today. None of the Nazi fighters were shot down, but they were driven off and for the third straight night aircraft of the R. A. F. coastal command broke up E-boat formations in the lower end of the North sea.

BURGLARS TAKE FUR COAT.

Sam Sherman, of 5352 Winthrop av., a beer distributor, lost three watches worth $220, a fur coat worth $600, and $12 to burglars who broke into his home, he reported to police yesterday.

Progress in Red Drive on Berlin

BOMBERS SMASH RAIL CENTERS TO AID NEW DRIVE

LONDON, Feb. 24 [Saturday] —(AP).—Great fleets of R. A. F. heavy bombers roared over Germany again last night and early today, maintaining the massive air support to the new allied offensive on the western front by hammering the reich's battered traffic centers and rail lines.

One of the targets for the huge armada once more was much-battered Berlin but emphasis in the assault remained on the Nazis' transportation. Pforzheim, a communications center in the upper Rhineland, was one of the rail hubs hammered.

The air over the English coastline reverberated for hours with the sound of heavy motors as formation after formation of bombers winged toward Germany. One great fleet required more than an hour to pass over the North sea.

Pforzheim Blasted.

The British heavies made a concentrated raid on Pforzheim, between Munster and Bielefeld. Berlin was pounded for the fourth consecutive night.

Twelve thousand American and British bombers and fighters—air power more massive than employed on D-day in France—virtually have paralyzed Germany's vast rail network during the last two days.

An estimated 20,000 tons of explosives rained down on Germany's battered transportation system in 48 hours of unusually fine flying weather.

Five thousand planes of seven allied air commands were thrown into the campaign of amputating the reich's rail sinews yesterday, following up the overpowering assault of 7,000 planes Thursday.

Near Air Link with Reds.

Nearly 2,000 American bombers and fighters stabbed so close to the eastern front they came within 150 miles of linking up with an air offensive undertaken by the Russians.

The United States 8th air force spearheaded yesterday's 5,000 plane attack by sending some 1,250 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 650 fighters, to hammer at least 20 points in the Nuernberg area in low level attacks.

At least 500 locomotives and 7,000 rail cars have been shot up or left stranded on twisted, tangled tracks during the last two days. Rail cuts, mostly on main lines, have been made in an estimated 800 to 1,000 places.

France to Get Belgian Sulphur, Horses, Matches

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—During the first six months of 1945 France will receive sulphur, horses, matches, and some manufactured products from Belgium in exchange for agricultural and chemical products and building materials. This was decided during the three day conversations in Paris between the French government and the Belgian mission, headed by Foreign Minister Paul Spaak, which ended today.

ROBBERS TAKE SHIRTS AND SHOES.

Alexander Gellatly, 1030 W. 21st st., reported to police yesterday that three cases of cotton shirts and a carton of shoes were stolen from his trailer.

YANKS ADVANCE 2 MILES IN PUSH OVER ROER RIVER

Seize Juelich; Drive Into Dueren.

artillery barrage in history, quickly shredded the Roer river line which had kept them mired east of Aachen since last autumn. Progress was described officially as satisfactory.

Strike in Moonlight.

By assault boats, infantry bridges, and amphibious jeeps and tanks the Americans struck in the moonlight behind a 45 minute barrage in which guns massed 100 to the mile caved in dugouts and trench systems and left many enemy front line troops too stunned to resist.

By 9 a. m. the attack was getting along well and the first streams of prisoners came back.

Under a curtain of flying steel, the Americans waded out into small assault boats and paddled across the Roer or dashed over tiny foot bridges. They were followed by amphibious "alligators" splashing across carrying heavier equipment.

Smoke Camouflages Attack.

Smoke generators also laid down a thick blanket to camouflage the attacks deeper into Germany.

More than 2,000 American warplanes carpet-bombed German targets ahead of the charging armies, cutting a wide swath between the Roer and the Rhine.

Across the river were six German divisions spread thinly along the arching front guarding their industrial Ruhr basin and the Rhineland.

At least 10 of Field Marshal von Rundstedt's carefully hoarded divisions had been pinned down by the Canadian 1st army offensive on the north flank, and that many or more were trying to hold back the United States 3d army, hammering toward the Rhine thru the Eifel mountains.

Smash Across Saar River.

The 3d army ripped across the Saar river at a third point south of the rocking fortress of Trier, and welded two other crossings into one bridgehead at least two and a half miles wide and as much as two miles deep.

To the north in the Eifels, the 3d army also widened two west wall breaches to nine an d19 miles, narrowed the gap between them to four miles, captured 10 more German towns and was threatening to force the enemy into a 12-mile retreat back to the Pruem river.

To the south, the United States 7th army pounded at the gates of Saarbruecken, first city and capital of the Saar coal and steel basin, after capturing nearly all the gateway town of Forbach.

Canadians Score Advances.

The Canadian 1st army resumed its drive after a temporary breather, scoring advances at a number of points, particularly in the sector where it last was two miles from the enemy base of Uedem and 15 miles from the northwest corner of the Ruhr.

Scottish infantry in the center cleared a large wooded section and fought south to little more than a mile of Weeze, crossroads town four miles south of the enemy's fallen strongpoint of Goch.

no bigger than a firefly's glow, as we entered the area under direct observation from enemy positions along the heights beyond the river.

The drivers noiselessly shifted gears and applied brakes as we rolled along a road on the west bank of the river, 100 yards from enemy outposts, amid a welter of congestion of troops and equipment. The motorcade dropped reporters at vantage points along the front where they could witness operations.

A press officer led me, stumbling in the shadows in mud and debris of shattered buildings, to the vaulted cellar of a roofless house, where a score of infantry men sprawled in sodden straw in mute contemplation of events to come.

A worried lieutenant checked and rechecked his list of men, with the continual question, "Where's Snuffy? Where'd Snuffy get to?" Eventually Snuffy appeared, explaining he had become lost in the darkness. The officer sighed his relief.

Conversation was carried on in monosyllables as every man divined what his comrade was thinking about, and the subject never changed: "Will they get the bridges in?"

There Is No Profanity.

The first thing I noticed was the lack of profanity, with only occasionally a "Hell, no," or "Damned river." There was an entire lack of sacrilege, with "For God's sake" the strongest term employed.

"Hey, lieutenant, what time is it?" or, "Say, mister, how much longer?" men feigning sleep asked as the hour approached—2:45 a. m.—when the bombardment was scheduled.

A sonorous, husky, satisfied "Aahhh!" breathed from 20 throats as massed American artillery opened fire, producing bedlam where a cryptlike stillness had prevailed.

"Knock 'em all out!" "That's blasting them!" "Make it a little easier," were their words.

The bombardment faded but didn't die entirely at H-hour, 3:30 a. m., and the G. Is lay deathly quiet.

"Hey, I want a couple of volunteers—two runners," a boyish captain who had come downstairs, announced.

Not a man budged, and the captain looked pained. "Come on, men—two volunteers," he repeated.

"Hey, Snuffy, you and Joe go," the lieutenant ended the embarrassing pause, and the captain whispered the errand as the men grabbed their carbines and shambled up the stairs.

Nazi Shells Fall.

The press officer then slid gracefully down the muddy steps to lead me to a better spot—an engineers battalion headquarters. As we emerged from the cellar, Nazi batteries went into action, plunking light and medium shells into points where they suspected crossings were scheduled.

"They've started footbridge No. 1 and will start No. 2 right away—both bridges will be finished within an hour," said the press officer. "Before daylight, at 7 o'clock, they'll have a treadway bridge. It's for tanks, field guns, and trucks."

At a crossroads pontoon—the army makes it rhyme with wanton—carriers lurched along, eight men carrying every boat, and in the moonlight by the river's bank, the engineers unwound inch-thick ropes. They looped the lines over steel rail anchors, then spliced them to half inch steel cables to hold the footbridges.

Undergoes Bombardment.

In that cellar I sweated it out with the engineers for six hours beneath everything the Nazis could pour on us, right up to nine inch shells and the new baby rockets, and sneaked out between the heavier bursts to watch the bridging and boat crossing operations 50 yards away.

Here, too, I watched Capt. Lawrence Knobloch of 4644 Gladys av., Chicago, as he sweated, pleaded, and threatened for rapid delivery of the material required.

The river bank was illuminated with star shells sent up by the Nazis. Dozens of expressionless infantrymen clambered gingerly into the flat-bottomed boats, rocking crazily in the rushing current. If they dropped a paddle it floated away immediately. If they reached for it, they risked capsizing.

Eighty-eight millimeter shells burst over the crowded fleet of assault boats as the river mists mercifully obscured the view and the boats vanished.

"Some got over and some didn't," an officer reported a quarter hour later. "I guess they swam back."

Chicagoan Mans Guns.

With the Nazis lobbing shells and occasional rockets and mortars, the direct road back was blocked by military police to let the alligators thru without delay. I paralleled the front for several miles, seeking another highway and visited a battery of big guns, with Lt. Fabian Pervinich of 1021 E. 65th st., Chicago, in charge.

"Plug your ears with your fingers and open your mouth, or you'll split your ear drums," he warned as the big guns thundered.

"Operations are going according to plan, and we have established these bridges," he showed the sites on the map.

GUNS SHATTER LINES

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY, Along the Roer River, Feb. 23.—For 45 minutes before the Yanks started across the swift flowing Roer river in their new drive for the Rhine, the entire river line blazed with the most spectacular artillery barrage this correspondent has witnessed in two and a half years of war.

In sheer weight of guns the barrage alone was impressive, for more than 2,000 guns of every caliber, from machine guns to 8 inch howitzers, fired a quarter of a million shells on enemy positions.

By the light of a three-quarter moon in a cloudless sky we waited, nerves on edge, before the open window of a battered German house a few hundred yards west of the river. S/Sgt. E. W. Nardi, 7241 Phillips av., Chicago, stood beside us to identify targets and post the caliber of the different guns.

All night long we had watched lines of doughboys plodding east in the moonlight stripped down to their battle gear for the river crossing. And along the river, hidden in broken factories and homes, lay the wooden boats which would carry them across the stream swollen by the Germans when they blasted dams and sluice gates.

Barrage Rocks House.

Stacked there, too, in the darkness, was all the equipment the engineers needed to bridge the river with causeways capable of carrying armor, guns, and supplies.

As we waited the night's quiet was broken by normal gunfire of our batteries which had been lobbing over shells for several nights in order not to alarm the Germans unduly. And then at 2:45 a. m. the thunder of the opening barrage shook our house as battalions of 105s fired. Their shells whooshed past overhead and the next instant the far shore line burst into brilliant light as they exploded.

For 15 minutes these batteries pounded up and down the river banks, striking at concrete bunkers, at the enemy's outpost line of trenches, and tearing up communications wires.

Long Toms [155 mm. mobile rifles] joined in with their 95 pound projectiles. Then came the really heavy stuff, 8 inch and 4.5 howitzers rumbling thru the air with the sound of freight trains.

Fire Rockets Back at Nazis.

At 3 a. m. our ear drums trembled at the impact of a new sound—the spine chilling screech of the German "screaming meemies"—225 pound rocket propelled mortars. Only this time some 45,000 pounds of Germany's TNT was going right back to them, the gift of Lt. Col. William M. Summers of Tulsa, Okla., the battalion commander, who had just received 200 captured rockets.

They shot into the air 100 yards from our window with an appalling screech and jets of sparks, soaring far out across the river to fall with a tremendous crumph in brilliant Fourth of July "flower pots." Three times two mortars collided in mid-air just above the ground, tumbling us back from the window with the concussion of their blasts.

The pounding of the shells continued, their orange or white bursts lighting up huge clouds of smoke until the entire area was one enormous sea of vari-colored smoke broken by flashes of fire.

At 3:15, only a short distance off to our right, self-propelled quad mounts with their multiple .50 caliber machine guns began firing, shooting lightning fast streams of incendiary and tracer bullets across the night.

Twenty and 40 mm. ack-ack guns took up the chorus with their fiery red tracers. The sharp crack of .75s and the deeper boom of the .57s indicated that tanks and anti-tank guns were firing, too. Last to join in were the 90 mm. tank destroyers firing with blazing white muzzle bursts until you thought your ears could no longer stand the din—until you were certain that no human being could withstand such a shattering cascade of explosives.

Promptly at 3:30 the barrage was raised and only the chatter of machine guns firing to protect the doughboys came back sharp and clear from the water's edge. Not one enemy shell had replied in our sector to this mighty gun assault. In the space of 45 minutes, 218,000 pounds of shells had fallen on this one battalion's sector, and now it was time for the doughboys to go in, paddling across with 12 men to each 400 pound boat echeloned in waves, five minutes apart.

Germans Begin Firing.

The engineers went along with cables to help draw parts of the foot and vehicle bridges over to the other side.

Then the stunned Germans began replying with artillery and mortars. As daylight crept up the German mortar fire became more accurate, zeroing in on our shore line and dropping back in the rear, landing only a few yards from our observation post. Big stuff, too, came tearing into our buildings. One forward observation post was hit nine times by mortars and 150 mm. shells until the observers were driven out.

But Co. A had crossed at 3:30. By 4:02 it was in its first objective, a factory, which was burning merrily. Co. I reached its factory, too, at 4:05.

Over the battalion radio you heard strange words, code names for various terrain features, because the German names are too difficult to pronounce. You heard men talk of Chicago drive, Decatur, Cairo, Harvey, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Stork Club, Allen boulevard, Summers avenue, or Southern Pacific railroad.

But by 7 a. m., altho our troops were inland, you knew, too, that the river crossing was still hell. German mortars broke one bridge after it had been built out 90 feet. There were 35 casualties among one engineer unit at another bridge.

Pfc. George Strom, 7257 Perry av., Pfc. Charles Meyers, 3308 N. Seeley av., and Pfc. Harry Sanmett, 1612 Lawndale av., Chicago.

Pfc. Howard Taylor, of Bloomington; Pfc. George Monzel, 5424 W. 24th st., Cicero; Pfc. Thurman Tilling, Coffeen; S/Sgt. Robert Ingram, Danville; Corp. Robert Sauerbrunn, Jonesboro; Pfc. MICHIGAN OFFICER FREED BY RUSSIANS IN DRIVE WESTWARD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—The war department today announced the names of eight American prisoners of war officially reported liberated by advancing soviet forces. Among them was that of 2d Lt. William C. Comstock, Grand Rapids, Mich.

List 250 from Oflag 64.

MOSCOW, Feb. 23 (AP).—The United States military mission today received about 150 additional names of American prisoners of war who were liberated from Oflag 64 at Szubin, Poland, making the total to date 250.

The names were reported by American detachments sent to Praga, Brest, Litovsk, and Lwow to find and help former prisoners of war.

Seven more Americans from Stalag 3C in western Poland arrived in Moscow last night. Among them were 2d Lt. Harry N. Schultz, St. Louis, Mo., and Sgt. Charles N. Weber, Elkton, S. D.

[A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said numbers of American prisoners had been liberated in Brandenburg province, Germany.]

WHAT CAMP NAMES MEAN.

The German designations of prison camps as stalags, oflags, and dulags are contractions. Stalag is a contraction of stammlager, meaning enlisted men's camp. Oflag is from offizierlager, officers' camp, and dulag is contracted from durchgangslager, literally "thru going camp," for prisoners in transit. The word luft means air, and designates a camp for air force prisoners.

BORDEAUX TIEUP HURTS FRANCE MOST OF ALL

Cranes Intact, but Nazis Hold River Mouth.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BORDEAUX, France, Feb. 23.—Bordeaux and its splendid harbor, 60 miles from the mouth of the Gironde river, where most of France's wine business was transacted in normal times, was untouched by the war, but it is bottled up and cannot be used because the Germans still are firmly installed at Royan and Pointe de Grave, on either side of the mouth of the Gironde.

The Germans left Bordeaux so fast last summer they did not have time to destroy much of the port, but they did sink a number of ships in the river, and you can now drive along five miles or more of docks and see the silhouettes of these sunken ships, which block the harbor and would prevent navigation even if the Germans were not dug in at Royan.

Mines in River.

The Germans also placed mines in the river which are difficult to remove.

French authorities are anxious to get the port operating again, and the presence of the Germans in the Gironde is perhaps the most damaging of all the Atlantic front pockets.

If Bordeaux were opened to commercial traffic, merchandise could be brought in from African colonial ports. The other French ports, such as Marseille, are now tied up with military traffic, and ports such as Cette and Port Vendres, into which vessels from the colonies formerly came, have been considerably damaged.

Bordeaux seems little changed from what I saw of it the last time, in June, 1940, when Marshal Petain signed the armistice.

It has suffered practically no bomb damage. Like all the big towns of France, its population has insufficient food and fuel. But being in a wine region, there is plenty of provender [liquid] for its numerous cafes, and the surface aspect of life seems as it was five years ago, except for the absence of maritime activity. The big cranes and unloading machinery are in good shape, but motionless and silent.

Sun Solves Fuel Problem.

St. Catherine st. shops have well decorated windows, but inside there is nothing on sale. Over near the markets is the famous Chaton Fin restaurant, one of the best in France, much frequented during the hectic days of June, 1940. Now it is closed.

The atmosphere of the city is far from prosperous as compared to what it was in pre-war days, when floods of wine were going out to enrich the city, but it nevertheless has a somewhat joyous appearance under a warm sun that at least solves the fuel problem.

But somehow Bordeaux seems to be associated with the debacle of the battle of France in those hot June days of 1940, and with the exodus of four or five million French people, all seeking safety in flight before the Germans. And Bordeaux people reflect that 15,000 of those same Germans still are clinging desperately to the towns at the mouth of the Gironde, not so far away.

3 YEARS NEEDED TO REPAIR WAR WEAR ON ROADS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Davenport, Ia., Feb. 23.—Three years of peace will be needed to repair highway damage caused by war traffic and to catch up with the construction program discontinued after Pearl Harbor, Walter A. Rosenfield of Rock Island, Illinois state director of public works and buildings, tonight told the Tri-Cities section of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

"The post-war highway program, as we regard it in Illinois, is in no sense an extravagant expenditure on projects which might not be economically justified," Rosenfield said.

"It will enable us to pick up our construction program where we left off three years ago. In addition, we must cope with the situation which has developed during the war—a breaking down of many of our important highways due to excessive war time traffic and truck loadings."

Vice Adm. Jesse B. Oldendorf, hero of the battle of Surigao strait, in which 15 Japanese warships were destroyed last October, passed thru Chicago yesterday en route to the west coast. He was accompanied by his wife. Adm. Oldendorf, holder of the navy cross for extraordinary heroism, was widely acclaimed for his "sucker bait" theory at Surigao, in which the Japanese force sailed into a trap and was annihilated.

FRANCE FORCES DE GAULLE HAND AS CRISIS STIRS

Assembly Assails Food and 'Purge' Chiefs.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—At a time when France is engaged in diplomatic, political, and economic negotiations thru which it hopes to regain its rank as a first class power, Gen. De Gaulle this week-end finds the domestic situation of his government the worst in its six months of existence.

Today, the French consultative assembly attacked Socialist Food Minister Paul Ramadier for his failure to feed the hungry nation. Yesterday, a three day debate on the dynamite loaded purge question ended in what amounted to a vote of censure against Minister of Justice Francois De Menthon and, thru him, against the government.

Withhold Minister's Pay.

It was the second time De Menthon had been under fire for his alleged softness in prosecution of collaborators. The first time, about a month ago, the assembly voted a token cut of 100 francs [$2] in his salary to express its dissatisfaction with his conduct of the purge.

The assembly vote yesterday, 169 to 14, to withhold De Menthon's 1945 salary of 350,000 francs [$7,000] until a delegation of assemblymen had been received by Gen. de Gaulle and given further explanations on the whole question of arrest and punishment of collaborators.

Consequently, the government, which has been widely accused of remaining aloof from the assembly of patriots and members of resistance movements, is now forced to take a clear stand. A long awaited speech by De Gaulle on domestic policy, it was announced tonight, will be delivered before the consultative assembly next Thursday.

Wedge Widened.

Even if the criticism of Ramadier for the disastrous food situation doesn't take as grave a turn as the debate on the purge, a widening wedge has been inserted between the government and the assembly, and only skilful handling by De Gaulle can patch up the damage already done.

In pre-war parliaments, a crisis such as that of yesterday would have resulted either in the resignation of the minister under fire or demand for a vote of confidence. As the present assembly is only "consultative," its debates are actually no more than academic, and the ministers' positions are unchanged by an adverse vote. However, repetition of these attacks has the value of showing a danger signal to the government and giving it a chance to mend its ways.

An interesting feature of the vote against De Menthon was that the Communists—the so-called government party—voted with the Socialist opposition and the metropolitan resistance movement against the government's purge policy, while the nascent right appeared for the first time.

Swedes to Help Norse and Danes in Germany

TURKS DECLARE WAR AS PRICE OF SEAT AT PARLEY

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 23 (AP).—Turkey declared war on Germany and Japan tonight in order to win a seat at the forthcoming world security conference at San Francisco.

Foreign Minister Hasan Saka asked for the declaration in an address to a specially convened session of the assembly. Prime Minister Sukru Saracoglu closed the debate with a supporting speech. The vote was unanimous.

Saka's proposal followed presentation on Feb. 20 of a memorandum from the British ambassador stating that it was decided by the Big Three at the Crimea conference that only nations at war with the axis powers before March 1 would be invited to the San Francisco conference.

Other Nations Asked to Act.

The foreign minister said that other "associated nations" were told similarly that they would have to declare war to qualify for San Francisco, naming them as Egypt, Iceland, Chile, Ecuador, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela.

"We want to take our place officially amongst the united nations," Saka told the assembly.

Earlier, he had signed with United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt a formal lend-lease agreement. Turkey's lend-lease shipments may now be augmented if Turkey proceeds to positive military action.

What the military consequences might be was not clear. One possibility is that Turkey may participate in a campaign to clean up the Aegean Islands.

Germans Still in Crete.

Germans still hold a small but heavily defended corner of the northwest coast of Crete with approximately 12,000 troops. The Greeks control the rest of that strategic island. In the eastern Aegean the Germans hold Rhodes, and also Coo, Leros, and most other Dodecanese islands, along with scattered forces in the Cyclades and other Aegean islands.

[Turkey is the 37th country to declare war on Germany.]

Turkey's decision presumably clears up misunderstandings with Russia. The Moscow radio has in past months attacked Turkey's policy and the attitude of the Turkish press toward Russia and the war.

Egypt's Decision Up Today.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 23 [Reuters].—All Egypt is awaiting the outcome of tomorrow's secret session of the senate and chamber of deputies, when Egypt's position at the peace conference may be decided. One of the results of the talks here between foreign ministers of Arab countries is that Saudi Arabia will follow Egypt's lead in foreign policy. A promise to this effect is understood to have been given by King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia.

F.D.R. NOTE HAILS STALIN'S ARMY ON ANNIVERSARY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt messaged Premier Stalin today on the 27th anniversary of the Red army that the "far reaching decisions we took at Yalta will hasten victory and the establishment of a firm foundation for a lasting peace." The text:

"In anticipation of our common victory against the Nazi oppressors, I wish to take this opportunity to extend my heartiest congratulations to you as supreme commander on this the 27th anniversary of the founding of the Red army.

"The far reaching decisions we took at Yalta will hasten victory and the establishment of a firm foundation for a lasting peace. The continued outstanding achievements of the Red army together with the all-out effort of the united nations forces in the south and the west assure the speedy attainment of our common goal—a peaceful world based upon mutual understanding and coöperation."

Churchill Hails Red Army.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill sent a message to Premier Stalin saying that the Red army, celebrating the 27th anniversary today of its organization, was "on the threshhold of final victory" and had sealed the doom of German militarism.

URGES POST-WAR HOMES BUILT IN CULTURAL UNITS

A scheme for turning the anticipated post-war boom in home building into "a cultural and social success" was advocated yesterday by Dr. Walter Gropius, chairman of the department of architecture, graduate school of design, Harvard university. He spoke before the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Chicago Plan commission, and the Institute for Design in the Palmer House.

Dr. Gropius suggested the vast building volume be organized into a balanced pattern of interrelated community units, "better fitted for our democratic way of life than our present chaotic cities are." In his plan, the self-contained community unit would be the basis of the city of the future. Each unit would have 5,000 or 6,000 inhabitants, its own stores, and enough industry to provide employment, and its own administration, schools, and facilities for recreation and worship.

"The building of community centers is of even greater importance than housing itself," he said. "These units represent a cultural breeding ground which enables the individual to attain his full statute within the community."

WHITING PUSHES PLAN TO REDUCE LAKE POLLUTION

James S. McCarthy, city attorney of Whiting, Ind., yesterday announced that work on routing that city's domestic sewage into the Hammond treatment plant would be started possibly within two weeks to reduce the pollution which is entering Chicago's water supply thru the cribs off 68th st.

Last Tuesday Whiting entered into an agreement before a special master of the United States Supreme court in St. Louis, Mo., to reduce the flow by effecting within 90 days a hookup with Hammond's sewer system.

The undertaking, McCarthy explained, will cost approximately $20,000. It awaits approval of plans by the Hammond sanitary board and granting of priorities for necessary gates, valves, and meters by the war production board, he said.

Meanwhile, Atty. Richard P. Tinkham, of Hammond, representing the American Maize Products company of that city, said his client had obtained a priority from the WPB to continue work on a $600,000 project designed to stop the flow of industrial wastes from that plant into the lake.

Driver of Truck Reports Helper Fled with $2,500

A 21 year old truck helper employed by the Revere Motor service, 1302 Randolph st., yesterday took a Revere truck carrying $1,500 worth of liquor and abandoned it after taking a cigar box containing currency and checks totaling $2,500, Louis Revere, the driver, reported to police. The truck, taken from 2050 W. 51st st., was found near 47th and Wood sts.

THEATER OF AIR HAILS 3,500 OF R.O.T.C. TONIGHT

Thirty-five hundred uniformed cadets of the reserve officers' training corps units in or near Chicago will be guests during the broadcast of the Chicago Theater of the Air performance tonight in Medinah temple auditorium. They will hear Franz Lehar's operetta, "Gypsy Love," broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9 to 10 o'clock.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will speak. Maj. Gen. Reynolds, commanding officer of the 6th service command, and Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago public schools, also will be speakers.

Marion Claire in Stellar Role.

Marion Claire will sing the leading role of Zorika, a Romanian noblewoman who abandons a love affair with one of her own station in society to follow the path of a young gypsy violinist. The part of Jozsi, the gypsy, will be sung by Gilbert Russell. Bruce Foote will sing the part of the nobleman to whom Zorika is plighted.

The musical setting will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus directed by Henry Weber. Dramatic parts will be taken by Sondra Gair, Jerry Walter, William Everett, and Elmira Roessler.

School Leaders Among Guests.

Besides army officers, educational leaders and presidents of scores of civic and patriotic organizations in Chicago and Cook county will be among the guests. Representing the board of education will be President James B. McCahey and Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools.

Others invited include members of the school board, assistant superintendents, and principals of 29 public schools having R. O. T. C. training. School leaders and cadets of St. Mel's Catholic High school and the Morgan Park Military academy also will be present.

Hundreds of the visiting cadets will be wearing the gold and silver medals awarded twice a year by THE TRIBUNE for proficiency in military studies and training.

J. T. BOWEN JR. ARRESTED BY THEATER GUARD

Joseph T. Bowen Jr., 56, of 434 Washington rd., Lake Forest, was arrested last night by Juvenile Officer Edward Kirby in the Clark theater, Clark st. near Madison st., and will appear in South State street court this morning on a charge of violating section 1933 of the city ordinance.

Kirby, assigned to the theater to guard against sex offenses, said Bowen molested him as the two sat side by side. Bowen protested that he merely touched Kirby's knee accidentally.

HOW CHURCHILL TRIED TO JUSTIFY ROLE IN GREECE

British Moves to Mislead Press Disclosed.

[This is the second of three articles on the recent revolution in Greece, written by a Tribune correspondent who was in Athens at the time.]

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Feb. 23.—The efforts of Prime Minister Churchill's government to justify Britain's armed intervention in the recent Greek revolution, altho those efforts were largely unsuccessful, are worth close study. They show how extensive a campaign a determined government can conduct in attempting to influence the world press.

During the early days of the revolution the British campaign was an ill conceived and ill directed attempt to smear the leftist forces fighting the British and Greek forces supporting Premier Papandreou's government.

Claims Not Supported.

Every morning allied correspondents covering the revolution attended a press conference held by an officer of the staff of Lt. Gen. Ronald Scobie, English commander of the combined British and Greek government forces. Within a few days he began presenting at each conference stories of atrocities committed by the leftists.

Then the conferences began to include references to German and Bulgarian forces working with the ELAS [guerrilla army of the leftist EAM party]—implying that the guerrillas were led by German officers purposely left behind when the Germans withdrew—and stories of how Bulgarian units were moving south into Greece to aid the ELAS.

The final British army summary of the fighting in the revolution showed, however, that just one German had been captured. He was a deserter who had been living with his mistress and working in an ELAS cookhouse. Charges that Bulgarians were participating never were borne out.

About two weeks after the revolution began, Osbert Lancaster of the British foreign office arrived in Athens and began handing out the British embassy's version of daily political developments.

Soon, American correspondents, instead of accepting Lancaster's handouts, interviewed Greek leaders, thereby obtaining information which did not quite agree with the British statement that there would be liberty and justice for all if only the ELAS would quit fighting.

Slams British Meddling.

The correspondents refused to accept the charge that the EAM was a communist organization representing a minute portion of the Greek people. Instead, their consensus was that the EAM represented a sizable portion of the Greek population which had resisted the Germans during the years of occupation. The correspondents believed that while the EAM was wrong to revolt the British were wrong in meddling in Greek politics.

Lancaster then began inviting only British correspondents to meet with him. Whenever there was a bulletin of major importance, he radioed the carefully drafted statement to London so that it was printed long before correspondents' comments could be published.

American writers as neutrals, saw no reason why they should not be allowed to interview leftist leaders, but the British refused. We protested to the state department of the United States but to no avail.

Step Up Propaganda.

The British campaign picked up speed after the actual shooting ended. Five British trade union leaders headed by Walter Citrine visited Greece and reported that the EAM was dominated by Communists; the ELAS had been less zealous in fighting the Germans than in fighting the Greeks; EAM trade union leaders did not represent Greek labor, and the ELAS had committed innumerable horrible atrocities.

The British supported Greek government accepted two leftist delegates to the peace conference, but it objected at first to a third delegate because he came as a representative of the Greek union of popular democracy [a political group composed of white collar workers]. The government ruled that unless the delegate came as a Communist he would be unacceptable. Finally, however, it agreed to waive that condition and a successful conference on the peace terms followed.

That's the story of how a great nation attempts to justify intervention in the affairs of a smaller one.

AIR LINER WRECK FOUND IN HILLS; 17 KILLED; 5 HURT

Cedar Springs, Va., Feb. 23 (AP).—The crash of an American Airlines plane in the steep, heavily wooded mountains of southwest Virginia four miles from this town today cost the lives of 17 persons and injured five others, one of them seriously. None of the dead, who were still being removed from the wreckage tonight, had been identified.

The names of those injured were given at Lee Memorial hospital at Marion as Sarah Padgett, stewardess, of Nashville, Tenn., Ensign Leonard J. Ricci, connected with the naval bureau of aeronautics, Washington, D. C., and whose family lives at Meriden, Conn.; Mrs. Frances [Violet] Ulen of Washington; marine Lt. Irving Schwartz of New York City, and Ensign F. L. Middaugh, Los Angeles, reported in serious condition.

Injured Suffer from Cold.

Several of the injured were said to be suffering from cold and exposure.

The injured remained in the freezing weather for about 12 hours from the time the twin-engine plane plunged into the trees of Glade mountain at 2:30 a. m. until about 3 p. m. when Willie Vaught, a Rural Retreat, Va., farmer who had joined in the search for the big plane, met Mrs. Ulen, who had started out barefooted to bring aid.

State police and forest rangers were forced to ascend a steep slope and travel three miles to reach the scene.

A reporter said wreckage was strewn along the slope of the mountain for about 100 yards.

Wing Is Torn Off.

Personal belongings were scattered about the plane, among them a framed picture of a striking girl with blonde hair. A letter found among the wreckage was dated Thursday night and said simply:

"My darling: I didn't go over . . . tonight, after all. So here I am writing again."

One of the first persons to reach the scene was Ray Wyatt, a 15 year old boy, who ran into this village to summon aid.

In New York air lines officials said the 22 persons on the plane included three crew members and three civilians. The civilian passengers in addition to Mrs. Ulen were Clyde J. Pinney of the Baldwin Locomotive works, Philadelphia, Pa., and Carlos Andifred of Mexico City. The crew consisted of Capt. James E. Stroud, First Officer R. M. Brigman, and the stewardess.

URUGUAY URGES PRESS FREEDOM FOR AMERICAS

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 23 (AP).—Uruguay came out today at the inter-American conference as a champion of freedom of the press, proposing that complete liberty be granted to newspaper activities and that censorship be abolished in connection with press matters.

Only individual responsibility would remain as a guaranty of accuracy and fair dealing if the Uruguayan proposal carries thru, as is expected.

More than a third of the delegations have expressed support for the United States resolution on freedom of the press. The resolution contains these main points: Lifting of censorship and war time news controls as soon as possible after victory; freedom of exchange of information among the countries of the western hemishere and with other nations, and freedom for correspondents to have access to sources of information without discrimination.

HARMON YIELDS 2D ARMORED REINS TO WHITE

WITH THE U. S. 2D ARMORED DIVISION, Western Front, Feb. 23 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Isaac D. White now commands the famous "hell on wheels" 2d armored division, it was disclosed officially today.

Maj. Gen. Harmon [Old Gravel Voice], who led the tankers in North Africa, Sicily, Normandy, and the Ardennes campaigns, has been given a higher command. Harmon previously had declined promotion to stay with the 1st army outfit.

White, 44, was a major when the division was activated in July, 1940. He is from Des Moines, Ia. The general previously commanded combat command B of the 2d armored division.

Havas News Chief Sent to Prison as Pro-German

PARIS, Feb. 23 (AP).—Emile Jore, chief of the Havas news agency's foreign service until the liberation of France, was sentenced today to five year's imprisonment. The Paris Purge court convicted him of collusion with Germany during the occupation. A colleague named Holstein, reported to have fled to Germany, was sentenced in absentia to death.

Yank Isn't Superstitious, but Those 13s, After All—

AT THE ROER RIVER, Germany, Feb. 23 (AP).—Sgt. Walter E. Bracknell, Franklinton, N. C., of an artillery battalion, is not superstitious, but after one of his company went to a hospital for the third time in three months he is keeping his fingers crossed. "Now look," he said, "I am not superstitious. But this guy had three thirteens in his serial number and he was first hurt on the 13th of the month and then yesterday he had just been back 13 days and he gets it again in a bombing. What do you think of that?"

V.F.W. CONDEMNS REDS' ENTRY IN OFFICER CORPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—Jean A. Brunner, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, expressed alarm in a press release here today, at the recently declared policy of the war department approving the granting of commissions in the army to Communists. He declared he was in complete agreement with the opposition to this policy voiced this week by Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military affairs committee.

Pointing out that the V. F. W. has traditionally opposed recognition of Communists and their doctrines, Brunner described the war department decision as "an open challenge to the millions of Americans fighting in the ranks without commissions to preserve the very American liberties and American way of life the Communists scheme and strive to destroy."

Brunner spoke as the leader of 800,000 veterans, 300,000 of whom are serving in combat theaters overseas.

The V. F. W. commander said each national encampment of his organization has adopted strongly worded resolutions in condemnation of communism, supported by active "Americanism" educational activities.

Million in U. S. Supplies Lost by Fire in Italy

ROME, Italy, Feb. 23 (AP).—More than $1,000,000 worth of uniforms and other post exchange supplies were destroyed by a fire which swept a United States quartermaster warehouse in Italy recently, allied headquarters announced today.

U. S. PROPOSES HEMISPHERE PEACE CONTROL

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 23 (AP).—The United States today proposed a resolution to the inter-American conference here that may develop into giving the Pan American union the power of sanctions [penalties] to keep the peace in this hemisphere.

The United States suggested that the inter-American system should be improved and strengthened to enable it to assure its obligations as a regional system in the general international organization that is to be set up at the San Francisco conference.

It suggested that the system be changed so it may function "in a manner consonant" with the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

The Big Three suggestions call for the use of political, economic and military sanctions, when necessary, to maintain the peace.

Five Changes Proposed.

The United States proposes five major changes to improve the Pan American union so it could assume its new duties as a regional organization.

1. That the international conference of American states should meet regularly at four year intervals.
2. That the meeting of American foreign ministers should be held every year.
3. That the governing board should be broadened.
4. The creation of an inter-American economic and social council and an inter-American education and cultural council.
5. That the Pan American union be given the power to coördinate the 36 inter-American organizations now functioning in this field.

The United States proposal states that the methods for further improving the American republics system should be undertaken at the ninth international conference of American states to meet in Bogota, Colombia, after the war.

Colombia Also Has Plan.

Colombia also presented a proposal for a regional Dumbarton Oaks plan with compulsory sanctions if the frontier of any American country was violated. It prepared to present a plan to set up an American social and economic council which would coöperate on a regional basis with the Dumbarton Oaks plan.

Brazil presented to the steering committee a resolution urging establishment of obligations on the part of the American republics in case of aggression. This resolution states that "the American states maintain the firm proposal of maintaining themselves united in one bloc against any extra-continental aggression."

OPTION TO REBUY URGED AS AID IN BUILDING AREAS

Rebuilding of Chicago's blighted areas will not succeed unless property owners who agree to sacrifice their holdings are given an option to repurchase, Federal Judge Walter J. La Buy told 50 near north side property owners in the Wells High school last night.

The owners met to discuss rebuilding a triangularly bounded neighborhood along Milwaukee av., between Grand and Ashland avs., and Division st., after the war under the state neighborhood redevelopment act. The act provides any development agency must purchase at least 60 per cent of the property before condemnation of the remaining 40 per cent may be attempted.

The group named a committee of neighborhood organization leaders to confer with development agencies.

TAKE LAST CIVILIAN OFF EXCHANGE LINER AFTER LONG GRILLING

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—The last of the 622 civilian passengers who arrived Wednesday aboard the exchange liner Gripsholm left the boat tonight after intensive grilling by panels composed of FBI, army and immigration authorities.

Approximately 300 were cleared thru the customs office while the remainder were taken to Ellis Island for further questioning by immigration and naturalization officials to clarify their citizenship status.

Prince de la Torres Tasso of Italy, and his wife, the former Fannie Goodyear of Buffalo, N. Y., with their 5 year old son were among those permitted to leave the ship. She is an heiress to the Goodyear lumber fortune.

EVEN TENNYSON POETRY ENTERS SANITY HEARING

Jo-Jo's Trial Likened to Rambling Brook.

BY JOSEPH HEARST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—The works of Alfred Tennyson today became an added starter in the poesy field at the District court sanity trial of Joseph [Jo-Jo] Stinson, attorney, poet, and artist, who hopes to establish his sanity by proving that his poems are at least the equal of those of Archibald MacLeish, an assistant secretary of state.

Stinson, ordered confined to a mental hospital by the health commission, took the case into court and in the first session Wednesday the jury was bombarded with quotations from his own pen and that of MacLeish. The jury got some more of the same today, but not before Justice T. Alan Goldsborough gave them a bit of Tennyson.

Advice from "The Brook."

"There is a poem called 'The Brook' written by Lord Tennyson," he said, breaking in on a lengthy and repititious cross-examination of a government witness. "It contains this line: 'Men may come and men may go, but I go on forever.' I just call it to your attention and suggest that counsel not emulate the brook. Let's get along with the case."

The four women and eight men on the jury nodded approvingly, for they appeared to be tiring of scientific explanations of manic depressive psychosis—Stinson's affliction, according to the government. That is, with the exception of Juror Francis Lo Bianco, 50, a real estate dealer.

"Wouldn't a layman call this just a case of nervous breakdown?" he asked.

Don't Speak of Them.

Dr. Perretti said psychiatrists don't speak of nervous breakdowns.

"We call mental diseases psychoses, altho most laymen classify the condition as nervous breakdown," he said. "There are many types of mental illness. In this case the respondent would be better off in an institution."

"Well," persisted Lo Bianco, "There have been many cases of nervous breakdown where the party got better by staying at home. Or going to the seashore or to the mountains to rest. It seems to me being in an institution would make him more depressed."

Dr. Perretti said an institution would be best.

Corp. Theodore Brockman of Camp Lee, Va., a Negro, described Stinson's activities in the home of Miss Violet Biddle, 78, whom Stinson, 61, married Jan. 2, after living at her home six months. Brockman, his wife, and two children have lived with Miss Biddle 11 years.

Ready for Another Poem.

Asked if Stinson ever told him he had killed any one, Brockman said "He talked a lot about how he had slain Japs and all those things, but I just thought he was getting ready to write another poem."

Brockman said he was surprised one Sunday morning when Stinson insisted he go to church with him.

"He was dressed in his riding breeches and I din't think that was the way to dress for church, but he insisted," Brockman said. "At the church he made them take us right up to the front row. Then he wrote a note and told me to give it to the head waiter, like he thought it was a night club. Later, while the minister was telling me he was pleased to see me at church, Mr. Stinson criticized him for the sermon he had preached."

Calls Him "Budelike."

"He was rude-like and not Christianlike," Brockman said. "He said he wouldn't let the minister touch him if he married him and Miss Biddle, and the upshot was, the minister told me to tell Miss Biddle he couldn't perform the marriage ceremony."

A detective testified that Stinson styled himself "the buccaneer of the boudoir" in a letter to a Washington woman. Other testimony disclosed that Stinson and his bride had a nice touch for alliteration, he referring to her as "Violet Violet" and she to him as "Wicked Whitia."

The hearing will be resumed Monday.

CHICAGOAN HIT BY SNIPER PLAYS DEAD, IS SAVED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—One German sniper had a pretty fair day, thanks to the recent misfortune of Pvt. Edmund J. Kapica, 22, of 233 S. California av., Chicago, but aerial ambulance service got Kapica back to a hospital in England so fast he has made a rapid recovery.

The Nazi sniper's first volley hit Kapica in the right thigh and left arm and qualified him for the Purple Heart during an infantry advance near Wiltz, Luxemburg. When he called for aid, a front line medical corpsman crawled out to him and was greeted by a German bullet for himself. Both men had to play dead until other medical corpsmen rescued them at dusk.

Pvt. Kapica's brother, Sgt. Frank, is stationed in California with the army air forces, while his parents, another brother, Stanley, and his sister, Mrs. Stanley Augustine, live at the Chicago address.

Corp. Sidney Berger, 26, of 3510 W. 18th st., who was wounded in France, and 1st Lt. Mildred Smith, 24, of the army nurse corps, were married yesterday by Judge Guy L. Smith in Marriage court. Mrs. Berger's home is in Merrytown, Pa. The couple met when she was a civilian before he went overseas a year ago. Corp. Berger is home on a 30 day furlough.

RED CROSS ROLE IN WAR TOLD TO MOVIE LEADERS

What the Red Cross means to American fighting men was described yesterday by Arthur L. Mayer, deputy commissioner of Red Cross activities in the Pacific, just returned from seven months overseas. He spoke at a luncheon of representatives of the Chicago area motion picture industry who met to discuss coöperation of the group in the Red Cross War Fund drive.

Food and films, Mayer said, were among the greatest morale builders to men on the front and in hospitals. He told of a rousing reception he received from wounded in a hospital on a Pacific island recently when he was introduced as a man who had been helpful in arranging the gift of 16 mm. pictures to the army and navy.

John Balaban presided at the luncheon. Speakers included Sgt. Anthony Grasso, 24, who gave first hand recollections of what the Red Cross means to fighters. He participated in 69 air missions, most of them over Burma. The week of March 15-21 has been designated motion picture industry Red Cross week.

VET IN HOSPITAL, NASTER ASSAULT CASE CONTINUED

A charge of assault and battery against Bert K. Naster, head of a large electrical supply company, who is accused of slugging a wounded army officer, was continued until March 28 in South State st. court yesterday when the complainant, Lt. Glen Crawford, 22, of 412 Lee st., Evanston, was unable to be in court. His attorney, John S. Boyle, said Lt. Crawford was in an army hospital undergoing an operation on his hand. The alleged attack took place in the Drake hotel on Feb. 1.

HOUSE IS URGED TO REBUKE HOOK IN RANKIN FIGHT

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—An abject apology by Rep. Hook [D., Mich.], temporarily saved him today from public censure in the house but Rep. Smith [D., Va.] later introduced a resolution providing a severe reprimand for Hook's "flagrant violation" of congressional rules.

Galleries were crowded and there was an unusually large attendance on the floor as a result of yesterday's encounter between Hook and Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], in which blows were exchanged and hair pulled.

Hook, petitioning the house for forgiveness for shouting "God damned liar" at Rankin, said he wished to make his apology "just as broad as any member would desire." The epithet was voiced after Rankin had accused Hook of association with Communists.

Regrets Losing Temper.

"I regret my part in the unseemly events of yesterday," Hook declared. "I regret that I lost my temper under circumstances for which I ask and hope I receive some attenuation from the generous members of this body. All of us are unfortunately fashioned of flesh and blood. I ask, in petitioning the house to forgive my infraction of its rules, that it bear in mind the necessity of enforcing upon all members the fundamental rules of human comity, no matter how adroitly some would seek to impinge upon the rights of others by violating the canons of fundamental decency and democracy."

Rep. Cox [D., Ga.], previously had told the house that he originally had been in favor of "prompt disciplinary action" but that the distressful times called for "tolerance, charity, and sentiment."

"The incident is one, of course, that the house cannot totally overlook," he said, "but if the participants see fit to offer apologies, they ought to be accepted and the incident forgotten. We ought to live in amity and peace."

No Apology for Fight.

After Hook had spoken, Rankin took the floor to say that he also regretted the incident. He had, however, no apology to offer for his fight with Hook.

"I merely did what any other gentleman would have done under the same circumstances," he said. "If I were to apologize to any one, it would be to the house for the disturbance the incident caused the membership.

"These are perilous times. If you received as many threats as I do, you would understand what it means. Any man who thinks more of his political or his personal hide than he does of his country or his own self-respect is not fit to sit in the congress of the United States. If I have offended the membership of this body, I am sorry."

The speaker rapped his gavel and the house appeared ready to dismiss the matter but Rep. Smith later obtained recognition.

"I still feel that there should be a resolution of censure," he said. "I think that the house cannot ignore language such as was used yesterday without lowering its dignity and standing."

The resolution introduced by Smith was referred to the rules committee. It stated that the language used by Hook was unbecoming a gentleman and member of the house and "merits the severe censure of the house."

Wins Support

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MRS. FRANCES ANGELLUCCI.

Mrs. Frances Angellucci, 25, of 1419 E. 55th st., whose husband, Louis, 32 a discharged ship yard worker, will be inducted into the army Tuesday, was awarded temporary support of $105 a month yesterday by Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court.

Angellucci, a middleweight prizefighter, lost his job for sleeping at work, Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker, representing his wife, told the court. They asked for the support order despite Angellucci's imminent induction "to keep him from squandering his money on another woman."

Atty. A. S. Frankenstein pleaded in the boxer's behalf that he was "driven to love this other woman" by his wife, which she denied. Mrs. Angellucci is suing for divorce on the ground of cruelty. The support is for two children, Louis Jr., 4, and Diana, 1.

TRAGEDY MAY LEAVE CHICAGO WOMAN $125,000

Mrs. Richard Rummel, 3912 Lawn av., Western Springs, whose husband is publicity director of United Airlines, is believed to be the only heir to a $125,000 estate left by her uncle, Harry William Bewley, 54, a McMinnville, Ore., banker, whose body was found Thursday with his wife's, in what police called a murder and suicide, it was learned yesterday.

Mrs. Rummel and Bewley were the only heirs in the will of her grandfather, Roswell Lanson Bewley, Portland, Ore., who died Feb. 2. She received $500 and Bewley received the remainder of the estate.

Mrs. Rummel said yesterday that she had returned only last Monday from visiting her uncle. Police said the couple apparently had been dead since Wednesday, and were found, fully clothed and wearing overcoats, in their apartment by the building manager. A service revolver, with two empty cartridges, was found under Bewley's body.

SLAYER, 98, IS FREED.

Elizabeth City, N. C., Feb. 23 [AP].—Daniel Phelps, 98, was freed in Superior court last night of a charge of murdering his 43 year old son-in-law, Joseph E. Craddock, who was shot to death at their home here last month.

A PURPLE HEART GOES ASTRAY IN TRAGEDY OF WAR

Vincennes, Ind., Feb. 23 (AP).—Several government agencies told Mrs. Vera Deem that her soldier son was dead, despite personal assurance from her boy that he was still alive.

Seven weeks ago, the war department sent Mrs. Deem insurance papers to sign concerning the death of her son, Corp. Jesse A. Sanders, on Dec. 27.

Mrs. Deem had a letter from her son dated Dec. 25, and written from Fort George Meade, Md. She got in touch with him and he assured her he was alive, so she sent the papers back to Washington.

Then came a card from the President expressing sorrow over her son's death. Mrs. Deem sent that back, too.

Last week she received a Purple Heart medal, awarded "posthumously" to her son. That went back, too.

Wednesday she received letters from the Veterans of Foreign Wars concerning her "lost son."

The correspondence, she said, really was about a Sgt. Jesse A. Sanders Jr., while her son is a corporal. Her son saw 18 months' service overseas and is under treatment for malaria at Fort Meade.

Mrs. Deem said she was afraid the family of the Sgt. Sanders may not yet know that he is dead. Corp. Sanders had one clew, she said. Months ago, in Italy, he received a letter, apparently written by a small boy, beginning "Dear Daddy. . . ."

Corp. Sanders is 19.

Sunshine, Warm Weather Predicted in City Today

Chicago should enjoy a bright, warm day with the temperature reaching 45 degrees today, Forecaster H. L. Jacobson said. The city had a taste of sunshine yesterday afternoon after .02 of an inch of snow fell during the early morning hours and made the streets slippery. Tomorrow there may be rain with temperatures continuing moderate, he said.

ENJOIN BUTCHER IN OPA CASE.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan in Circuit court yesterday entered a consent judgment for $100 and issued an injunction against Henry J. Kay, owner of a meat market at 3948 N. Cicero av., for selling meat for more than OPA ceiling prices.

HAILS CHICAGO PUPILS AS PAPER SALVAGE CHAMPS

Elementary school pupils in Chicago collected nearly 36,000,000 pounds of waste paper in the year ending Feb. 16 to lead the nation in paper salvage, Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent of schools, said yesterday. Rogers spoke at a luncheon in the Morrison hotel for pupils from schools which led their districts in the contest just ended.

A boy and a girl from each of the 25 schools which gathered the most waste paper received medals from Sheriff Mulcahy, acting for Mayor Kelly, and the nine schools which won district contests received murals depicting the life of Abraham Lincoln. James Staff, 14, Funston school pupil, and Fern Schalund, Mason school pupil, were crowned king and queen of the recent campaign.

Three pupils at Gage Park High school yesterday loaded 2,800 pounds of scrap paper into a hearse and delivered it to one of the school's 12 scrap piles. Thomas Rozdilsky, 15, of 2300 W. 51st st., whose father operates a mortuary, collected 1,700 pounds of the total. John Hansen, 15, of 2325 W. 50th pl., and Robert Richter, 15, of 2322 W. 50th pl., helped swell the total. "I'd rather see Hitler and the Japs in the hearse than the paper," said Rodzilsky.

DENTIST, 3 OTHERS ORDERED TO TRIAL IN LANSING GRAFT

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 23 [Special].—One dentist and three former legislators today were bound over for trial in Ingham county Circuit court on a grand jury charge of corruptly conspiring to gain enactment by the 1939 legislature of a law restricting dental advertising.

Judge Leland W. Carr, who as one man grand jury returned the indictment which included two other dentists, who have pleaded guilty, and another former lawmaker, who waived examination, found that "there is probable cause to believe that each defendant was a party to a conspiracy."

Facing trial in the dental case are Dr. Edwin J. Chamberlin, Grand Rapids, veteran secretary of the Michigan State Dental society, which sponsored the bill to ban "unethical" advertising; D. Stephen Benzie, Norway, and Ernest G. Nagel, former senators, and Francis J. Nowak and Earl C. Gallagher, Detroit, former representatives.

Nagel has been in a local hospital since he collapsed at the hearing last Saturday and Gallagher waived examination. Guilty pleas have been received from Dr. C. J. Wright, Lansing, the dental society's former legislative chairman, and Dr. M. S. Devilliers, active in the Detroit district dental society.

NEIGHBORHOOD PARKS.

At the judicial election in June the park board will seek authorization from the voters for a $60,000,000 bond issue. The money is to be borrowed and spent over a 10 year period. The plan calls for 43 new small parks to cost, with landscaping, buildings, and equipment included, about $1,000,000 each. Another $8,000,000 is to be used to provide new swimming pools, fieldhouses, and other improvements in existing parks. The remaining $8,500,000 is desired to extend Lincoln park [but not the Outer drive] northward from Foster avenue to the city limits.

THE TRIBUNE recommends this proposal to the favorable consideration of the voters. We think that for many years altogether too much park money has been spent in providing high speed motor roads, and magnificent vistas, and not nearly enough in furnishing places where the people of Chicago can find relaxation and recreation near their homes. The result is that there are great areas in the city which have far less in the way of park facilities than the people require. We are in full agreement with the park board in its belief that the need now is for many small parks rather than a few more big ones.

The board, in presenting its plan, says that all of these additions and improvements can be obtained without any increase in taxes. As matters stand, the park system is retiring about $6,000,000 of bonded debt each year and at that rate would be out of debt in about 10 years. Interest rates at present are much lower than they were when the existing bonds were issued and the probability is that this condition will persist for a number of years to come. Accordingly, the board believes that if, as it pays off its old debt, it is allowed to issue new bonds for an equal amount it will save enough in interest charges to cover the increase in operating costs that the new parks will impose.

Perhaps this forecast will be realized. We think it should be taken with a grain of salt, not because the trend of interest rates is likely to be much different from the board's expectation, but because the rise in operating costs as a result of war inflation is likely to be considerably greater than the board foresees.

Nevertheless, we believe the voters will be well advised to approve this bond issue proposal. The city needs these parks and will get its money's worth from them in better health and more wholesome surroundings. Sooner or later the need must be filled. We think that the creditable record of Mr. Dunham and his board warrants the conclusion that we aren't likely to get more for our money from a future administration than we will get from his. The probability is all the other way.

HEALTH AND PRIORITIES.

Some slight concession toward the health and well being of Chicagoans has been obtained in the stipulation that Whiting, Ind., is to cease dumping raw sewage into the lake only nine miles away from the 68th street crib intakes. Whiting has agreed to rout the waste to the Hammond treatment plant.

The office of the attorney general of Illinois, however, reports that, even with Whiting's compliance, pollution from Indiana will continue at 75 per cent of the existing level. This results from the fact that, altho the larger industrial cities of Gary and East Chicago have signed similar stipulations, their sewage works cannot be built as long as priorities on critical building materials are withheld.

The American Maize Products company at Hammond has obtained a high government priority to build a $600,000 private installation to treat its own wastes. The priority was granted on the basis of public necessity, yet the government does not seem to recognize that there is an even more urgent demand that it grant priorities on the same grounds to Gary and East Chicago, which dump a far greater volume of polluted material into the lake than does any private plant.

There has been a great deal of government propaganda to the effect that health is a national asset of vital importance in time of war and that sickness is a much greater factor in keeping workers from war jobs than any other cause. Yet the government condones the pollution of the drinking water of a great industrial region simply because to correct the situation would run up against its artificial rules as to what constitutes an essential use of critical materials. The dispensers of priorities ought to get their noses out of the rule book and show a little sense.

THE HOG SERUM CASE.

A jury in the federal District court at Chicago recently set a record for speed in returning a verdict in an anti-trust case. The jury was back in court with its report 20 minutes after the judge had finished his instructions. The verdict was not guilty.

The concerns accused of conspiracy in restraint of trade were manufacturers and distributors of preparations for the prevention of hog cholera. These products are marketed in two ways: One group of companies sells directly to the farmers or to dealers who sell directly to farmers. The other group of companies distributes their products exclusively thru veterinarians who are graduates of approved veterinary colleges, and wholesalers selling only to veterinarians.

The government's case was against the second group, the ones which sold only thru the animal doctors. About 12 years ago these concerns formed an association. The main purpose was to draw a code of fair business practice to be approved by the NRA. Another object was to engage in coöperative advertising to persuade farmers to employ veterinarians to immunize their swine and to persuade veterinarians to buy their supplies from the members of the association.

The government in 1942 obtained an indictment against the association, 15 members of it, and 21 individuals, charging that the association constituted a conspiracy in restraint of trade. The public had been adversely affected, the department of justice charged, because swine raisers were kept from administering personally to the ailments of their own animals.

The defendants admitted forming the association, but proved that they had been marketing their products exclusively thru the veterinarians for as long as 30 years. In getting together they had not changed their methods of doing business.

These manufacturers of products for the control and eradication of animal diseases had a right to market their goods any way they wanted to. The government acknowledged this. They also were within their admitted rights in forming an association and in advertising as an industry. The government did not question that the companies had sold their products thru veterinarians for years before the association was formed. But the government sought to find a conspiracy in the fact that the companies continued to decline to sell directly to the animal owners after the association was formed. It charged an agreement to that effect, but could not prove it.

The defendants, who were producers of a commodity essential to a large supply of food in war time, were under the cloud of an indictment for nearly three years. Their main interest had to be to obtain exoneration from the charge of having committed a crime. They were put to the expense of preparing a defense for a trial that lasted two weeks. They were cleared by the jury without hesitation.

No one knows how many more such cases there are going to be. With more than 500 employes in the anti-trust division, it can strike anywhere it chooses at any time. The division, under the present chief and his predecessor, Thurman Arnold, has as its aim the promotion of what it calls free enterprise. It does this partly by indictments and partly by speech-making campaigns. It's time that congress cut this business down to proper size and compel the trustbusters to confine their attacks to the real trusts.

POLITICAL DISSENSIONS IN EUROPE.

Belgium's political turmoil has temporarily subsided with the formation of a new government under Premier Achile van Acker, described as a strong man who will not stand for strikes, riots, demonstrations, and street fighting. He is a Socialist. His cabinet is picked from four parties representing the extremes and the center—the Socialist, Liberal, Catholic, and Communist organizations.

The Lublin provisional government of Poland is ordered by what Stalin dubbed the Crimean conference to take in Poles of other labels. The Lublin outfit is Communist. The newcomers presumably will be non-Communist. The nonprofessing comrades will be indigestible elements swallowed per force. Tito, the Yugoslav Communist, has been told to assimilate some of his fellow countrymen who can be found innocent of any collaboration with "the Fascists." Tito's plan was for one party and one voice. He is advised to concede a few modifications which may be intended to have the permanence of a snowball in a hot oven.

These amalgams of divergent if not irreconcilable elements appear as interim governments in the wake of Nazi expulsions. They are supposed to preserve an uneasy truce and keep the peace until conditions are favorable for the election of representative assemblies or constitutional conventions. Such processes, supposed to be determinative and acceptable, do not promise the political equilibrium necessary for tranquility. The split into hostile factions remains. Representative government couldn't be established on such foundations before this war. It fell apart in France. It disappeared in dictatorship elsewhere.

In the last German election, the fatal one five weeks after Hitler had been made chancellor, there were six political parties representing divergence of opinion which could not be reconciled. After that there was one party, and the Gestapo ruled Germany. There is no indication that Europe has reached a political maturity now.

The men who formed the American Union could not have described themselves by party names. They differed in ideas, but they did not have fanatical attachments or unbending attitudes. The country was restless. There was discontent and turbulence. There was weakness and uncertainty. There had been partisan differences in the states and there were different theories of government in the convention, but a majority of the framers could agree, and they could form a government.

There have been violent issues in the country, and one of them led to war, but the American people have more in common than they have in conflict. Government by the people cannot be maintained by endless fragmentation. That ends in chaos or is cured by despotism. Continental Europe did not have the political experience, tolerance, or savvy after the other war to make representative government work. This war has increased the partisan animosities.

Those Americans who have persuaded themselves that the Yalta conference brought freedom and order to Europe aren't looking at Europe. If they were, they wouldn't find anything to inspire much confidence in the future.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. The name Landis is popularly linked with which sport?
   Hockey Football Tennis Baseball
2. Which one of these capes is not in the United States? Cape Hatteras Cape Charles Cape of Good Hope Cape Girardeau
3. In America, most of capes are located in the East South Southwest Northwest
4. To amortize an obligation means to Cancel it Renew it Declare it void Set aside money to pay it
5. Which one of these chemical symbols stands for iron? FE AG CU ZN
6. This is a True-False problem in which you are to encircle the letter "T" in front of a statement if you think it is true, or the "F" if you consider it false. You deserve one point for each correct judgment.
   - T F [a] Whooping cough is more dangerous than measles.
   - T F [b] Chickenpox is more dangerous than scarlet fever.
   - T F [c] A new born baby may have syphilis.
   - T F [d] A new born baby cannot inherit syphilis.
   - T F [e] The maximum number of teeth in a normal human adult is 28.

MR. PEPYS SEES GREEN.

24th Feb.—Think the weather signs point toward an early spring, but am keeping my fingers crossed until the miseries of March have come and gone. People have been telling me about hearing cardinals singing in their back yards, but I have done better than that, for I have seen a green field. When the snow disappeared a week ago a young crop of rye, sown last November, was showing blades three inches high in the icy puddles of a neighbor's war garden. The Swiss chard plants also had sprouted under the snow, but they withered in the frosty air while the rye kept on growing.

Went to see a new play and found the first-nighters down in the mouth about the closing of cabarets at midnight and wondering how it would feel to have no place to go but home. Told them this was an old story to me, for in my youth the saloons used to be closed by official order at 12 or 1 o'clock, whenever a newspaper wanted to start a crusade. Many a time, as a reporter, I stayed up until dawn looking for joints that were disobeying the law, and finding them so numerous I didn't feel well the next day.

Went shopping for a new hat and found they were scarce, so saved the money for new shirts but learned they were also rare items. Decided to save the money for a new suit, which was ordered for winter wear last Thanksgiving day, and may be finished by Decoration day or not at all. If the suit fails me, will save the money for a vacation trip, but expect to find the trains and planes too crowded by unnecessary travelers. If this condition lasts thru the duration, I hope to find that my money for a new hat has grown into the cost of a trip to Europe to see the ruined cathedrals, but will probably learn that I will have to carry my own food.

THEY BUILDED A WALL.

They builded a wall, long crumbled to dust,
Where thru the debris rank thistles thrust,
Where the wild asses graze and the jackals slink,
And hyenas howl on the dry wadi's brink.
From the rubble of ancient walls they wrought,
For walls must fall and cities come to naught.
Shoulder to shoulder, with weapons at hand,
The builders wrought, a dauntless band.
Stone upon stone the broad wall grew,
And the toilers never a moment's respite knew
From the wily foe who lurked and jeered;
Who knew no law and no true God feared.
They built in the Name of the Lord of Hosts,
Nor trembled nor fled at the foe's loud boasts.
Walls must crumble, strong forts must decay,
Ashes and dust that the wind blows away;
But who has crumbled the spirit of man?
Let the Islands answer and far Bataan.

Stormy Evening on the Rhine.

[Written somewhere in Alsace.]

Linemaster: Somehow or other, and with only the best of intentions, I seem to have got involved in one of these international disputes one reads about. It follows the publication in the Line [Jan. 9] of a letter of mine, telling how M. Ehrmann of Alsace was provoked because a stone from Alsace does not appear in the façade of Tribune Tower. You added that you hoped he would be satisfied with a couple from Cologne cathedral and Fortress Ehrenbreitstein, across the border.

We visited the Ehrmanns last Sunday, and my friend showed them the clipping. Monsieur read it thru, his brow darkening, and then it began. . . . Monsieur was far from satisfied. He was not satisfied at all. Au contraire, he was highly mortified, horrified, scorified, and vilified. Germany was not Alsace, mais non! And Fortress Ehrenbreitstein—a prison for disorderly German soldiers! It is as tho France were to take a brick from Fort Leavenworth and consider it representative of Chicago! One gathered that a stone from Germany was worse than no stone at all, and that Monsieur's idea of using such a stone to best advantage would be to drop it from a great height—on some German.

Ignorant as I am of the diplomatic manner of settling these things, I confess I don't know which way to turn, except to toss the whole mess into your more experienced hands. Please, Mr. Linemaster, in the interest of peaceful international relations, search for a way out of this difficulty before brother takes up arms against brother, nations totter and crumble, worlds reel and shudder, and Alsatians start throwing German rocks back across the Rhine.

Pvt. Cholly.

[Tell him the Tower also has a stone from Notre Dame de Paris, and that the rocks from Ehrenbreitstein are prisoners captured in World War I.]

THE DEADLY DRIVER.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

In Africa the driver ant
Is rated as predominant;
Altho in size he ranks the least
Among the tribes of bird and beast,
And by himself he's far from strong.
When millions like him march along,
Then every one they overrun
Soon finds himself a skeleton!
The moral is: Forget your pride,
Sometimes it's smart to step aside;
Or if you're bored with life today,
Insist upon the right of way!

M. M. asks: "Please advise me what happens to the pay of a soldier who has not been paid for three or four months because of being on the front lines, and who is killed without drawing this pay. Does it go to the beneficiary? What is gratuity pay and how is it paid?"

Arrears in pay go to the beneficiary designated by the service man at the same time that settlement is made of the gratuity pay. Gratuity pay is six months' pay which is paid to a widow or child if any, or paid to any other dependent relative previously designated by the deceased. If there is no widow, child, or previously designated dependent relative, it may be paid to any grandchild, parent, sister, brother, or grandparent shown to have been dependent on the deceased prior to his death. The determination of "dependency" is vested in the secretary of war or navy or a designated subordinate, and that determination shall be final. When the decedent has failed to designate a beneficiary, the emergency addressee is contacted for information and names of relatives who may qualify to receive payment. When no one has been designated as beneficiary, excepting the case of a widow or child, the war or navy department may require proof of dependency.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RELAX AND REST WHEN FATIGUE PERSISTS.

SCORES of illnesses are induced by fatigue. Insofar as the body is concerned, the effect is that of lowered resistance. The individual has been overtired perhaps for several weeks, when suddenly, without warning, a weak spot—hitherto undiscovered—will present itself. Then it is that the symptons of a systemic disorder will blossom.

As a rule, most of us are able to recognize early signs. We do not have quite the same zest for work or play; we cannot think clearly; and, even tho our muscles are efficient, we may be psychologically or nervously worn out. The chap who makes long cross-country trips, driving in excess of 500 miles per day, may pride himself on his ability to accept punishment. But he becomes thereby a ready subject for almost any kind of breakdown.

I saw just such a case this last summer. A big, strong, he-man, journeying to a Rocky mountain resort, wakened one morning with abdominal distress. Several hundred miles lay between him and his destination. Nevertheless, he ignored the "childish" manifestation—pain—and continued on his way. He arrived with a ruptured peptic ulcer.

Nature can be pushed only so far and few of us realize that, beyond the power of the muscles to perform, lie the nerves. Many a person, unable to detect an abysmal sense of weariness, will keep going. The muscular fibers have tried to sound a warning, but the owner has failed to heed. He carries on as long as he can—at the expense of his nervous system. A sharp rise in blood pressure ensues and, sooner or later, sleeplessness becomes routine.

The cause, however, is not always overwork. Infection can injure or destroy vital cells about as readily as the batteries of life can be run down. The job of finding the location of growing germs may be difficult but, if the sedimentation rate is increased, we can then reason correctly that there is trouble somewhere and that more repose is in order.

Treatment is not merely a matter of going to bed. That will take care of physical depletion, provided all vital organs are at par. Relaxation, which can only be accomplished with natural sleep or placing the body in a position to reaccumulate stores of energy, is essential.

Instead of employing benzedrine, which will banish weariness, sedatives or quieting remedies are needed. These sufferers are usually the people who consult physicians asking for tonics or "boosters." Furthermore, they are the group who consume vitamins in the hope that these preparations will permit them to burn life's candle a little brighter. Only after spending several weeks recuperating, can we understand the tediousness of the road back to well being.

There is a vast difference between real recreation and rest, and the type that is practiced. We can only explain the higher accident rate on Monday, the first working day of the week, by the fact that Saturday and Sunday have been productive of greater exhaustion than normal.

The Bird Who Was Different.

One of the nicer tales of the war, rapidly becoming a legend, concerns a young army flyer who had been sent to California for final training. He took off on a high altitude flight one morning and was having an ecstatic time of it high above the clouds until he realized suddenly he had lost his bearings. Above him was a copper sun. Below him was an illimitable, unbroken floor of clouds. Not even a mountain peak broke this beautiful waste. Futilely, as the needles on his gas meters moved closer and closer to "Empty," he raced on and on, seeking an opening, and finally, just as the needles gave their last gyration, a rift appeared. He went thru it.

He found himself high above the Pacific ocean. On all its bland expanse he saw only one object, an aircraft carrier. He had never landed on a carrier; army flyers rarely do. But he did, safely and beautifully. If the navy was surprised to see this strangely plumaged bird, it masked it well and welcomed him aboard.

The navy then informed the young army flyer it was very sorry, but the ship had its orders. It was proceeding straight across the Pacific to battle, and he would have to go with it. He did, and in the course of time learned to fly off the carrier, piloted a navy plane in battle, and emerged with three Jap planes to his credit. And, in time, he returned to the United States. The army promptly charged him with being absent eight months without leave, but said everything would be all right if he went back to California and finished his flight training.

The episode calls to mind Leonard Dubkin's account in "The Murmur of Wings" of three gulls he once saw fly in from the lake over the Chicago river. Suddenly a pigeon darted out of nowhere and began to fly with them. The gulls wheeled effortlessly in the air, cutting beautiful downward swoops, and the pigeon wheeled with them. The gulls soared and glided, and the pigeon soared and glided with them. Then the gulls swooped down to the water, settled on it, and floated. The pigeon swooped down to the water, settled on it, and sank.

The Vanishing Point.

Rep. Everett Dirksen of Illinois arose wistfully in congress the other day. "Sometimes," he began, "I feel a good deal like the lady who went to the governor of Tennessee and said, 'Governor, I would like to get my husband out of prison.'

"The governor said: 'What is he in there for?'

"She said: 'For stealing a ham.'

"The governor said: 'Has he been a good husband?'

"She said: 'No.'

"'Do you have a family?'

"'Yes, I have a family of nine children.'

"'Does he support you and take care of you?'

"'No, Governor, he is just no good.'

"'What did you say he is in prison for?'

"'He is in there for stealing a ham.'

"The governor then asked: 'Why do you want to get him out of prison if he is no good?'

"She replied: 'Governor, to be frank with you, we are out of ham again.'

"I am just alarmed," Rep. Dirksen said in conclusion, "that one of these days we may be out of ham."

"LIBERALS" AND FREE SPEECH.

North Cohocton, N. Y., Feb. 20.—In the Feb. 12 issue of the New Republic [page 218] is a rather startling article headed "Is Radio Going Liberal?"

This article—authored by Emil Corwin and Alan Reitman—boasts that news commentators of right wing conservative persuasion are being thrown out on their ears, apparently as the result of a definite campaign to this end. The article refers specifically to Henry J. Taylor, Upton Close, and the late Boake Carter, and boasts that on the Blue network Close has been replaced by one "William Gailmor" [a confessed automobile thief]. This bird's noisome background is eloquently described by John T. Flynn.

If I seem in any sense to exaggerate the sinister character of the information set forth in "Is Radio Going Liberal?" please observe the following excerpt: "Close and Taylor were not dismissed solely because they lost popularity. Their discharge stemmed from the recognition of labor's political arm, the power and influence generated by the CIO political action committee. . . . Inasmuch as radio opposed the PAC and its aims, it was forced to agree with labor's leaders that labor had come of age."

This is typical of the whole article. Left wingers have always shown a disposition to be morbidly sensitive against anything that could be represented as a suppression of their particular brand of free speech. This unashamed boast that Taylor and Close have been suppressed speaks for itself. It is clear from the article that Fulton Lewis Jr. is to be the next "objectionable" commentator to be thrown out on his ear.

Is nothing to be done about this campaign?

EXPLANATION.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Just a line to tell you that the mystery of the empty footlocker [which I wrote you about Feb. 3] has been solved. The soldier is home. He said he had the contents, which I thought missing, all censored, and stamped. Then he was sent to a hospital in the states and was ordered to put the things in a barracks bag which would be sent to the hospital. So the footlocker was just sent on empty—but not stamped empty. Close examination, however, shows an "X" on the paper listing the contents.

I have been to the Roseland postoffice and told them. They were nice about everything.

A DEAD SOLDIER IS BILLED.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Our only son, Sgt. Alvin B. Hecht Jr., was killed in a bomb explosion in Deenthorpe, England, on June 12, 1944. We received a letter from the government's general accounting office dated Dec. 15, 1944, charging my son, among other things, $1 for "laundry and dry cleaning operation." I wish to protest against the practice of our government exacting the last ounce of blood from a soldier who has given his life for his country.

Our government can give billions of dollars to England and Russia and they do not have to pay it back, but the poor common soldiers who are dying and giving their life's blood must pay their government for having their clothes cleaned. Not that the measly dollar will make or break me. But to think that we have to buy bonds and our soldiers have to buy bonds and have our money given to other countries that do not appreciate what we are doing for them is galling. Is not the laundry equipment bought with the war bond money?

Our commander in chief, that "great humanitarian," ought to hang his head in shame to allow such a practice as that in our army. And he has the gall to ask that the senate repeal the Johnson act so that he can give more of our money away. It is about time we called a halt to his ambition to give away all our resources and the lives of our boys.

MR. HOOVER IGNORED POLITICS.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 19.—In reading the many columns of report and comment on the Jesse Jones-Henry Wallace political burlesque in Washington, I have several times seen it stated that "Jesse Jones had been with RFC since 1933," the inference being that he came in with the Roosevelt administration, which is contrary to fact. The RFC was established by the preceding Republican administration; and Herbert Hoover, the Republican President, according to his custom of choosing the most efficient man available for an important post, appointed the Texas Democrat, Jesse Jones, as a member of the RFC board, the chairman of which was former Sen. Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, also a Democrat.

Mr. Roosevelt's tribute to the efficiency of Mr. Jones in the conduct of his office, and his assurance that the Texan's removal was occasioned solely by the necessity of paying a political debt to Mr. Wallace, must have been interesting reading for Mr. Hoover.

Divert Rail Cars

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—Rep. Mundt [R., S. D.] said today he was advised that additional railway cars will be diverted "at once" to the midwest corn belt area to aid movement of millions of bushels of corn threatened with spoilage. Mundt said J. C. Winter, chief of the war food administration's transportation-conservation division, informed him that 1,000 additional cars will be in daily use in the congested area. "Elevators are jammed and many millions of bushels of corn lie unprotected on farms in Iowa, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and Nebraska," Mundt said.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 23 [Special].—The New Deal's planned economy was blamed today for giving Nebraska the worst "ear ache" in its history.

Seventy-two million bushels of corn are piled up in fields thruout the state. Valued at 72 million dollars, the harvested ears are in danger of spoilage unless they are moved into cribs.

Originally the corn amounted to 100 million bushels, nearly one-third of a record corn crop of 330 million bushels. As a result of an emergency save-the-corn campaign launched Feb. 11 by newspapers and farm organizations, 28 million of the imperiled 100 million bushels have been moved into cribs.

New Deal Bungling.

This year's unprecedented surplus is laid chiefly to the disgust of farmers with the New Deal's bungling of the farm program and their decision not to gamble with hogs.

A. E. Anderson of Lincoln, state-federal crop statistician, put the situation thus:

"The hogs that we didn't raise would have consumed about 50 million bushels of corn."

Anderson said the hog population of the state on Jan. 1, 1945, was 2,727,000, a decrease of 1,743,000, or 39 per cent from the 4,470,000 hogs on record Jan. 1, 1944.

More and More Hogs.

Indignant farmers explain that last year they were asked by the New Deal to raise hogs and more hogs. That they did. When marketing time came the markets were flooded with hogs, prices broke, and embargoes were set to keep the farmers from shipping any more. Consequently, the farmers had to keep their fattened hogs at home for weeks, feeding them without getting any profitable poundage for their trouble. When the embargoes were lifted sufficiently to let them ship their hogs, they discovered that following the New Deal's orders had cost them money.

The 72 million bushels of corn in the fields must be removed to cribs by March 15. Its moisture content is so high that the arrival of spring rains or mild weather will cause the ears to sprout.

Thousands Help.

Thousands of Nebraskans have pitched in to save the corn. They have helped build emergency cribs, husk the corn, and put it in storage.

Students, Boy Scouts, and members of civic and fraternal organizations registered for the work. Railroads and other industries provided equipment and materials. Military installations sent soldiers to help. Newspapers called for recruits, explained how cribs are constructed, and kept farmers informed on available materials.

HEIR TO $100,000 RESUMES BEAT AS POLICEMAN

Henry O. Larson, "the cop on the beat" in 1942 when Mrs. Florine C. Mix, 1112 E. 48th st., died and willed him $100,000 and her luxurious home, returned as a patrolman at Hyde Park station yesterday after a two-year absence.

Henry O. Larson.

Larson, who served 16 months as a navy shore patrolman until he was honorably discharged a year ago, was rewarded by Mrs. Mix because his mother had done the family washing and from the age of 12 he had run errands for the wealthy woman.

He reported for work in his old uniform and wearing his old star, but he twirled a shiny new hickory night stick. Weary of talking about his wealth, he told his comrades he did not want to go into business.

"Besides," he said, "I always liked being a cop."

BRIDE EXPECTS LT. VRACIU, ACE OF NAVY, SOON

Lt. Alex Vraciu, navy ace with 39 enemy planes to his credit who was shot down over Luzon Island in the Philippines on Dec. 14, is back in the United States and is expected to rejoin his bride of seven months, Mrs. Kathryn Horn Vraciu, 1604 E. 142d st., East Chicago, in a few days. Mrs. Vraciu said yesterday that she received a telephone call Wednesday night and two telegrams yesterday, but that her husband did not indicate how soon he would be home. She said he had been ordered to Washington.

$150 to Buy Cigarets for Veterans Is Stolen

Stanley Wilenski reported to police yesterday the theft of $150 from his tavern at 7909 Exchange av. He said the money had been donated by cutomers to buy cigarets for soldiers overseas.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. G. L. Devereaux, Mundelein, Ill.]

THE QUESTION.

What would you do if you were alone and had a flat tire on a country road miles from a filling station?

WHERE ASKED.

American Airlines building.

THE ANSWERS.

Frances Hurt, 1618 Wesley av., Berwyn—A good thing to do, especially in these times when tires are so old, would be to carry a bicycle in the back seat. I know I couldn't change a tire. In peace times I'd probably ride to a filling station with a flat, but under the present circumstances I'd have to wait for help.

Mary Rose Noel, publicity representative, 4837 N. Christiana—If the incident occurred in the evening and I had on a pair of low heeled, comfortable shoes, I'd lock the car. Then I'd start out on an unexpected hike to the nearest highway and wail like a banshee. If that didn't work I'd give up driving.

Lucille Wilson, secretary, 6254 Harper av.—I think I'd lock the car and start walking — probably in the wrong direction—but until I came to a farmhouse where I could call for help. If any cars came by in the meantime I'd try to flag them down. I've never fixed a flat tire in my life, but I've met a lot of them.

Barbara Larson, secretary, 1046 Lake Shore dr.—I would hail the first car that went by, naturally. At night I'd be afraid to ask a stranger for help so the logical thing to do would be to get inside the car, lock it, and sleep 'til morning. I suppose I could try to fix it myself, but I wouldn't know where to begin.

Mary Jo Savery, stenographer, 1260 N. Dearborn st. — I wouldn't wait for help or start walking. I'd try changing it myself. It may be a difficult process, but it would keep my mind occupied. If I finally got the tire off and another on, I'd pray that it stayed on until I could have some one check it.

Carol McCormack, personnel interviewer, 5822 Wayne av.—Over a period of the last 10 years I've had about a half dozen flats. The first few times I found myself helpless. "Changing a tire may be a good thing to know," I concluded, and learned how. Of course I would never admit I knew how if there were a man around.

VOTE TO INDICT LAWYER, SLEUTH IN CASE OF GIRL

Carl Burnstein, 33, an attorney, and Raymond D. Reinsch, 31, a private investigator, yesterday were reported named in a true bill charging them with contribtuing to the delinquency of a minor. The charges grew out of an alleged rape of a 16 year old girl Feb. 5.

Earlier in the day the two men appeared before Judge Francis Borrelli in Felony court on a charge of rape, but the case was continued until March 8. Contributing to delinquency is a misdemeanor and rape is a felony.

Jean Howard and Wilma Jayne Bogle, both 20, in whose apartment at 2709 Washington blvd. the men are alleged to have met the 16 year old girl, are scheduled to appear in Women's court on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Paris O. K.'s Lend-Lease; Will Get 2 for 1 from U. S.

PARIS, Feb. 23 (AP).—The cabinet approved today a lend-lease agreement recently negotiated in Washington, D. C. Its terms have not been made public, but are understood to call for roughly 2 billion dollars in United States raw materials, armament, and machinery. France in turn would supply about 1 billion dollars in goods.

SEN. VANDENBERG TO AIR VIEWS ON U.S. CONTROLS

Heads America United Forum Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] will speak on the broadcast of America United at 12:15 p. m. tomorrow over WMAQ-NBC on the subject "Lifting Government Controls." Others contributing to the discussion will be Emerson Schmidt of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Phil Pearl, American Federation of Labor, and Albert S. Goss, National Grange.

A broadcast direct from a United State navy hospital ship lying off Iwo Island, where American marines are engaged in combat with the Japanese, may be heard by listeners between 6:30 and 7 o'clock tonight. Larry Tighe, war correspondent, will interview men wounded in the fight for the tiny island on the road to Tokyo. This feature will be shortwaved to the United States and cut into the regular broadcast of Meet Your Navy.

John Raitt, singing star of the "Oklahoma" company which played Chicago, is in New York to begin rehearsals for the musical version of Molnar's "Liliom," to be billed as "Carousal." Raitt will come to Chicago each Sunday to continue as the singing star of the World Parade at 2 p. m. on NBC.

Kay Kyser has lost another star pupil from his Kollege of Musical Knowledge. Mervyn Bogue [Ish Kabibble] has received the call from the navy. Harry Babbitt, singer, was called into the service, and Sully Mason, comedy singer, is starting out with a band of his own.

W-G-N-Mutual are planning special programs in connection with the observance of 1945 Red Cross Radio day next Wednesday. Programs will include appeals for the Red Cross. A broadcast from International Red Cross headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, is planned, and there will be special short wave pickups from Guam, the Philippines, Paris and China.

TWO MOTHERS ARRAIGNED FOR CHILD NEGLECT

Two women were arraigned before Judge George B. Weiss yesterday in Domestic Relations court on charges of contributing to the dependency of their children. One case was continued to await the serving of an adultery warrant; in the other case the mother was granted a year's probation and warned not to bounce her baby around as if it were a baseball.

Mrs. Lucille Stasiak, 27, arrested Wednesday after leaving three children in a Y. M. C. A. hotel room at 826 S. Wabash av., told Judge Weiss she had gone out to seek work. A warrant charging adultery was issued against Earl Gorman, who, she said, was the father of her 2 month old child. The case was continued until March 7.

Mrs. Jean Cermak, 24, of 1312 N. Dearborn st., was told to take better care of her year old child and was put on probation. She was arrested when she failed to pay Mrs. Dorothy Andrea, 2734 Van Buren st., for care of the baby while she looked for work.

Fuel and Power Savings Rules Tightened at Fort

Fuel and power saving measures have been reëmphasized at Fort Sheridan, Col. George H. Cushman, post commander, said yesterday, to keep the military post in line with conservation measures established by War Mobilization Director Byrnes. Buildings are heated below established limits, ventilation is restricted, and fires are banked, Cushman said. Furnace firing schools also have been established to train enlisted men and prisoners of war in conservation methods. Fuel conservation officers have been appointed for each post unit.

CURFEW CODE READY TODAY, CHICAGO WMC IS NOTIFIED BY CHIEF

Operation of the curfew which will ring at midnight Monday in Chicago night clubs, bars, other specified amusement places, and "similar enterprises," will be explained in instructions expected to be released from Washington, D. C., this afternoon.

William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, attending a conference in the capital, sent this message last night to his Chicago office. His office had been flooded with inquiries about the curfew, and its effect upon bingo parties, lodge meetings, and the desire of swing shift war workers to obtain recreation.

Reservations were heavy yesterday for week-end shows in Chicago night spots, preparing for a "final fling." Mayor LaGuardia said in New York last night that amusement places there may operate on present closing hour schedules until he announces the curfew.

Legionnaires to Hear French Patriot Leader

Louis Dolivet, former member of the French underground and now international editor of Free World magazine, will address Advertising Men's post, No. 38, of the American Legion at the club's luncheon meeting Monday in Hotel Sherman.

STATE POST-WAR PLANNERS SHUN 'CON CON' PLEA

The Illinois post-war planning commission, at a meeting in Chicago yesterday, voted against addressing to the state legislature any recommendation for the calling of a constitutional convention. Some of the members said they believed the matter was sufficiently covered in Gov. Green's inaugural address. A report of the commission's committee on agriculture was approved at the meeting. It recommended a program of farm to market roads, better rural school facilities, and the setting up of machinery to help farmers get crushed limestone to be used as fertilizer. Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, is chairman of the committee.

250 PRISONERS, ONE A KIDNAPER, SEEK PAROLES

Rudolph Pisani, serving a 25 year sentence in Joliet prison for the kidnaping and torture of a Toledo, O., clothing merchant in 1934, will be among 250 prisoners appearing at parole hearings Tuesday at the Joliet, Stateville, Menard, and Pontiac divisions of the Illinois State penitentiary.

Pisani was required to serve one-third of his sentence before applying for parole. A previous application for parole in 1940 was refused by the state board of pardons and paroles.

Wife of Army Captain Beaten in Rape Attempt

A 24 year old married woman told police she was held a prisoner for three hours and beaten severely early yesterday by two young men who kidnaped her on her way home from a swing shift job in the Bendix Aviation corporation plant at 505 N. Sacramento blvd. The woman, wife of an army captain overseas, said both men attempted to rape her in their automobile, parked near Jackson blvd. and Washtenaw av., before tearful entreaties won her release.

NEW CLEW LINKS FUGITIVE TO TWO DEATHS IN TUBS

A definite clew linking the mysterious bathtub deaths of a woman in New Orleans, La., and another in Chicago was disclosed yesterday by Lt. Phil Breitzke, head of the police homicide bureau.

Breitzke said he had learned that Joseph Medley, 43, an escaped convict, had been employed here in 1922 by a man named D. J. Stafford, and that Medley had lived at 4611 Hazel st. A man using that name and address registered for the room in which Miss Laura Fischer, 28, of New York, was found dead in a New Orleans hotel Christmas eve.

Picture Identified by Five.

A picture of Medley, who escaped from the southern Michigan prison at Jackson on Nov. 27, was identified Thursday night by five persons as that of the man who had rented the room in the Atlantic hotel, in which Mrs. Blanche Zimmerman, 38, was found dead last Saturday.

Both women were found under identical circumstances, lying nude and partially immersed in bathtubs. Cause of death has not been determined in either case. Coroner A. L. Brodie said preliminary tests in the death of Mrs. Zimmerman failed to disclose evidence of any of the more common poisons.

Breitzke requested Michigan prison authorities to send a copy of Medley's handwriting for comparison with that appearing on the two hotel registers. Police were also calling at railroad and bus offices in an effort to learn where he may have fled.

Called Three Time Loser.

Medley was described by police as a desperate criminal and a "three time loser," meaning his recapture, irrespective of the women's deaths, would result in life imprisonment. He was first arrested in 1927 and was sentenced to four to five years in Arkansas state penitentiary for obtaining money under false pretenses.

He was again arrested in 1929 and received a similar sentence for larceny by conversion in Michigan. He escaped while serving a 30 to 60 year term for the kidnaping and robbery of Louis E. Brooks, wealthy Marshall, Mich., manufacturer.

Girl Wed at 13

Sheldon, Mo., Feb. 23 (AP).—Mary Lou Houdeshell, described by her husband, Ralph Houdeshell, as "almost 14," and "the most beautiful thing in the world," has traded her school books for a cook book.

She'll have an appreciative family for her first efforts, for Houdeshell is the father of 11 children by a previous marriage. Five of the young ones were schoolmates of Mary Lou before her marriage Saturday.

"I will try to provide a good home for the children and take care of them as best I can," Mary Lou said.

The two were married at Girard, Kas., and gave their ages as 30 and 17. The bride's mother, Mrs. Maude Brown, consented to the wedding.

HARVARD PROF ADVISES POLES: YIELD TO REDS

Post-war Poland will be happier if it accepts the Curzon line giving eastern provinces to Russia and cultivates friendship with the soviets, Prof. Samuel Hazzard Cross, chairman of Slavic language and literature at Harvard university, said last night.

Except in certain cities, Prof. Cross said, the Poles do not constitute a majority of the populations in the affected provinces. The claims are to some extent based on history, he said, and such claims are not always the best. The Poles captured Moscow in the 17th century, so, historically, they might try to claim Moscow, he said. He praised Poland for its cultural gifts to the world.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The British ministry of aircraft production factory at Coventry has been leased to its present occupants, Standard Motor company, for post-war production of automobiles and allied products, it was announced today.

SPEAKER PULLS NO PAUNCHES: GIRLS TOO FAT!

Girls, you're getting too fat!

Such was the lament addressed yesterday to women, young and not so young, by Mrs. Thomas K. Cureton, physical education instructor at the University of Illinois. She spoke at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. before a group of women physical education teachers from 15 Y. M. C. A.'s, where women nowadays are permitted. Mrs. Cureton was positive in her views. She didn't pull any paunches.

The trouble with most girls from 20 up to 50, she said, is that they don't engage in physical setting-up exercises or health programs. They should exercise more, she said. But they don't, she added—and the fat piles on and on.

Where They Become Fat.

Mrs. Cureton estimated that the average woman has about one inch of fat all over. Getting specific, she said the girls get fat in six places—the cheeks, back of the arms, thighs, abdomen, hips, and "the back of the lap."

The University of Illinois teacher categorized women into three physical types. First, she said, is the ectomorph—tall and slender, who does brain work because she isn't physically strong. Second is the mesemorph—the short, square, and heavily muscled lady who is brave as all get out.

Soft, Fat, and Lazy Types.

Third, there is the endomorph—soft, fat, and lazy, who just loves to eat. She has a dandy disposition, but, alas, the lowest life expectancy.

"The average adult man," she said, "is just as fat as the average woman, but the average man gets fat in different places. If men had to wear clothes that fit them as closely as do women's clothes a lot more men would wear girdles, too."

All-important

Los Angeles Long Beach

Long before Pearl Harbor, the Los Angeles and Long Beach area was a major factor in world enterprise.

The war has vastly speeded up this tempo.

Today, war demands much of this important area and the Santa Fe.

Santa Fe, located on the "Route to Tokyo," has increased its facilities to handle the great wartime load.

New tracks, new Diesel freight power, new Centralized Traffic Control Systems (to enable the same trackage to handle a 50 per cent greater load), and bigger switching yards are part of this Santa Fe operation.

Naturally, a great part of this expansion for faster service applies to this vast community.

VILLAGE GROUP VOTES TO FIGHT TRACTION PLAN

Spokesmen See Threat to Home Rule.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Contending that the metropolitan district transit plan sponsored by Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green would take away from the suburbs all control of their own local transportation, representatives of some 15 Cook county villages voted yesterday to form an organization to fight the plan or any other scheme that would take away their home rule over transit.

The representatives met in the offices of the Illinois Commerce Commission on call of Louis Ancel, attorney for Maywood, and William R. Morgan, counsel for the Citizens Transportation association, who have before the commission a petition for the establishment of a comprehensive traction district taking in all or parts of five counties.

Hold Chicago in Decline.

John F. Tyrrell, traction counsel for Oak Park, said that the suburban area was growing, while Chicago "is going into a decline," and that the suburbs would be unwise to tie up to any plan that made the city dominant over the villages and rural areas.

He predicted that when a west side super-highway is built, from 25,000 to 50,000 persons will move out of the city.

In explaining the outlined Kelly-Green plan, Morgan said "the sky would be the limit" for city dominance.

The transportation problem, he said, was a state and not a city problem, and should be under state control. He added that it was admitted no privately owned unification of the elevated and surface lines and other transit agencies could get enough capital to modernize the systems.

Term Setup Inadequate.

He indicated a belief that city ownership of a company financing itself without tax backing would not be effective, and said that the Kelly-Green setup would likewise be inadequate.

"The suburbs would wait for years to get any improvement in transportation," he asserted, "if the municipal plan as so far disclosed goes into effect."

The conferees were equally critical of the privately owned unified surface-elevated plan being pushed in the federal District court of Judge Michael L. Igoe, which would put the suburbs under rule of a city transit board. O. D. Buckles, Evanston corporation counsel, said any such restraint was wrong and not advantageous to the suburbs.

Among the suburbs represented were Elmhurst, Summit, Lincolnwood, Forest Park, Park Ridge, Wilmette, Wheaton, La Grange, and Winnetka.

In Judge Igoe's court yesterday afternoon William H. Sexton, special counsel for the city, asked and received permission to file the Kelly-Green plan with the court next Wednesday, after the council acts on it—probably on Tuesday.

ALEXEI TOLSTOY, SOVIET AUTHOR, IS DEAD AT 63

LONDON, Feb. 23 (AP).—Alexei Nikolaevic Tolstoy, 63, Russian author, who fought the Reds in the 1917 revolution, but later embraced soviet ideals so fervently he was described as a "burning patriot," died tonight, Moscow announced "sorrowfully."

Tolstoy had been treated with penicillin donated by the American military commission in Moscow. He was distantly related to Count Leo Tolstoy, most famous of Russian authors, and was by birth a nobleman, altho he had disavowed the title of count for years.

He was president of the Union of Soviet Writers and a member of a special soviet commission established to verify a record of "the crimes of the German fascist invaders and their accomplices." His "Peter the Great" was acclaimed as the greatest Russian novel since the revolution.

Poetry's Aids to Confer on Benefit Plans

BY JUDITH CASS.

A SMALL group of literary-minded Chicagoans will gather at 3 p. m. today in the State pkwy. apartment of Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell to complete plans for the third annual series of modern arts lectures to benefit Poetry magazine. New in this year's series will be two lectures planned especially to interest young persons, a talk, "Reflections on the History of Jazz," to be given March 17 by Don Hayakawa of the faculty of the Illinois Institute of Technology and one by Sally Benson April 14 entitled "I Could Write a Book." Miss Benson is author of "Junior Miss" and "Meet Me in St. Louis."

All the lectures will be given at 11 a. m. on Saturdays in the Arts club, beginning next Saturday, when Francis Chapin will speak on "An Artist Paints." The third in the series of four will be given March 31 by Robert Penn Warren on "Contemporary Poetry."

Poetry magazine, a Chicago institution, was founded in 1912 by the late Miss Harriet Monroe, who gave up her own career to assist other poets. It now garners its contributions largely from men in service. The publication claims as its own discovery Sgt. Karl Shapiro, stationed in the southwest Pacific with an army portable surgical hospital, whose poems have been hailed as among the finest of this war. Lt. William J. Smith and Lt. James Schevill are among contributing Chicago service men.

In the absence of the editor, George Dillon, a serg ant with the army signal corps serving in Paris, Peter de Vries is dividing his time between Chicago, as acting editor of Poetry, and New York, as a member of the New Yorker staff. Mr. de Vries' wife, who writes under her maiden name, Katinka Loeser, is secretary of the lecture committee. She and Mr. de Vries became the parents of a daughter, Jan, born Jan. 9 in New York.

Mrs. Augustine Bowe is committee chairman, and among those who will confer with her today will be Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett, Mrs. Morton Bodfish, Mrs. Gustave Carus, Mrs. Margaret Pope Hovey, Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, Mrs. William B. Hale, Miss Edith Wyatt, and Mrs. Solomon A. Smith. The treasurer, Arthur Meeker Jr., is in California. Junior committee members include the Misses Ginger Elwood, Joan Van Buren, Josephine Swift, Elizabeth Jeffries, Nancy Krupp, and Patty Lannan.

Engagement News.

Mrs. Neil Callen Ward of E. Delaware pl. and New York announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Ann, to Raymond James Linder of New York, son of Hilary Francis Linder and the late Mrs. Linder of Memphis, Tenn. Miss Ward, whose father was a noted chemist and inventor, is a graduate of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Lake Forest, and of Radcliffe college. She has been assistant editor and fashion director of a national magazine for the last two years.

Mr. Linder attended the University of Notre Dame and the University of Texas, at which he studied law. He is engaged in war work. The wedding will take place April 2 in Our Lady's chapel in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York.

Today's Events.

Board members of the Chicago Vassar club will be hostesses to both the Chicago and North Shore Vassar clubs and other Vassar alumnae at a tea at 3 p. m. today in the Cordon club to meet Miss Jean Faricy, the newest and youngest alumnae staff member. Miss Faricy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Faricy of Evanston, will serve as liaison officer between the Alumnae association and prospective Vassar students.

The Chicago Mount Holyoke club will observe the birthday of Miss Mary Lyon, who founded the college more than 100 years ago, at a luncheon at 1 p. m. today in Huyler's restaurant, 308 S. Michigan av.

Members of the Alliance Francaise will gather in the Casino club for a luncheon at 1 p. m. today for 31 year old Prince Youtevong Sisowath of Cambodia, Indo-China, and Jacques Marquette, official conferencier of the Alliance, who will speak before the group this morning in the Alliance headquarters.

Members of the Knollwood club will turn out in force for a dinner-dance tonight, lured by the magic words on the invitations that there will be cigarets and Scotch in addition to a lobster-capon dinner with trimmings. Dinner will be served at 8.

Members of the Indian Hill club will hold their last dinner-dance until spring tonight. The club house which will close Thursday for annual repairs, will reopen again in April.

Birth News.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Collins Jr. [Louise Neff] are being congratulated on the birth of their third daughter Thursday in Passavant hospital. The baby will be named Kathleen for her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Nettleton Neff.

Miss Betty Lou Olson.

Miss Betty Lou Olson's engagement to Lt. Robert Hall Bukowski of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter I. Bukowski of Northwest Circle av., is announced by her mother, Mrs. Barney Olson of N. Natoma av. Miss Olson attended North Park college. Her fiance attended Northwestern university and is stationed at Fort Devens, Mass.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

It Takes Time.

First of all some one called to say the engagement of So-and-So was to be announced and could we run a picture in THE TRIBUNE? I explained this wasn't in my department, but we'd see what could be done—and this took time. Then some one called to say Lt. So-and-So would be in Chicago just one evening, wanted to take his girl to the theater but no tickets were available—and I said we'd see what could be done—and this took time.

And then, all of a sudden, the windows of Tribune tower looked out on a curtain of thick blackness and some one suggested the world might be coming to an end, so we decided to take a poll in the office that noon to see which ones were "in favor of the world coming to an end." The office force was divided. The tall, trim girl, looking forward to a blind date, said positively, "No." The girl with the soft, musical voice said "Yes." She wanted a "world of sunlight for a change." The owlish gentleman who sauntered by, when asked if he would like the world to end, countered, "Well, hasn't it?"

More Time.

Lunch, and you very well know that takes time, then back to the desk to work on the mail. On top of the pile a letter from a sergeant in Luxembourg, inclosing a money order for a "surprise" valentine to be sent to his wife with "yours forever" written on the card. [And St. Valentine's day well past a week before the overseas letter arrived!]. So, more time was consumed arranging for the "surprise" and at least a few minutes spent swallowing an obstinate lump in the throat.

There were other letters, several calling gleeful attention to a recent error in pronouns [alas, alack] . . . a note from our favorite feminine financier Chicago-bound for a short visit . . . a number of contributions . . . a phone call from a receptionist whose young son couldn't pass the navy's color blindness test—and was there anything to be done about it? [Referred to our Friend of the Yanks department] . . . still another telephone call—Mr. What-was-his-name would be at the Drake that afternoon if a reporter cared to interview him. [And how did that call get on my extension?]. Anyway, I tapped out a memorandum in my very best typing and took it in to the city editor who said, "Thank you," and I said "Thank you"—and that took time.

What Other Kind.

More calls—a man seeking the address of a handwriting analyst—he'd like to learn about his gal's disposition, h-hmm. And, several persons called in regard to alarm clocks [and where to get them] so the last half of the column was written between telephone jangles.

Riding home on the 5:28 quite seriously I recounted my disrupted day to a neighbor—my zany day when nothing happened as expected and nothing was accomplished as anticipated. I wondered shyly if he ever had days like that.

"I didn't know there was any other kind!" he answered.

D. R. McLennan Weds Brother's Widow Today

A wedding in New York today that is of particular interest here is that of Mrs. Margaretta Purves McLennan and Lt. Comdr. Donald R. McLennan Jr. of the naval reserve. The ceremony will take place at 4 p. m. in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church. The bride, daughter of George T. Purves of Lawrence, N. Y., is the widow of Comdr. McLennan's brother, the late Lt. G. Noyes McLennan of the marine air forces.

Comdr. McLennan's mother, the senior Mrs. McLennan, and one of his sisters, Mrs. Woodbury S. Ober, who are spending the winter in Mrs. McLennan's Palm Beach home, and another sister, Mrs. John B. Morse of Lake Forest, will be in the small group of relatives present at the wedding and the reception following which Mr. and Mrs. Purves will give in the Ritz Carlton hotel. Comdr. McLennan and his bride will live in Washington, D. C. She is a granddaughter of the late Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Louis E. Benson of Philadelphia, and of the late Rev. Dr. and Mrs. George T. Purves of Princeton, N. J.

In a ceremony at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the Kimbark av. home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Edwards, with whom she has lived for the last two years, Miss Joan Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Briant Edwards of Lebanon, Ind., will become the bride of Sgt. Jack H. Chaille of the army, son of Mrs. Harry Chaille of Indianapolis, Ind. Miss Mary Elizabeth Edwards will be maid of honor for her sister, and Albert Edwards, the bride's brother, will be best man. The bride's young cousins, Bobby and Susan Edwards, will be ringbearer and flower girl. Here for the wedding will be the bridegroom's mother and his two sisters, Helen and Mary Jo; the bride's parents, her uncle and aunt, Gov. and Mrs. Ralph Gates of Indiana, and her grandmother, Mrs. P. A. Edwards.

Sgt. Chaille, who served with a tank destroyer battalion in France, is a patient at Deshon General hospital in Butler, Pa., where he will return at the end of his furlough.

In a ceremony in Detroit today, Miss Helen May Houghton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Houghton of that city, will become the bride of Alexander Somerville, son of Mrs. Helen Somerville of Evanston. Both Miss Houghton and her bridegroom are graduates of Northwestern university. Mr. Somerville will take his bride to Rochester, N. Y., where he is in war work.

The marriage of Miss Shirley Frances Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Alexander Buckley of the Park Lane hotel, formerly of Boston, Mass., to Henry M. Henriksen of River Forest will take place at 4:30 p. m. today in the Drake hotel. Miss Buckley attended Randolph-Macon college and the Katherine Gibbs school in Boston. She and Mr. Henriksen are members of the Figure Skating Club of Chicago and Mr. Henriksen is chairman of the advisory board of the Peacock Camp for Crippled Children.

The marriage of Miss Helen Irene Baughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Baughn of Spokane, Wash., to Sgt. Paul Richard Eckardt of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eckardt of Thorndale av., will take place at 1 p. m. tomorrow in St. Paul's church. After the ceremony the bridegroom's uncle, Paul

On the Record

By Claudia Cassidy

Two New Albums.

New, that is, in that they are among the first rushed into circulation by Columbia when the recording companies capitulated to Petrillo. Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia orchestra scurried out with Beethoven's Symphony No. 7, in A major [M-557; five 12-inch records], and Artur Rodzinski and the New York Philharmonic hurried to market with Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 6, in B minor [M-558; five 12-inch records]. Neither will make history, but both are likely to be popular.

The Beethoven is fresh and clean, expertly played by an expert orchestra in the hands of a good technician. No vaulting imagination gives it the ultimate stature of the work, but at its best it has a rhythmic buoyancy that knows what Wagner meant and why he was right when he called the symphony "the apotheosis of the dance." The recording is smooth and clear, but not all the breaks are ideal. The opening of side 5 makes you wish they would hurry with that spool recording.

Mr. Rodzinski's "Pathétique" is a Saturday night performance, the kind that shoots the works in the crackling march, then tacks on the adagio lamentoso as an afterthought. It is good in its style, except that some of the somber passages growl deep in disgruntled throats. The mechanics of the set are good, and the cutting never leaves you hanging on the edge of a phrase. But my favorite "Pathétique" remains the glorious performance recorded by Wilhelm Furtwängler and the Berlin Philharmonic. It takes six full sides to Rodzinski's five, which will give you an idea of relative approach.

Horowitz-Toscanini Brahms.

Victor has reissued one of its best sellers, the performance by Vladimir Horowitz, Arturo Toscanini, and the NBC Symphony of Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 2, in B flat major [M-740; six 12-inch records]. This is what it always was, an on the fence album. I can only repeat what I wrote of it in 1941: "The recording does not seem to be completely in focus, so that it lacks full resonance and the indefinable surge of continuous performance. Yet it does have incisive brilliance and there are many passages in which the piano glitters with immaculate dynamics. There are passages, too, where both Horowitz and Toscanini expose the living nerves of the music, and the effect is tremendously exciting." I always wished that set was Horowitz at his peak, or that it could be crossed with Schnabel's recording, getting the best of both.

Gowns in Paris Spring Showing Truly Elegant

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Mme. Gres' 1945 spring show has become synonymous with beautifully draped afternoon, evening, hostess, and dressing gowns. These are difficult to wear, however. The mannequins who model them are so graceful that customers have asked for lessons in walking, dancing, lounging, and serving in an easy, elegant manner.

Mme. Gres emphasizes the most important rules for elegance are to select the type of clothes that suits one's personality and to harmonize comportment with the garment chosen.

"Severely man tailored lines of woolen sports suits or slacks call for clean cut movements," she says, "while the long Grecian folds of lame or chiffon gowns require a nonchalant yet studied grace. Length of train, width of skirt, fall of sleeves, and decollete of waist demand different gestures, which contribute as much to elegance as the material, cut, and workmanship.

Rodier's porcelain blue silk jersey is used by Gres to make a hostess gown with intricately draped bust, three-quarter length cape sleeves, finely gathered and fitted waist, and contrasting fullness of floor length skirt.

Yards of drapery form the huge sleeves of another jersey gown in emerald green, trimmed with wide, flowing, pomegranate red sash of the same material.

"Note that these garments," cautioned Mme. Gres, "require well balanced postures and attractive, harmonious movements of neck, arms, hands, waist, thighs, and legs. Arranging flowers, walking downstairs, lounging on couches, pouring coffee—all should be practiced diligently with careful attention to the swirling folds of the gowns.

"The best results are obtained by watching the effect on flounces or drapery when one puts the full weight on the balls of the feet, then jerks the body around or bends the knees to counterbalance curvature of the spine, then straightens up with arms flung high."

Fashion flashes: Huge Chinese red pockets on a sheer white woolen sports coat made by Maggy Rouff are placed diagonally across waist and hips. . . . Multicolored carpet bags have been received by Duevel Leroy, who matches them with cork soled shoes and umbrella covers. . . . J. Adnet has as window display a garden set with a lovely ceramic fountain in grass green and white, as well as iron chairs, tables, and flower stands painted the same cool colors.

Miss Jane Carroll Casey will be married today in Reno, Nev., to Lt. [j. g.] Victor L. Miller of the naval air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Miller of Ness City, Kas. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Casey of Oak Park and was graduated from Rosary college. Lt. Miller, a graduate of the University of Kansas, has been on duty in the Pacific.

Old Navy Blue Again Spring's Favorite Hue

BY REA SEEGER.

It doesn't take a fashion poll to prove that once again a spring season is triumphantly on the navy blue side. It's the annual favorite, bobbing up cheerfully and smartly in every store and in every fashion collection of coats, suits, or dresses. Navy blue dyes have been released even for footgear, bags, and gloves so that matching accessories isn't as difficult as it has been.

The sleek, smart spring coats of navy blue come in a grand variety of models—brief, hip length, knee length, and dress length. Smartest are the swanky short sailor coats with gold medal buttons, next the very brief models that just clear the waistline and have an exaggerated black flare. Loose box coats, for wear over suits, are plentiful, tailored impeccably, and are ideal all-purpose coats. Both junior miss sizes and those for mature women are available in these classic toppers as well as in the three-quarter or knee length coats.

Dress parade coats are examples of quiet elegance. They are dress-up enough to pass critical inspection anywhere, and for the most gala occasion. Some are made of stunning combinations of faille and wool, many have taffeta insets with soft shoulders, all have a semi-fitted silhouette, with a definitely flared skirt to further accentuate the neat, small waistline, and most of them are without a belt. Decorative buttons provide the glitter.

The Solid Jill Knows When to Don Slacks

BY SHEILA DALY.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

on the SOLID Side

Girls have become more and more confused about just what goes in the slacks-for-gals department lately. Several magazines, after extensive "our women and how we like them" polls, have reported that boys like their gals feminine, all froth and frills. And equally authorative magazines report that whether the Joes like slacks or not, girls are wearing almost nothing else. And the problem has even the smoothest honeychiles stumped. So here is the combined opinion of several girls who have given the situation a quick once-over.

When a gal is out cleaning the garage or shoveling the snow off the front sidewalk [and a lot of young things are these days], nothing is more comfortable and practical than a pair of slacks or jeans. And for the nightly work-out with the books, the Saturday stint of housework, for evenings devoted to baby-sitting, doing the family shopping, slacks get the vote again. No one will object if a gal borrows from the boys' wardrobe on the right occasion.

And in spite of the fact that fellows are rumored to like their gals in white ruffles and rosebuds, no boy will mind if his date wears jeans or slacks on a sleigh ride, bike hike, or weiner roast. No considerate Joe will expect his girl to climb over snow drifts or go out gathering firewood in anything less sturdy. And for school—well, that depends on your principal and your principles but most boys vote "strictly no." They also add a note of warning: Make sure your slacks are slack in the right places and carefully pressed at least every other wearing.

When it comes to an ordinary evening date, a coke-and-movie-evening or a school dance, slacks just aren't smart. A fellow doesn't mind his date looking rugged when the other gals are roughing it, too, but for a smooth evening he expects a smooth date. A sharp gal knows when to skip the slacks and make with the frills and feminine charm.

'Private Investigator Maclain'. . . . . By Baynard Kendrick

(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

INSTALMENT XLII.

CORNERED.

They had moved Sybella an hour before. Lying rigid in the bed she'd occupied, with bandages wound tight about his shattered ribs, Maclain lay listening.

Soft soled shoes shuffled along a padded floor. A stretcher rolled noiselessly. The room door opened and the nurse looked in.

"Asleep?"

The captain's fingers moved under the sheet, unwinding the bandage steadily.

The bandage came off. He folded it into a three-foot length and twisted it into a strangler's cord then stretched it out beside him and lay back gingerly.

Doctors wore masks and gowns and looked alike in their white disguise. A man who had killed before had nerve. His nerve would get him a mask and gown, but masked and gowned, he could not hide footsteps. He was quite close now, and the door had closed and he'd stopped inside.

The light would not help him much this time, for Maclain had unscrewed all the bulbs with a kind of awful glee.

The captain lay and listened and his brain worked fast, speeding along with heady, happy clarity. It might be a knife or a bludgeon, or maybe simply smothering.

Three steps nearer, and Maclain had wound his strangler's bandage tight around one hand and slid down the blankets without a sound.

One step nearer, and a hand moved out to locate the head on the pillow. The captain's fingers closed about a wrist with the calm cold strength of a devil fish. In the space of a breath, the strangler's bandage had fallen over the cursing head, and tightened.

"Funny place to come looking for that clipping about your wife and kids, Brownie," said Duncan Maclain. "Did you expect to find it with Sybella or with me?"

Davis and Archer were deep in the middle of an animated rehash when a nurse wheeled the bandaged and taped-up captain into the hospital superintendent's office on the following afternoon.

The captain asked, "What's the idea of having me trundled all over the hospital? Why couldn't you come to my room?"

Davis said, "I brought a record up for you. I thought it might help heal your ribs if I played it on the Ediphone."

Archer squirmed on an office chair. "Some day we're going to have to arrest you for murder, captain. You nearly had that guy strangled to death last night before we could get into your room."

"What did you want me to do? Kiss him?" asked Duncan Maclain.

"How did I know he was a killer?" Archer demanded hotly. "He had on a doctor's mask and gown. He came walking down the hall and suddenly vanished into your room."

"What did you think he was going to wear?" Davis asked.

The captain grinned maliciously. "The sergeant expects his murderers to stay true to type, Larry. You did just right to let him get in, sergeant. That's what I wanted. You and your men kept out of sight as I asked you to. If he'd been suspicious at all he wouldn't have showed up, and you'd have spoiled all my fun."

"God deliver me from your idea of play," said Davis. "I hope nobody ever kicks Schnucke when you're walking down 5th av. And as to your detective methods—some day somebody's going to get you first."

"They all think that. That's what makes life interesting," said Duncan Maclain.

Davis clamped the earphones about the captain's head and started the machine.

"I'd known Rose Gallagher, who went by the name of Troy Singleton, for a long time. Her husband, Martin Gallagher, warned me to keep away from her, threatening to kill me. I'd gotten into a mess in Arkansas. Gallagher, who was on the New York force then, found it out and had me sent away.

"When I got out, Gallagher had gone into the army. Troy was in the money, and I started living with her, altho my wife, Cornelia Brown, is still alive.

"I've always known a lot about guns. Troy had gotten a lot of money out of Jordan. She got me in with him. At my suggestion she offered to get him a good price for his Harper's Ferry pistol by selling it herself to Pine. She'd known Bob Morse when she was check girl at a night club. She borrowed a couple of old New Yorkers from him because they had a lot of dope in them about Pine's guns and also about Pine.

"I got a bad break. Morse had covered a story when my sons were killed. He had shoved it with some clippings in the back of the New Yorkers with the profile of Pine. I don't know whether Troy saw it or not, and I didn't know whether Morse had put it there on purpose. I didn't dare take it out, altho it worried me all the time. I was afraid that Troy would get suspicious if she'd seen it, or that Morse would miss it when the New Yorkers were returned, and connect it with me.

"When Jordan asked me to make a fake pistol shot for him so that one of the main pieces of his collection wouldn't be missed—he likes to put up a front—I got an idea. I started duplicating his other pieces and selling them to Pine. I'd looted most of the good things in his collection, and last month I heard he was going to sell it.

"I decided to kill him. I hadn't only looted his collection, but he was breaking me up with Troy. She thought she was in love with him. I'd watched his Cocker Spaniel, Winnie, who was scared of the church chimes, and ran thru the hedge in back of Larmar's desk whenever they rang. I'd been working on Larmar's guns since spring. I got interested in the dog and saw that it used the same opening in the hedge every time. I made experiments in my shop.

"The wall of the terrace had slots in it. The box hedges are pressed close against the wall. I rigged the gun up three weeks ago and tested it without loading it, until I found that by wrapping a handkerchief around the butt, wedging it in one of the slots, and resting the barrel in the bushes, and crossing two twigs thru the trigger guard, the dog would fire it every time. Finally I loaded the gun, and kept it loaded for several days. Rain wouldn't bother it at all, and since Larmar only used the pistol in target matches, he wouldn't miss it. The night before Troy was killed, I slipped out when Paul was in the bathroom, and cocked the gun.

"I didn't intend to kill Troy. She just happened to be there at that time. I wrote the note and had her come up to the cocktail party. Jordan's wife was the logical one to kill him. There would be plenty of witnesses that he'd thrown Troy right in his wife's face, if anything went wrong. I never thought the gun would kill Troy.

"Saturday night Sybella Ford surprised me in Troy's apartment. I hit her and took the clippings and the New Yorkers. She also found a tie that Troy had bought for me. I destroyed the New Yorkers, the clippings, and the tie, but I was afraid that Sybella Ford had read that clipping, and I hoped she'd die before she told it to Maclain."

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Mrs. Dan S., Chicago—When I wax my floors I remember to wax the feet of my furniture, too. Good insurance against mars and scratches on the floor when the furniture is moved about.

Mrs. Bill W., Oak Park—My house plants of the foliage type I keep in windows which have southern, eastern, or western exposure. My flowering house plants I try to keep in a southeastern exposure. These rules have helped to keep my plants thriving for some years.

Joyce A., Peoria, Ill.—If you are a new cook and don't want your scrambled eggs to "separate," don't cook them at too high a temperature and don't cook them too long. Really good custard also mustn't be cooked too long nor at too high a temperature.

Try to Evolve Daily Routine for the Baby

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Babies don't know what the book says they should do! So very often they just don't do it.

Babies don't always sleep when and as long as the book, even the best baby book, says they should; they don't always eat, weigh, grow, and eliminate as the day's program prescribes. Mothers shouldn't worry too much over it, nor try to force conformity to an arbitrary schedule.

What they should do is try to find out, by observation and experiment, their own baby's rhythm and needs. Also they should try to combine all that with a plan which works out for the family. For when a man comes home at night, he doesn't want to find the house in an uproar [and one baby can do it!] and confusion. For his sake and for her own, a mother should evolve a routine for the baby which makes dinner a peaceful time, with a little leisure at the table for relaxation and conversation.

What these suggestions add up to is this: That a reasonably kept routine is good for baby and mother, and for the rest of the family. It is good for the baby to live in a repeated rhythm of rest, food, and play, and later, of elimination.

Once the right routine for a baby is established, his body, its needs and functions, follows the habit pattern. So he falls off to sleep contentedly at noon and at 7 in the evening, if those are his hours; he wakes for his bottle at 6 in the morning and drops off again; and wakes again at 8 gurgling and smiling with health and happiness. The right routine should be observed each day as far as is possible and within reason.

A Blue Pencil Is What This Movie Needs

By Mae Tinée.

Just change the word "guest" to "pest" and you'll have a good idea of what this picture is all about.

The central figure is a neurotic invalid girl, brought into a normal, happy household by a young doctor who's in love with her. She creates havoc by instilling poison into the unsuspecting minds of various members of the family. Miss Baxter's portrayal of this she-devil is cleverly done, but, for several reasons, the whole thing rings false.

In the first place, any doctor who doesn't get wise to this girl shouldn't be trusted to take care of a canary. After one scene in which she makes him violently jealous by discussing a purely hypothetical situation, you're inclined to think they're two of a kind.

Ralph Bellamy is cast as the doctor's brother, an artist to whom the guest is violently attracted. He is forced by the plot and the dialog to be so playful that he resembles an overgrown calf. Aline MacMahon does what is possible with her role, which also is a bit incongruous.

A sharp blue pencil which cut out some of the interminable chatter and a lot of the scenes and shortened the picture by half could have made a wearying film into a rather interesting one.

There is a lot of good material here, both in the story and the cast, and the end is quite effective—but I was awfully glad when it finally arrived.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 23.—After getting a look at Anne Baxter in "The Royal Scandal," Twentieth Century took up her option two months in advance. Now Ernst Lubitsch is looking for something to star her in. . . . Andre Charlot, who was famous in Europe for his musical revues, now has a good part in "The Dolly Sisters," and for the first time in his short picture career, plays a theatrical producer. It was Charlot who brought Beatrice Lillie, Gertrude Lawrence, and Jack Buchanan to Hollywood in Charlot's revue about 18 years ago. . . . Kay Francis has three pictures in her producer-actress deal with Monogram. Her next will be "Allotment Wives" and is set for June. . . . Mike Todd's talking to Brenda Marshall about doing the lead in his play "And Never Yield" on Broadway, and she's listening.

News from Over There.

Bill Jacobson writes from London: "Flora Robson has finished the film 'Caesar and Cleopatra' and is rehearsing a Victorian thriller called 'Ethel Fry,' about a woman who kidnaps a baby. 'The Years Between' by Daphne Du Maurier, brings Clive Brook back to the London stage after 20 years. Jimmy Stewart's still working hard, quietly. He's never heard of or from. Clare Luce, actress, touring camps in 'Blithe Spirit.' . . . 'A Song to Remember' with Oberon and Muni, is in its ninth west end week. . . . Herbert Wilcox's 'I Live in Grosvenor Square,' starring Anna Neagle and Dean Jagger, is still going strong, with many G. I.'s on leave in London being used as extras, much to their joy and financial edification. . . . Saw 'Love in Idleness' with Lynn Fontanne. What she does with a telephone wire is remarkable—and I must practice up!"

Ready and Willing.

Robert Mitchum, who just finished an important role [Capt. Walker] in "G. I. Joe," has been reclassified as 1-A and goes into Uncle Sam's army. Basic training will be an old story to him after all those rugged weeks on location where they worked in mud and slush reenacting famous battles of Africa and Italy. . . . Brenda Joyce's new contract with Universal allows her to continue playing Jane in the Tarzan pictures with Johnny Weissmuller. Next one, "Tarzan and the Leopard Woman," starts in a few weeks. . . . B. B. C. gives a half hour program March 6 about Dinah Shore, with a British girl impersonating her, southern accent and all. . . . Bill Goodwin's being paged to replace Tom Brenneman on "Breakfast at Sardi's," now that Tom's got his own show. . . . Sonny Tufts is sure he'll be Paramount's top western star, because he's inherited Joel McCrea's dressing room, which Joel got from Gary Cooper, who got it from Jack Holt. Well, "The Virginian" should give him a good start. . . . Xavier Cugat has bought Hedy Lamarr's house which he's been renting. He's en route to New York to open at the Capitol theater with the showing of "Picture of Dorian Gray." . . . Frances Langford is already making post-war plans to entertain the war wounded whose world will be a hospital ward long after the guns have stopped. She'll fly her own plane to veterans' hospitals thruout the nation.

It's Sad but True.

I won't use the writer's name, but this note came to me: "Because you have backed so many worthy causes, I thought you'd be interested in an idea for increasing the number of donors to the blood bank. Why not give the donors extra red points for each pint of blood donated, with bonuses for gallon and two gallon donors? This idea worked so well with fats that I don't see why it couldn't with blood. If pure patriotism won't bring 'em in, maybe red points will." . . . That cast a shadow over my whole day. Would a soldier out in the South Pacific say to his buddy, "I'll give you my next pay check if you'll take my place in the line while I rest in this fox hole." . . . The idea that we have to bribe our citizens to give their blood to save their sons, husbands, and fathers is one of the most revolting ideas to come my way in a long time. And yet, I think the guy's right.

No Type Casting Here.

From the White House to the gallows is some jump — but Geraldine Fitzgerald makes it in her next picture. After being "Wilson's" second lady, she is unjustly accused of murder in "Uncle Harry"—and hanged. Incidentally, Geraldine winds up her sixth year at Warners this week with "Three Strangers." It's been her home lot ever since she came to Hollywood, and she's a little homesick about leaving. . . . When Betty Grable heard a bunch of extras discussing George Raft and that famous crap game, she went over to them and said, "I don't believe George has ever done anything dishonest. He's the straightest guy I've ever met, where money's concerned." . . . Veronica Lake and Andre De Toth have returned from a visit in Arizona. . . . Paul Hesse won all three annual awards at the national color competition in Washington: First place for his picture of Joan Fontaine, second for one of Ingrid Bergman, and third for one of Hedy Lamarr.

Thru the Looking Glass

We have to agree with one of our readers that thick ankles ARE a problem.

If they're just fat there isn't so much to worry about. Supervised exercise and good professional massage will help a lot—and this sort of professional help is well worth spending money on. But if it's a matter of bone structure it's not humanly possible to slim those ankles down. The best you can do is stay slim as possible, warding off every unnecessary ounce of fat on the legs and ankles, and to resort to a certain kind of camouflage in shoe selection.

Unless your ankles are flawless, stay away from those rhoes with bows or straps that are ankle-high. Such shoes look delectable in the ads and on those enviably streamlined professional models, but the woman whose ankles are bony or heavy is calling attention to one of her defects when she wears eye catching novelty shoes.

For the heavy leg the slimming shoes are usually low cut and not too square of toe. Pumps help enormously, we think, in giving the slender line. Bows or buckles aren't such a good bet for the large footed woman; for her, unobtrusive shoes with long lines are far better. Sandals are decidedly risky unless the feet are slender. And there is, paradoxically enough, nothing that makes a fat foot look fatter than a shoe that is too tight. The flesh bulging over its constrictions gives an even greater illusion of size. It's the same principle that applies when a stout woman buys a dress; if it's tight she'll look fatter. It it's loose and well cut or draped she'll look slimmer than she actually is.

"What are the various methods for making coffee cream whip?"

While there are several ways to whip the cream, one general rule holds: Thoroly chill cream, bowl, and beater. Here are the two most successful methods for whipping cream: 1. Use a whipping agent [sold in stores in powdered form] with the very well chilled cream. 2. Let the bottle of cream stand in the refrigerator for at least 24 to 36 hours, preferably as long as two to three days. Then pour off top part of bottle into a chilled bowl, use an ice cold beater and whip until stiff. A few drops of lemon juice will aid in the whipping but avoid overuse as the lemon will affect flavor of the cream. To use gelatin as an aid in stiffening the cream, chilled cream is not necessary. This third, and rather different method consists of soaking 1½ teaspoon unflavored gelatin in 2 tablespoons cream for about 5 minutes, then dissolving over hot water. Add dissolved gelatin to cream at room temperature [chilled cream would immediately set the gelatin in little globules and not allow it to be distributed thruout], then chill until thick and beat with electric or rotary beater until stiff. In all above methods of whipping cream, add sugar to sweeten, if desired.

"What herbs could I use in preparing green beans?"

Savory, sage, and marjoram may be used to slightly vary the flavor of this rather neglected vegetable. To the cooking water add a half teaspoon or more of the dried leaves tied in a bag, or pour boiling water over the leaves which are in a strainer, then add leaves to butter or margarine, and let stand in warm place until ready to serve on cooked beans.

TRIBUNE AIRMAN, LOST 13 MONTHS, REPORTED DEAD

Lt. G. J. Trevor, Pilot, Killed Jan. 8, 1944.

LT. GRAHAM J. TREVOR, 25, a former Tribune employe, who was reported missing Jan. 8, 1944, was killed in action on that date, his mother, Mrs. Mildred J. Trevor, 1309 Astor st., has been notified officially. He was the pilot of a B-25 Mitchell bomber, based in Italy, and on his 36th mission. Lt. Trevor, on leave from the Tribune advertising department, received the Purple Heart for wounds received in action and wore the air medal with five clusters. The distinguished service medal was awarded posthumously and received by his mother last week. Another son, Lt. Thomas W. Trevor Jr., wounded in England in July, 1944, and returned to this country in September, is now a patient in Vaughan General hospital.

LT. JAMES M. BAKER, 23, of 3724 N. Keeler av., listed as missing in action over Italy July 20, has now been reported killed in action on that date, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, have been notified. Lt. Baker, overseas since August, 1943, was the lead pilot of a bomber group. A younger brother, George, also survives.

GLENN H. LEECH, 20, a navy gunner aboard a merchant marine vessel, is missing in action in the South Pacific, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Leech, 3006 Esheol av., Zion, have been notified. He joined the navy in June, 1943, after graduation from the Zion-Benton High school.

SAILOR'S KILLER SAYS HE FOUGHT AFTER ATTACK

Henry Combs Walston, 18, Negro, a steward's mate from Lexington, Ky., on trial for the fatal stabbing of another sailor, testified in federal District court yesterday that the first realization he might have killed a man came when he found a knife in his left hand with blood on the weapon.

Charged with the slaying of Coxswain Eugene R. Roberts, 21, of Miami, Fla., at Great Lakes last Oct. 6, Walston said he was threatened by Roberts and hit back in self-defense. He said he didn't know how the knife got in his hand.

Walston, who served 15 months on a destroyer escort vessel in the Atlantic, said he joined the navy when he was only 16 years old by forging his birth certificate. The trial was continued until Feb. 27. It is being heard by Judge William J. Campbell.

5 STORY FALL KILLS PEORIA REALTY DEALER

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 23 (AP).—Everett H. McCarty, 50, president of the McCarty Realty company, plunged to his death today from the fifth floor of the Alliance Life building in downtown Peoria, narrowly missing a girl hurrying down the street in the lunch hour crowd. A fountain pen was clutched in his hand. Police said they found no note and could offer no immediate explanation. Apparently he fell from a storeroom near his office.

DICK TRACY

I ASSURE YOU, THIS WOMAN'S OKAY. YOU HAVE NOTHING TO FEAR.
WELL, COMING FROM YOU, MR TRACY, I'LL TAKE THAT AT FACE VALUE.
NOW, IF YOU'LL EXCUSE US— I'D LIKE TO HAVE A LITTLE PRIVATE TALK WITH HER
I-I SAW HIM, MR TRACY. I KNOW WHO HE IS. THE MATRON OFTEN MENTIONED HIS NAME, AND I SAW HIM.
WHO ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT?
THE HEAD OF THE DOPE RING THAT WAS SUPPLYING THE PRISON INMATES I SAW HIM!

TERRY

LIEUTENANT LEE IS TOO ALERT FOR US, HU SHEE... LET US TERMINATE OUR PLAY-ACTING...
I THOUGHT THE DRAGON LADY WOULD HAVE AN EAR HANDY WHEN HU SHEE BEGAN TO DIG FOR MILITARY INFORMATION...
DO NOT FEEL HUMILIATED, OLD FRIEND... IT WAS NECESSARY TO DISARM YOU IN ORDER TO PROCEED WITH OUR DISCUSSION IN A CALMER ATMOSPHERE...
MEANWHILE

Sherman filed a suit for divorce charging adultery and said his wife has disappeared from their home at 338 S. Artesian av. The children, Jane, 11; Robert, 6, and Shirley, 2, are being cared for by Sherman's sister, Mrs. Iona Patek, 1422 Flournoy st.

G. O. P. COMMITTEES BACK JUDGES KNOCH, O'CONNOR, M'EWEN

Circuit Judges Win G. Knoch, Naperville, Charles A. O'Connor, Aurora, and Harry W. McEwen of the 16th judicial circuit were indorsed unanimously for reëlection last night by the Republican committees of Du Page, Kane, Kendall, and De Kalb counties.

As a result, the three sitting judges will be nominated at the judicial circuit convention, called for March 22 at Geneva. The district is so strongly Republican nomination is tantamount to election.

Expected opposition to the indorsement of Judge Knoch did not develop at the meeting in Sycamore, De Kalb county. The name of Col. Cassius M. Poust, who was reported to have made a bid for support after he returned recently from military service, was not presented.

Judge Knoch, who is completing his first term, formerly was De Kalb city judge and De Kalb county judge. Col. Poust formerly was De Kalb county state's attorney and once was first assistant United States attorney in Chicago.

DROP PROPOSAL FOR NAZI CAMP NEAR SCHOOLS

Objections of Catholic schools near Western Springs to location of a German prisoner of war camp in the former Salt Creek civilian conservation corps camp, north of the village, caused the army yesterday to withdraw its request for permission to use the camp.

The army had asked the Cook county commissioners for use of the camp site to house prisoners needed for work in food processing plants.

WIFE DIVORCES MATE WHO WAS LEFT 6 MILLION

Mrs. Elsa Klecker Chancellor was granted a divorce yesterday in Reno, Nev., from Philip Matthiessen Chancellor, who in 1929 inherited a $6,000,000 estate from his grandfather, the late F. N. Matthiessen, zinc magnate, of La Salle, Ill. She charged cruelty. A property agreement was made out of court.

Mrs. Chancellor, the daughter of a Hungarian merchant and a former actress, was married to Chancellor, now a lieutenant commander in the navy, on March 4, 1933, in St. George's church, London, England.

Comdr. Chancellor has financed numerous archeological and zoological expeditions to collect photographs and data for museum files. His first expedition was to New Zealand, and he returned with a collection for the Chicago Natural History [Field] museum.

MEMPHIS GOLDEN GLOVERS LEAD CHICAGO INVASION

SOUTHERNERS 1ST TO ARRIVE FOR TOURNEY

Nation's Best Start Action Monday.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 1945 march toward this capital of Golden Gloves, which began weeks ago in 28 cities thruout the land, today nears its climax with the arrival of several of the teams which will battle in the Tournament of Champions Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights in the Chicago Stadium.

First on the scene of the year's top fistic show were the boxers representing the Memphis [Tenn.] Commercial-Appeal, who landed last night. Today's influx of invading challengers includes the hopefuls of the Los Angeles Times, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Columbus [O.] Dispatch, the St. Louis Globe Democrat, the Sioux City [Ia.] Journal, and the Omaha World Herald. Tomorrow will bring the best fighters in Fort Worth, Minneapolis, and Nashville. The entire cast of the gathering of titleholders will be assembled before Monday noon.

Watch Those Newcomers.

These sturdy youngsters who make up the 1945 personnel of the Tournament of Champions are at the threshhold of the most important assignments of their careers. They hail from both of our coastal shores, from the Canadian border, and from the Gulf of Mexico.

A few of them have tried before, and are back again, more determined than ever to win a golden glove, highest honor in amateur boxing. Others will be making their debuts, after undergoing preliminary ring baptisms in their local communities. It is this band of newcomers which will be eyed closely by Golden Gloves regulars, for many an unheralded youth has achieved national fame in his first year in the big test.

Potential Champions Galore.

Advance reports from the newspapers coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in this 18th edition of Golden Gloves warfare indicate not only the best attended preliminary events in the history of the show, but also a wealth of talent. Every city is certain that it has at least one potential champion, and, judging by the performances of several of these lads in intercity competition beyond their Golden Gloves quest, they are going to be difficult to handle.

Chicagoans, however, are convinced that Our Town boasts eight young fellows who are more than prepared for the invasion of the other 27 competing teams. Local fans saw them win their roles in the Tournament of Champions at the Marigold Gardens on Feb. 12, and are convinced that they will defend their unusual record—that of never having been shut out in the big battle.

Two Chicagoans Return.

Two of Chicago's 1944 champions repeated their victories this year, and have vowed to go all the way thru to the championship finals, to be held in the Stadium ring on March 9. They are Flyweight Jackie Boyd of the Madison Athletic club, who has been drilling diligently under the direction of Pop Howard, and Heavyweight Luke Baylark of the Savoy Athletic club.

The Savoy A. C., incidentally, will furnish six of Chicago's delegates to the Tournament of Champions. Coach Eddie Nichols of the south side organization is sending, in addition to Baylark, Wray Carter, featherweight; Bernard Paige, lightweight; Caesar Douglas, welterweight; James Burkes, middleweight, and Leroy Scales, light heavyweight. The team is completed by Joey Plummer of the Catholic Youth organization.

Two rings will be used in the Stadium the first two nights, with the four lighter weights arguing Monday, and the four heavier classes working on Tuesday. The survivors then will meet on Wednesday for the 32 places in the March 9 finals. The weighing in and physical examination ceremonies for the 112, 118, 126, and 135 pound boxers will be held at noon Monday in the C. Y. O. gymnasium, 31 E. Congress st.

ADVANCE GUARD IN PARADE OF CHAMPIONS

First to arrive in Chicago for Tournament of Champions which opens Monday in the Stadium are these representatives of Memphis Commercial Appeal. With announced determination of showing rest of field some real fighting, group which arrive at Illinois Central station last night includes (left to right): Carl Williams, 118 pounds; Troy Gray, 147; Paul Holderfield, 112; Joe Red, trainer and coach, and Pvt. E. J. Sokolowski, 160 pounds. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Harvard school, basketball champions of the Private School league, last night advanced to the finals of the league tournament by defeating Concordia, 36 to 33, in a semi-final contest in the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

The game was closely contested thruout, with the lead changing hands severl times. Harvard held a three point advantage, 18 to 15, at the half, but fell before the Concordia offense in the third period and trailed, 26 to 24, as the period ended. The fourth quarter Harvard rally caught and passed Concordia.

With the score tied at 32-all, Price Jackson and Jerry Neff each scored field goals for Harvard while Concordia was being limited to one free throw. Jackson led the scorers with 13 points.

Todd advanced to the finals by defeating University High, 50 to 23, in the second game last night. Todd led, 22 to 11, at the half, and was never threatened from the opening of the game. Bill Gothard of Todd led the scorers with 10 points.

2 Prep Stars Get 68 Points for New Mark

BY DAVID CONDON.

Two high scoring City league basketball players yesterday established new marks in prep basketball play as each scored 68 points to lead his team to lopsided victories.

John Katzler of the Waller Seniors scored all but five of his team's points as Waller beat Taft, 73 to 58. Katzler made 29 field goals and 10 free throws, and assured himself of the senior season scoring mark in the City league.

Held Record for a Week.

Hutmacher, in 10 league games, has scored 113 field goals and 59 free throws for a total of 285 points.

Bob Hutmacher.

John Katzler.

Katzler, in winning the scoring crown, has totaled 254 points, a 24 point margin over the season total of Bato Govedarica of Lane Tech, who until today looked like a certainty to win scoring honors in the City league.

Hyde Park Wins Title.

Elsewhere in prep circles Hyde Park won the south section junior title by defeating Calumet, 40 to 21, to close the season with a record of nine victories and one loss.

Three teams finished in a tie for second place with eight victories and three defeats, but as the result of a drawing South Shore was awarded second; Hirsch, third; and Fenger, fourth. South Shore beat Morgan Park, 61 to 22, and Hirsch defeated Englewood, 39 to 5, to close their league seasons.

West Honors to Austin.

Austin broke the three way tie in the west section senior race by beating Wells, 43 to 29. It was Austin's eighth victory in nine games, technically tying it with Crane Tech. Crane, however, lost to Austin, 34 to 28, last week, and falls back to second place, due to a City league ruling.

Western Kentucky Meets De Paul.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Collegiate basketball will end for the season tonight in Chicago as Northwestern concludes its Western conference campaign with Illinois and De Paul university plays Western Kentucky Teachers from Bowling Green. The Demons seek their 18th victory in 20 games while Northwestern hopes to finish as it did a year ago by dampening title hopes of an outstanding contender.

The conference rivals will open the program at 8:15 o'clock and there is fine prospect that attendance at this ninth double header program will equal the best previous crowd. Illinois is the prime attraction as the Illini continue their bid for at least a share of the 1945 title. Western Kentucky, beaten previously by De Paul in Louisville, 65 to 37, scarcely figures to reverse this verdict.

Big Guard Is Good.

The Kentuckians arrived yesterday. Among the regulars is K. W. Sinkhorn, 6 foot guard from Perryville, Ky., whom Coach Ray Meyer of De Paul has labeled one of the best players his team has met. Jim Bazzell, starting forward, is the only addition to the first team since the initial De Paul-Western Kentucky game.

Lowell Kennedy is the other forward. Lawrence Jones is the center and Brian Murphy, guard, completes the starting five. Western Kentucky has won 15 games and lost 9.

George Mikan, De Paul's All-American center, who has averaged 21 points a game this year in 19 contests, will be honored this evening by the folks from Joliet, Ill., his home. No team has stopped Mikan's attack and he has been equally valuable to the Demons on defense.

Wildcats Hard to Beat.

Mikan has scored 1,156 points in three years in 69 games for an average of 16.7. Mayor Arthur Janke of Joliet will present Mikan with an honorary membership in the Moose, for whom George first played amateur basketball.

While the Wildcats have lost eight conference games, two of them went into overtime. Purdue defeated the Wildcats in Lafayette, 52 to 48, and Michigan won, 46 to 45, in the Stadium. Wisconsin also took a one point game in regulation time at the Stadium. Northwestern has scored 495 points to opponents' 488 which indicates the strength of the Wildcats better than their position in the race.

MAJORS EXPECT 4-F PLAYERS TO SEE THEM THRU

BY EDWARD PRELL.

After congressional action is taken on the work-or-fight bill, the two major league presidents will have a second conference with War Mobilization Director Byrnes. This was revealed yesterday by Will Harridge, American league president, on his return from midweek talks in the capital in which the National league president, Ford Frick, also participated.

"Mr. Byrnes told us that he would not be in a position to talk man power until action has been taken on the pending bill," said Harridge. It is believed that the fate of the measure will be decided next week.

Hope to Keep 4-Fs.

The baseball leaders do not expect to get an essential or semi-essential rating for the sport, but are hoping that their 4-F players are not disturbed, at least in wholesale lots, as they are the backbone of the playing structure.

The American league president also disclosed that the annual exhibition game at Cooperstown, N. Y., baseball shrine, has been called off. It was to have been played on July 9 between the Detroit Tigers and the New York Giants.

A maximum of 23 games and possibly as few as eight may be dropped from the American league's original slate of 94 spring training exhibitions to comply with the decision to abandon such contests in neutral cities.

Ritchie Colombo, who two weeks ago reached the ripe old age of 16, was among a group of five leaving Chicago last night to join the Cub owned Los Angeles Angels, who will begin spring training Monday at Anaheim, Cal.

Colombo, from Brockton, Mass., played American Legion baseball last summer and later was with the Malden [Mass.] city team. A pitcher, he is 6 feet tall and weighs 185 pounds.

Three Chicagoans Go.

In the consignment to Los Angeles were three Chicagoans, Pitchers Boyd Tepler and Karl Scheel and Outfielder George Kelly.

Scheel, 23, has a medical discharge. He is a 6 foot 3 inch 210 pound right hander. Kelly also is an ex-serviceman. He is 23, 6 feet 3 inches tall, and weighs 220 pounds. The fifth tourist was Kenneth Hicks, 18 year pitcher from Detroit, who formerly was with the Jamestown, N. Y., club.

The Cubs this season will operate four minor league clubs. These are Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast league; the Tri-City Cubs who will perform in Leaksville, Spray, and Draper, N. C., in the new class C Carolina league; the Statesville [N. C.] Cubs of the class D North Carolina State league, and the Elizabethton [Tenn.] Cubs in the class D Appalachian league. This team has been transferred from Erwin, Tenn.

Ray Robinson Wins Decision Over Lamotta

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Ray [Sugar] Robinson, uncrowned king of welterweights, absorbed everything Jack Lamotta threw at him in Madison Square Garden tonight and went on to gain a unanimous 10 round decision over the Bronx battler.

A crowd of 18,060 contributed to a gross gate of $93,185. It was Robinson's second $90,000 gate within 10 days. He knocked out Sugar Costner in one round at Chicago on Feb. 14 before a $94,000 house.

In beating Lamotta for the third time in their four meetings and increasing his record to 54 victories in 55 bouts, Robinson boxed rings around the only man to hold a decision over him.

A FOOTBALL fan in the upper peninsula of Michigan submits the following all-time, all-star eleven made up of players from his neck of the woods: Ends, Dominic Vairo, Notre Dame, and Joel Mason, Western Michigan; tackles, Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth, and Ray Bray, Western Michigan; guards, Hunk Anderson, Notre Dame, and Ralph Heikkinen, Michigan; center, Herman Gundlach, Harvard; backs, George Gipp, Notre Dame, Gene Ronzani, Marquette, Tommy Hughitt, Michigan, and Al Kircher, Michigan State. . . . Charley Gross, who entered the thorobred training ranks after almost half a century as a jockey, hung up his tack when riders were ordered to wear fiber helmets. . . . "I rode all those years without one," he said, "then they ordered me to stay off the track unless I had such protection. I got to thinking the game must be getting tough, so I went to Ben Jones and told him I was quitting—having just discovered I was in a dangerous business." . . . Harry [Jiggs] Kline, former New York Giants end, who was a navy lieutenant, has been given a medical discharge after having been wounded in action. . . . Phil Holcombe, a senior at Michigan, never had wrestled, but the success of his younger brother with the Iowa Seahawk mat team, spurred him into action. . . . The 165-pounder did all right in early meets and, when Walt Blumenstein was unable to oppose Ohio State's 345-pound George Bollas, Holcombe volunteered to sub for him. . . . Bollas finally pinned the game little grappler, but not until the final 29 seconds of the match. . . . The New York Rangers haven't won a hockey match at the Detroit Olympia since Christmas night, 1942. . . . The Wings have whipped the New Yorkers, 10 to 3, 11 to 3, and 7 to 3, in Detroit this season. . . . When the scorer in a recent Blackhawk-Canadien match in Montreal inadvertently credited Toe Blake with an assist on the only goal the home team scored, Blake rushed over to the official and said, "I didn't get that assist; it belongs to Elmer Lach." . . . Owners of clubs in the All-America conference are getting many a chuckle from news items about Coach Soandso who attempts to strengthen his position at his college by denying that he is considering an offer to enter professional football. . . . They happen to know that in most cases the coach never had been up for consideration. . . .

Army will lose 13 football squad men by graduation this spring, including Bob Mackinnon, regular end in 1943, who was out all last season with a shoulder injury. . . . Mackinnon, appointed to the United States Military academy from Fort Sheridan, also is unable to compete in swimming competition because of the handicap. . . . Scrapiron Young, who resigned recently as trainer at Notre Dame, tells this one: The Irish basketball team, playing in Philadelphia one night, was 15 points behind at the half. . . . During the intermission the late George Keogan gave his squad a tongue lashing which is said to have set a record for vehemence. . . . Each player was given a separate going-over until, finally the coach came to Marty Peters. . . . "Marty," said George, "you look terrible tonight. What have you to say for yourself?" . . . "Only this, coach," answered Marty, "I haven't gotten into the game yet." . . . Three penalty shots have been attempted in the National Hockey league this season and all connected. . . . The New York Rangers got two of these and the Canadiens the other. . . . George Batchelder, Iowa Seahawk track star, served in the merchant marine before the war.

ARNOLD RISEN'S 19 POINTS LEAD HEAVY SCORING

Buckeyes Atone for Early Defeat.

Big Nine Picture

THE three contenders for the Western conference basketball title face important tests tonight. Iowa, the leader, with eight victories and one defeat, meets Wisconsin in Madison; Ohio State, the runner-up, with nine and two, concludes its season with Indiana in Columbus, and Illinois, in third place, with seven and two, battles Northwestern in the Chicago Stadium. Remaining games for Illinois and Iowa follow:

ILLINOIS—At Indiana, Feb. 28; at Iowa, March 3.

IOWA—At Minnesota, Feb. 26; Illinois at Iowa, March 3.

Columbus, O., Feb. 23 [Special].—Ohio State managed to stay in the Big Ten basketball championship race tonight by defeating Illinois, 60 to 44.

The Buckeyes, taking a half time lead of 27 to 16, avenged an early season 56 to 41 setback by Illinois in Urbana. The victory brought their season standing to nine victories and two defeats in the conference race and with only Indiana to play tomorrow night to close it.

After a short span, in which the lead shifted seven times, the Ohioans took a 19 to 11 margin and managed to increase it as the game wore on.

Risen Leads the Way.

Individually, the Buckeyes sparkled, with Center Arnold Risen counting 19 points on seven baskets and five free throws. Don Grate counted 12, Rod Caudill 11, and Capt. Paul Huston 10. Ohio made 23 baskets in 71 attempts while Illinois made only 16 of 55. From the foul line Ohio counted 14 of 18 and the Illini 12 of 18.

The game was exceedingly rough, 33 fouls being called, 16 on Ohio State and 17 on the losers.

The defeat brought the Illini standing to seven victories in nine starts, with Indiana and Iowa yet to play.

Judson Is Handicapped.

Ohio used its height to good advantage and proved more than a match for the visitors' speed, tho the latter were handicapped by the partial loss of their star forward, Howard Judson, who played sparingly because of a knee injury. Jack Burmaster led Illinois scorers with 10 points.

The Illini, who thruout the season have been a last-period team, failed to keep up this record, being outscored, 33 to 28. Lineup:

Sailors Beat Bunker Hill Five, 51-43

Paul Cloyd's 26 points paced the Great Lakes Bluejackets to their 31st victory of the season last night at the Naval Training center over the Bunker Hill Naval Air station. The final score was 51 to 43.

The first half was 14 minutes old when Great Lakes tied up the count at 12 all on one of Cloyd's push shots from the side. The half ended, 25 to 22, in favor of the Bluejackets.

With eight minutes to go, the Bluejackets held a seven point margin and slowed the pace in order to keep control of the ball. In spite of this slackening tempo, Cloyd sank three more push shots.

STREATOR PICKS ITS SQUAD FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

Town Is Small, but Not So the Spirit.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Streator, Ill., Feb. 23.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions is a national institution. It's the biggest thing there is in amateur boxing, made so by one basic factor—one premise upon which it has thrived for the last 18 years. It plays no favorites.

The Golden Gloves territory in this, the fourth year of World War II, with conditions anything but normal, still extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, from Canada on the north to Mexico on the south. It includes such metropolitan centers as Los Angeles, Fort Worth, New Orleans, Cleveland, St. Louis, Minneapolis, and Milwaukee.

Streator Crowns Champions.

It also takes in Streator, a smaller melting pot town of some 15,000 Americans. The Irish O'Learys, the Scandinavian Swansons, the Welsh Owenses, the Polish Kosluskos, the German Wagners, the Bohemian Soffkas and representatives of almost every country on the globe have made Streator one of the liveliest industrial and farming communities in the state.

Last night the Streator Times-Press held its 18th annual Golden Gloves finals before a record crowd in the high school gymnasium.

The boys did themselves proud as they won their titles and had their names added to the long list of champions this town has sent into the Chicago show of shows. They had kept intact Streator's record of having provided a team for every one of THE TRIBUNE'S Tournaments of Champions. Other cities and towns have dropped out now and then, but not Streator.

Tourney Profits to Legion.

All the tournament profits go to the American Legion and the lads who represent Streator in the Tournament of Champions never have had to take a back seat for anybody. They go to Chicago neatly attired for their part in the big show and well drilled in the art of boxing, the result of the efforts of a couple of veterans of former Golden Gloves Stadium battles, Ario Soldati and Bill Connell, along with Mike Crowley, the trainer. Connell once was an alternate on the Chicago Intercity team and Soldati was good enough at one time to engage Joe Louis in amateur championship bouts. Both now are referees.

Streator fans are proud of all their champions but they've taken a great fancy to Cayo Hidalgo, a little Mexican 112 pounder who paid his way from Fort Madison, Ia., 150 miles away to get into the tournament. He represented Streator in Chicago last year and is prepared to go farther next week. The Times Press list of champions follows:

Hagg at Sea Has Nothing on A. A. U. Chief

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Gunder Hagg, Sweden's will o' the wisp miler, still is a provisional entry in the National A. A. U. indoor track meet in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night despite the fact he has not put in an appearance.

Dan Ferris, optimistic secretary of the A. A. U. and manager of the meet, still is hopeful that Hagg will step off a ship here before tomorrow night, but admits that it is still a question whether or not the record holder has stepped aboard one for his advertised trip.

At Washington the Swedish legation said that their information was that Hagg and Hurdler Haakon Lidman sailed from England early in February and are still at sea. Officials offered no guess as to what route was being traveled or as to whether the pair boarded a fishing boat or schooner.

Even if the Swedish stars fail to arrive, the entry list for the 57th annual indoor championship event will be the largest in history with 256 starters.

AROUSED HAWKS KEEP UNDERDOG ROLE AT DETROIT

The Chicago Blackhawks, who of late have been thriving against all sorts of unfavorable odds, are due to run smack into more of the same this evening in Detroit's Olympia, where they will meet the Red Wings in the first of two successive games, the pair being scheduled to argue again in the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

The Hawks, on paper, apparently were destined to lose both of their last two matches, since their respective opponents held overpowering season advantages over them. Yet Paul Thompson's boys met the issue first by holding the world champion Canadiens to a scoreless tie last Sunday, then returning on Wednesday to lick the Boston Bruins, 5 to 0.

Detroit Holds Edge, Too.

In each case, the Chicago foes were way in front on this campaign's overall records. Before the Sunday draw, the Canadiens had won six and yielded only a tie. Boston came up to Wednesday's battle with a record of five decisions in seven previous games.

The same situation holds true for tonight's game in Detroit. The second place Wings have permitted the Hawks to win only two of the seven battles they've had thus far, and each of them was a one goal triumph. Furthermore, the Detroiters have not been shutout on their home ice in their last 42 games.

M'Spaden Ties Course Record at Pensacola

Pensacola, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP).—Harold [Jug] McSpaden set a sizzling pace for the traveling professional golfers today by shooting an eight under par 64 in the first round of the $6,500 Pensacola open.

Trying for his first championship in 12 tournaments this winter, McSpaden was one of 24 players to better par 72 under a hot sun today. His 64 equalled the course record set by Claydon Attridge, Pensacola pro, in 1941.

Snead Cards 67.

Sammy Snead, Hot Springs, Va., was three strokes off the pace with a five under par 67. Sgt. E. J. [Dutch] Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., who made the last nine today in a six under par 30 had 68 as did Sam Byrd, Detroit, Henry Picard, Harrisburg, Pa., and Jimmy Gauntt, Ardmore, Okla.

Nelson at It Again.

The ever consistent Nelson tied with Sailor Jimmy Demaret, Corpus Christi, Tex., Ted Huge, Cleveland, O., Joe Turnesa, Long Island, N. Y., and Amateur Fred Haas Jr., New Orleans, at 69.

Grouped at 70 were Bob Hamilton, P. G. A. champion from Evanston, Ill.; Willie Goggin, New York City; Denny Shute, Akron, O.; Ky Laffoon, Chicago, and Leonard Dodson, San Francisco.

SEAHAWKS DEAL BADGER BOXERS 1ST HOME LOSS

Madison, Wis., Feb. 23 [Special].—The University of Wisconsin boxing team lost its first home match in history when the Iowa Seahawks beat the Badgers, 4½ to 3½, tonight before 5,500 fans.

The Seahawks came from behind to win the last two bouts, Blaine Heaton's decision over Carl Kulawinski of Wisconsin being unpopular.

120 POUNDS—Jerome Pittman [W.] beat Bob Fuller [S.], 3.
135 POUNDS—Don McLaughlin [S.] stopped William Willie [W.], 1.
145 POUNDS—Robert Wilson [S.] beat Harold Sullivan [W.], 3.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Melvin Levy [S.] stopped Louis Davis [W.], 1.

Mosconi Wins 2 Blocks; Clinches Cue Victory

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Willie Mosconi, Toledo, world champion pocket billiard player, for the second straight day won both blocks of his match with Ralph Greenleaf of Detroit today, winning the evening block 125 to 27, in five innings after capturing the afternoon contest, 125 to 4, in size frames. Two matches tomorrow close the tour. Mosconi's lead is too large to be overcome.

Fort Sheridan Defeats Milwaukee Ampcos, 67-35

The Fort Sheridan basketball team won its 26th victory of the season last night by defeating Milwaukee Ampcos, 67 to 35, in the Fort Sheridan gymnasium. Harold Bell, Medio Zanotti, and Jack King led the victors with 15 points each.

Oak Park Will Hold 15th Annual Relays March 24

The 15th annual Oak Park relays will be held Saturday, March 24, at Oak Park, Athletic Director Glenn Holmes announced yesterday.

Limit Petersen Pin Meet to Chicago Area

In compliance with the government's travel curtailment recommendations, officials in charge of the proposed Victory Team Bowling tournament, scheduled for March 10 and 11 in the Auditorium service men's center, announced yesterday that, altho the event had been canceled, a substitute meet, which would draw bowlers from within a 20 mile radius will be held instead.

The Victory tournament, which had attracted a full entry of 48 of the nation's top teams, also would have included a national two man title event. The new tourney, set for the original dates, will be confined to a field of 24 teams in the area under the jurisdiction of the Chicago Bowling association.

Captains to Meet Tomorrow.

The committee in charge is headed by Louis P. Petersen, general chairman, and Barney Hochstadter, Jack Samuelson, Jerry Peck, and Bill Goldammer, co-chairmen. Net proceeds will go into a fund for maintenance of the 12 service center alleys which are open to service men and women. The installation of the alleys originally was financed by the Chicago Bowling Proprietors' association.

To iron out details in connection with the substitute meet, team captains who had entered the Victory tournament, will meet in Petersen's office, 624 S. Michigan av., at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon.

Applies to Hochstadter Meet.

The decision to restrict future tournament competition to bowlers within a 20 mile radius is in line with a request to that effect from the National Bowling council.

The 20 mile territorial limit also will apply to Hochstadter's 5th annual Individual Junior classic, opening at the Archer-35th Recreation on April 10. This announcement set at rest rumors to the effect that the meet would be held on a pre-war basis.

GRIER DEFEATS RUBY GARCIA IN DETROIT FIGHT

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 23 (AP).—Emmett Grier, Detroit lightweight appearing in a 10 rounder for the first time in his career, won a unanimous decision tonight over Ruby Garcia, Philadelphia in the headliner of an Olympia fight card.

Grier, who weighed 136 and enjoyed a wide margin in reach, kept his left hand in Garcia's face all night to earn every round on one judge's card and all but one on the other. Referee Sam Hennessey gave Grier nine rounds and called one even. The Puerto Rican weighed 133 pounds.

Gene Gudgill, 149 pounder from Dayton, O., scored his second successive Detroit knockout by putting away Milton Kessler, 146, New York, in the last round of a 10 round cofeature.

RIVERSIDE BEATS BENSENVILLE IN DISTRICT FINALS

The first step in the selection of a 1945 Illinois state high school basketball champion was completed last night as district tournaments were contended thruout the state.

Riverside-Brookfield High school, champion of the West Suburban conference, won its own district meet by defeating Bensenville, 60 to 36, in the final game. It will meet Downers Grove next week in the opening of the regional tournament at York.

Dean Froelich led Riverside with 13 points. The victors were never headed and by the end of the first quarter held at 14 to 6 lead. They led, 35 to 17, at the half.

Victors in the Wauconda and Grant Park districts had little trouble, with Libertyville defeating Ela, 36 to 26, for the championship at Wauconda, and Peotone beating Crete, 37 to 20, at Grant Park.

Libertyville now will enter the Waukegan regional tourney while Peotone will play in the Joliet regional.

Mooseheart won its district meet by trouncing Geneva, 30 to 17, and will meet St. Charles in the Aurora West regional tourney next week.

Leo Defeats Mount Carmel Seniors, 34-28

The Leo seniors continued to remain undefeated in the Catholic league basketball race by turning in a 34 to 28 victory over Mount Carmel last night on the latter's floor. It was the ninth in a row for the Lions.

In the north section race, St. Philip kept its senior lead by triumphing, 47 to 34, over St. George on the latter's floor. It was the eighth victory in nine starts for the Gaels. Dick Kluck paced the attack with nine field goals and six free throws for a total of 24 points.

STARS IN TABLE TENNIS TO OPEN TOURNEY TODAY

Many of the nation's greatest table tennis players including Sally Green of Indianapolis, five times national women's singles champion, will compete in the two day Western Open tournament which opens this afternoon at 2 at the North Town Table Tennis club, 804 Wilson av. The tournament is sanctioned by the United States Table Tennis association.

More than 200 entries have been received in the eight divisions, which include men's, junior, veterans', women's and boys' singles, mixed doubles and men's and women's doubles. Semi-finals in all divisions will be held tomorrow afternoon, with finals tomorrow evening.

TRANSFER FORMER CARDS.

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 23 [AP].—Sgt. Enos Slaughter, outfielder, and Pvt. Howie Pollet, southpaw mound star, both former world series stars with the St. Louis Cardinals, have received transfer orders and after a furlough will report to Kearns, Utah.

Charleston Quintet Beats Carbondale, Ties Race

Charleston, Ill., Feb. 23 (AP)—Charleston Teachers tonight threw the basketball leadership of the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference into a two-way tie as they dealt Carbondale Teachers their first defeat of the season, 55 to 51. The conference championship now will be decided when Carbondale, previously unbeaten, meets De Kalb Teachers at De Kalb tomorrow night. Both Charleston and De Kalb have won six games and lost one.

WAUKEGAN FIVE BEATS MORTON; TIES FOR TITLE

Waukegan and Morton High schools, two Chicagoland teams rated as possibilities to win the state basketball title, last night met in Waukegan with the Suburban league title at stake, and Waukegan won, 41 to 23.

The Waukegan victory tied the teams for the league championship, each having a record of eight victories and two defeats in league play. A Morton victory would have given that team undisputed possession of the title.

Even Battle First Half.

For the first half, Morton fought on even terms with the Waukegan quintet, leading, 11 to 10, at the quarter, and 15 to 14 with three minutes remaining in the second quarter. Then Bob Runyan tipped in a rebound shot to give Waukegan

ARMY IS READY TO WRITE OFF CANOL AS LOSS

Alaskan Fuel Line Cost 134 Million.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—The army is about ready to close down its Canadian oil development and write off much of the 134 million dollar investment there as a strategic war expenditure, informed congressional sources said today.

War department representatives were reported to have told the senate war investigating committee recently that unless the combined chiefs of staff overrule the move, the Canol operation would be shut this spring.

Project Termed Waste.

A decline in the needs for petroleum supplies in Alaska probably will be given as the immediate reason for abandoning the development. The committee has formally criticized the project as a waste of money and Interior Secretary Ickes told congress last year it "ought to be junked now."

Committee members were said to have made it plain that if the war department comes to congress for additional appropriations, as it would have to do to keep the controversial development operating, they would fight the move.

Undersecretary of War Patterson won approval of a 16 million dollar appropriation for the project last year with an assertion that the joint chiefs of staff had ruled its continuation "a military necessity."

Ferguson Disputed.

He said at that time it was idle to contend, as Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] and some other members had done, that 100 octane gasoline could be obtained more cheaply on the Pacific coast and transported to Alaska. Patterson mentioned shortages of fuel and tankers.

Ferguson has contended that tankers now can be found to transport oil to Skagway, where it can be pumped thru a pipe line to White Horse, Yukon.

Lt. Gen. Somervell once told congress that the Canol project had been undertaken as a desperate strategic move "when our backs were to the wall" with the Japanese invasion of the Aleutians.

Canada Gets Option.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Canadian government will have an option to buy the Canadian oil development in the Northwest territories when the United States army is thru with it but, so far as can be learned, the government has no plans to do so.

The project includes oil wells at Fort Norman and pipelines and a refinery at White Horse.

The agreement covering disposition of the project provides for a joint appraisal of its commercial value by representatives of the two governments. After the appraisal it is to be offered for sale, first to the Canadian government and then in the open market.

If there are no buyers the problem is to be referred to the Canada-United States joint defense board.

DODGE STRIKERS IGNORE UNION'S ORDER TO WORK

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 23 (AP).—Approximately 11,200 employes of the Chrysler corporation's main Dodge plant struck today after dismissal of seven fellow workers for "loafing" and ignored a back-to-work order from executive officers of the CIO United Automobile workers.

The order to end the strike was issued to officers and members of Dodge local 3 by George A. Addes, acting president of the union. Terming the strike "unauthorized and a violation of the union's constitution and no-strike pledge," Addes said failure to comply would necessitate "immediate action by the international executive board."

The strike, which virtually halted production of parts for B-29 bomber engines and other weapons, began in the bomber engine parts department. It spread until fewer than 2,000 workers remained.

STOCK MARKET ENDS LOWER AS TAX DOUBT RESTRAINS TRADERS

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—The stock market closed irregularly lower today, altho assorted issues continued to exhibit quiet strength. Transfers were 1,320,000 shares, compared with 1,720,000 Wednesday.

Customers generally returned from their holiday apprehensive over a possible tax crackdown on war time speculation. Some stood aside expecting a further reaction after the lengthy rise to seven and a half year peaks.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.2 at 61.6. Of 951 issues appearing, 432 were down, 311 up, and 208 unchanged.

RAIL BONDS SOAR.

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Advances ranged from fractions to as much as 5 points for numerous rail bonds today. The industrial group also had some strong spots and other divisions of the market held to a comparatively narrow range.

W. A. Johnston New President of I. C. System

Wayne A. Johnston yesterday was elected president of the Illinois Central railroad at a meeting of the board of directors, becoming the nation's youngest president of a major railroad. He is 47 and is a resident of Flossmoor.

Johnston was advanced to the key post on the 4,800 mile Illinois Central system from the position of general manager and head of the operating department. He succeeds John L. Beven, who died suddenly on Jan. 3.

Started as an Accountant.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, the new president went to work for the Illinois Central in 1919 as an accountant in the office of the division superintendent at Champaign. A series of promotions in the operating department advanced him to chief clerk to the general superintendent. In 1934 he went into the traffic department in which he held several positions.

In 1938 Johnston returned to the operating department as assistant to the general manager. From October, 1940, to September, 1941, he was acting superintendent of the Kentucky division at Paducah. He returned to Chicago as assistant to the vice president in the operating department. In March, 1942, he became assistant general manager and in April, 1944, assistant vice president. He became general manager last September.

Member of Boy Scout Council.

Johnston has long been interested in the Boy Scouts, holding the title "Silver Beaver" for his services in that organization. He is a member of the national executive board of the Boy Scouts of America; of the advisory council of the University of Illinois; of the national executive board of the Y. M. C. A., and of the board of trustees of the Illinois conference of the Congregational church.

Johnston was born in Urbana, Ill., Oct. 19, 1897. He is reputed to be acquainted with nearly every foot of the Illinois Central system and is known thruout the road's territory.

GRAIN FUTURES SLUMP ON BREAK IN PRICE OF RYE

Possibilities of large imports of rye from Argentina as a result of its order permitting ships flying the Argentine flag to renew trade with North American ports led to heavy liquidation by holders of rye futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Prices broke 3 to 3½ cents a bushel before support developed and closing trades were 1¾ to 2¼ cents lower.

Mills bought May wheat early, reported in connection with sales of flour to government agencies, but the market along with corn and other grains broke later in sympathy with rye. Wheat closed ½ to 1¼ lower, the former on May. Corn was off ⅝ to ¾, oats lost ¾ to 1¼, and barley closed ¼ to 1½ lower.

Altho Argentina harvested only 10 million bushels of rye last year, about half the 1943 crop, experts said a sizable amount is available for export if ocean tonnage can be obtained.

CATTLE ADVANCE BRISKLY ON DROP IN MARKETINGS

An abrupt decline in market receipts of cattle the last two days caused a buying rush in the Chicago stock yards yesterday that lifted some classes of steers 25 to 50 cents above prices paid earlier in the week. Only 5,400 head arrived in the two days, the smallest Thursday and Friday volume since June.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX—9.

Almost all members of the military and naval forces in the lower pay brackets, if they do not have more than $500 of income from civilian sources, are exempt from federal income tax as a result of a special provision of the law. Under this provision the first $1,500 of their compensation for active service is entirely free of tax and is excluded from gross income to be reported for tax purposes. Besides this exclusion, service men are allowed the same personal exemptions and the same kinds of deductions as are granted individual taxpayers generally.

In addition to the army, navy, marine corps, and coast guard, the military forces as defined in the revenue code include women in the nurse corps, WAC, WAVES, SPARS, and, it is assumed, in the women's reserve of the marine corps. They also include commissioned officers of the coast and geodetic survey and of the public health service. Members absent on leave or because of sickness or wounds, or held by the enemy, are regarded as in active service.

The $1,500 exemption applies as a deduction from the base pay and any additional compensation for longevity of service and foreign or special services. Any monthly family allowance paid by the government is not taxable income either to the service man or to his dependents who receive it. That part of the family allowance charged to the enlisted man's pay is taxable to him to the extent that it exceeds his exemption.

The following items also are classified as taxable income: reenlistment bonus, allowance for family transportation, and travel pay to a discharged member, but travel allowances to a service man on an assignment are not taxable.

Pay received from an employer or former employer, while the employe is away on military service, is taxable income to the service man, but credit, of course, can be taken for all taxes withheld by the employer. Similarly a bonus paid to an employe whose employment is terminated on entering military service is treated as compensation for past service. All civilian taxable income must be reported as usual.

Items which do not represent taxable income, and which can be excluded regardless of the $1,500 exemption, include cash received in lieu of subsistence and quarters, gratuity pay, uniform allowances, and mustering out pay. Certain benefits and allowances payable under the "G. I. bill of rights" also are exempt.

In addition to the deductions which may be made by civilians, service men are allowed certain expense deductions such as the cost of Sam Browne belts, epaulets, and gold braid. Officers, however, may not deduct the cost of uniforms or alterations. The expense of visiting home is not deductible.

If a member dies while in active service, liability for any unpaid tax is canceled, and any tax paid for the year in which his death occurs will be refunded.

The due date of any income tax return or tax instalment is postponed in the case of service men on sea duty or outside continental United States on that date. They may wait until the 15th day of the fourth month after they come back to this country. It is provided, however, that the maximum postponement may not extend beyond the 15th day of the third month after the end of the war, as proclaimed by the President.

SWPC Officer Quits, Alleges 'Inefficiency'

BY ROBERT YOUNG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—S. Abbot Smith, Chelsea, Mass., wallpaper manufacturer, who resigned recently as a director of the smaller war plants corporation, today said he quit because its present administration is "beset with confusion and inefficiency." He had been with the SWPC since July, 1942, as one of its original directors.

Smith disclosed that in his letter of resignation to Chairman Krug of the war production board on Feb. 1 he said that his personal efforts in the interest of small business were being wasted. Smith told Krug that altho SWPC directors are vested with management of the agency and he has felt responsible for policies and operations, this is "obviously" not the interpretation of Maury Maverick, SWPC chairman and former Democratic congressman.

Criticizes Maverick's Tours.

"I believe that at the present time my interest and energies can be utilized elsewhere more advantageously for the war effort and small business," Smith wrote.

In the separate statement explaining his resignation, Smith criticized Maverick for spending several weeks in England and Alaska last summer and fall at a time when congress had assigned the SWPC additional duties and responsibilities under the surplus property, contract settlement, and war mobilization and reconversion acts.

Asserting that the SWPC is necessary to represent—and protect small business and that small business is essential to the nation, Smith urged strengthening of the agency. At present, however, he declared, "Too much attention is being paid to getting headlines—too little to doing the job."

Lacks a Fixed Policy.

Smith asserted the SWPC still has not made an official statement of policy regarding the handling of surpluses, despite the fact the disposal of government surpluses "will make a tremendous difference to the small businesses of the country for years to come." SWPC field offices have been obliged to "stumble along" with little direction from Washington as to how to handle the surplus problem, he said.

Smith charged the small business knowledge and experience of SWPC directors are not being utilized properly, that lines of authority are not drawn clearly, and that the different divisions of the agency are not kept informed of what the others are doing. Under Maverick's administration, little attention is paid to the opinions of the directors, Smith said.

WPB AUTHORIZES 7,500 DISPLAY CASES PRODUCED

The first spot authorization for production of civilian goods since the WPB canceled all civilian production orders at the time of the German break-thru in Belgium was announced yesterday by John Nuveen Jr., WPB Chicago regional director.

The new authorization permits the production of 7,500 refrigerator display cases—including meat counters—between now and Oct. 1 by 33 manufacturers. Chicago area companies participating include I. Paul Daemicke company, 2102 N. Clybourn av.; McCray Refrigerator company, Kendallville, Ind., and Percival company, Boone, Ia.

Nuveen said that manufacture of the cases is contingent on the work not interfering with war production and on the availability of materials and man power. Each company will have to apply to its local area production urgency committee for authority to go ahead.

WPB Denies Steel for Rail Passenger Car Program

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—The WPB today rejected a request for materials to make 1,000 railroad passenger cars this year in a program sponsored by the office of defense transportation. WPB allotted 252 tons of steel for 15 baggage and mail cars.

SEC APPROVES UTILITY PLANS OF DISSOLUTION

Depend on Parent's Finance Program.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 23 (AP).—The securities and exchange commision today approved two plans preparatory to the dissolution of Standard Power and Light corporation in compliance with a corporate simplification order under the holding company act.

Both plans are contingent on the approval in Wilmington, Del., District court of the amended reorganization plan for Standard Gas and Electric company, a Standard Power subsidiary.

The first plan approved, a compromise filed jointly by parent and subsidiary, calls for conversion of all Standard Power assets into new common stock issued by the subsidiary. The second, filed by Standard Power, calls for distribution of the new stock to Power's claimants and for its dissolution.

Gets 11 Pct. of New Stock.

1. Transfer to Gas by Standard Power of its holding of 1.6 per cent of Gas 6 per cent notes and debentures, 11 per cent of its $7 prior preference stock, 53.6 per cent of its common stock, and miscellaneous assets.

2. Issuance to Power of 567,581 shares, or 11 per cent, of new Gas common stock.

3. Dismissal of the Hastings and Homewood suits. Daniel O. Hastings has agreed to dismiss his suit against Standard Power with approval of the District court which appointed him special trustee for Standard Gas. The Homewood suit against Standard Power and others would be withdrawn under a compromise with H. M. Byllesby & Co., Chicago, dealt with under the dissolution plan.

Terms for Dissolution.

Under the dissolution plan, the 567,581 shares of new common stock in Gas would be distributed as follows:

1. Each preferred share of Power would receive 14½ shares of the new common, plus all unpaid dividends, representing 86.99 per cent of total shares distributed by Power.

2. Each 100 shares of Power common would receive 4.8 shares, representing 11.17 per cent of the total.

3. Each 100 shares of Power class B common would receive 4.8 shares, representing 0.93 per cent.

4. The remaining 0.91 per cent of new common received by Power [5,198 shares] to be transferred to Byllesby in settlement of the Homewood litigation.

FRENCH PAY U. S., BRITISH PROFITS ON NAZI TRADE

PARIS, Feb. 23 (AP).—Thousands of American and British businessmen will receive from the French government more than 30 million dollars of profits from German operation of their Paris companies during the occupation.

Checks totalling 8 million already are en route to some of the 38,000 individuals and companies, a finance ministry official said. Sums range from $520,000 for the du Pont company, Wilmington, Del., to $1.14 for the Thomas Crowell company of New York.

GEN. ELECTRIC DIVIDEND RATE RAISED 5 CENTS

General Electric company yesterday increased the quarterly common dividend rate 5 cents to 40 cents, payable April 25. Charles E. Wilson, president, said 1944 earnings exceeded the $1.60 annual dividend.

Gulf Oil corporation declared a special 25 cent common dividend plus the quarterly 25 cent payment, both payable April 2. Hamilton Watch ordered 15 cents paid on the common.

Income Tax Payers Receive Credit on Some Sales Levies

Retail sales taxes, including the Illinois 2 per cent occupational sales tax, if separately stated and passed on by the merchant, are deductible by consumers in preparing their federal income tax returns if they list their personal deductions. Such taxes, however, cannot be deducted if the taxpayer determines his tax from the optional tax table or makes his return on form W-2. In the latter cases, the income tax automatically allows for all permissible personal deductions.

If actual records of sales taxes paid have not been kept, the taxpayer may deduct a reasonable estimate, varying with the amount of his income and his family status. The following table, which has received unofficial approval of internal revenue collectors in Illinois, may be used as a guide to average amounts which can be deducted:

$1,000	$ 8	$ 8	$ 8	$ 8
1,500	12	17	22	25
2,000	16	23	30	33
2,500	20	26	34	38
3,000	24	32	41	46
3,500	28	37	48	54
4,000	37	43	55	61
4,500	42	48	62	69
5,000	51	54	69	77
5,500	56	59	76	84
6,000	61	64	83	92

State gasoline taxes—but not federal—also may be deducted as a personal tax. Based on an assumed use of 108 gallons during the year, the collector's office has approved a deduction of $3.24 tax by holders of A coupons. Holders of B and C coupons may deduct larger amounts paid.

Senators Vote for Mexican Water Treaty

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 (AP).—The proposed United States-Mexico water treaty was approved, 18 to 4, today by the senate foreign relations committee and was started on its way to the senate floor and the prospect of a red hot fight.

Committee Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] said the pact probably would be brought up for action within two or three weeks. A two-thirds vote of the senate is necessary for ratification.

Shortly after it was approved by the committee California opponents met and named a strategy committee, headed by Rep. Sheppard [D., Cal.], to direct the floor battle. They contend the treaty would allocate to Mexico water from the Colorado river for which California already has contracted for future development.

May Attack Constitutionality.

One job of the committee will be to consider the introduction of a resolution calling for a house judiciary committee investigation of the constitutionality of the treaty.

A similar resolution was introduced in the last congress by Rep. Hinshaw [R., Cal.] on the ground that the treaty would allow the disposal of government property that can be disposed of only by action of both branches of congress.

Californians carried the brunt of the fight against the treaty during the month long hearings of the foreign relations committee, but Sen. McCarran [D., Nev.] let it be known today that they will not be alone when the floor skirmishing begins.

In a statement highly critical of the committee's action, McCarran said it presumably had "been taken so precipitately in order that American delegates to the inter-American conference in Mexico City may at that conference make a gift of the Colorado river to the Mexican people."

Leaves for Mexico Today.

Connally had told the foreign relations committee he would like to take with him to the Mexico City conference word that it had approved the treaty. He will leave for Mexico City tomorrow.

Committee members voting against approval of the treaty were:

Johnson [R., Cal.], Murray [D., Mont.], Pepper [D., Fla.], and Shipstead [R., Minn.].

Approving it were:

Connally [D., Tex.], George [D., Ga.], Wagner [D., N. Y.], Thomas [D., Utah], Green [D., R. I.], Barkley [D., Ky.], Guffey [D., Pa.], Glass [D., Va.], Tunnell [D., Del.], Hatch [D., N. M.], Hill [D., Ala.], Lucas [D., Ill.], Capper [R., Kas.], La Follette [Pro., Wis.], Vandenberg [R., Mich.], White [R., Me.], Austin [R., Vt.], Wiley [R., Wis.].

The treaty would distribute waters of the Colorado and Rio Grande between the United States and Mexico and would authorize the two governments to work out a plan for the development of the Tijuana river in California.

Ratification was urged by the state department.

MILWAUKEE RAIL PLAN APPROVED BY JUDGE IGOE

Federal District Judge Igoe formally confirmed the plan for the reorganization of the Milwaukee Road yesterday and announced he would appoint within 30 days a committee to put the plan into effect. He also authorized construction of 1,500 box cars to cost 4 million dollars.

Already approved by the interstate commerce commission and nine classes of creditors, the plan was termed by Judge Igoe as "fair and equitable to all concerned."

A hearing March 12 on the petition of the university group of bondholders urging immediate repayment of a $10,400,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation loan will not interfere with operation of the plan, it was said.

People and Events

Sampson Electric company, 3201 S. Michigan av., has been appointed distributor of the line of AM and FM radio and radio-phonograph combinations planned by Bendix radio division of Bendix Aviation corporation, Leonard C. Truesdell, general sales manager for home radio, said yesterday.

S. A. Kostakos, secretary of Honey Hill Creamery company, has been elected president of the Associated Milk Dealers. William Hunding of Hunding Dairy and Eric Hedlin of Hedlin's Dairy were elected vice presidents, John Duzansky of Pure Farm Dairy, secretary, and John Laue of Union Dairy, treasurer.

Continental Can company will accord recognition to employes with the company for five years or more, announced L. E. Hall, manager of operations of the central division, by awarding them silver pins. Distribution will be made on or before March 31.

Charles H. Cuny has been appointed credit manager of United Air Lines, said N. B. Haley, treasurer. Cuny is a graduate of Loyola university and had been assistant credit manager of the Caterpillar Tractor company, Peoria.

Atty. David J. A. Hayes will address the Chicago Association of Life Underwriters this morning in the La Salle hotel.

D. K. Brown, president of the Neenah [Wis.] Paper company, was elected president of the American Paper and Pulp association.

2 Plane Fuel Units Planned Near Chicago

Two big plants for the manufacture of 100 octane aviation gasoline will be built in the Chicago area, one by the Standard Oil company [Indiana] at Whiting and the other by the Texas company at Lockport. The petroleum administration for war approved construction of the plants and of three others elsewhere and the war production board has granted the necessary priorities for four of them.

The new Whiting and Lockport facilities will consist of catalytic cracking plants. Standard also will build at Sugar Creek, Mo., near Kansas City, a catalytic cracking plant and other facilities.

Michigan Plant Approved.

Standard officials said the Whiting plant will be in operation within a year and Texas engineers expect the Lockport operation to be ready in about eight months.

Other plants to make 100 octane fuel under the WPA program include one for Leonard Refineries, Inc., at Alma, Mich., and one for the Shell Oil company at Houston, Tex. The five new plants are to be financed by private capital at a cost of about 78 million dollars. The Houston plant will be approved by the WPB if man power is available.

More than 60 Plants Producing.

The PAW reported that more than 60 plants are producing 100 octane gasoline and at least 150 more are contributing blending agents. In 1941, 100 octane production totaled only 46,000 barrels a day. By last October it exceeded 500,000 barrels a day.

Proposals for additional plants are under consideration. The expansion is being undertaken as a result of long range military estimates by the joint chiefs of staffs.

FIELD'S TRADE RISES, BUT TAX TRIMS PROFITS

Hughston M. McBain.

Marshall Field & Co. earnings before taxes and interest rose substantially in 1944 despite a dwindling supply of civilian goods and more acute man power shortages toward the end of the year, Hughston M. McBain, president, told stockholders yesterday in his annual report. Net profit was slightly below that in 1943, however, because of "the heavier impact of federal income taxes."

The number of transactions handled in the company's retail stores was the largest on record, he said, and the increased business was serviced with no increase in the average number of employes.

Inventory Provision Cut.

Net sales and rental income amounted to $152,167,229, compared with $138,632,315 in 1943. Earnings before interest and taxes climbed to $20,711,988 from $17,873,694.

Net profit was $5,009,665, equal to $2.11 a share, before setting aside 1 million dollars for possible future decline in market value of inventories and for other contingencies. Earnings in 1943 were $5,216,227, or $2.22 a share, before a similar 2 million dollar provision.

Every major operating unit of the company—retail stores and manufacturing and real estate divisions—had net sales at new peaks, said McBain. Each of the retail stores had increased earnings before interest and taxes. Gross profit margins were little changed, but expenses increased, principally as the result of higher wage levels.

The manufacturing division, 10 textile mills, had slightly lower earnings before interest and taxes for the second consecutive year. Price ceilings on manufactured products "prevented the recapture of any portion of increased wage rates and higher material costs," McBain said. Occupancy of the Merchandise Mart, which with the Annex office building on Wabash av. comprises the real estate division, remained at 98 per cent.

Debt Is Reduced.

A reduction of $1,800,000 in funded debt in 1944 left a year-end balance of $21,300,000, compared with 29 million dollars on Dec. 31, 1939. Capital stock, surplus, and reserve accounts totaled $62,300,000, an increase of approximately 10 million dollars in the five years, said McBain.

Inventories at the end of the year were $15,477,685, a decline of approximately 1 million dollars from a year earlier and 3 million in two years. McBain said difficulties in obtaining certain kinds of merchandise and a conservative buying policy accounted for the decline.

The company expects no serious reconversion problems after the war, said McBain. Altho the economic effect of the war's end is uncertain, plans of all the company's divisions have been carefully drawn and are ready to be executed.

General Finance Has Rise.

General Finance corporation's net profit in the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 swelled to $1,144,410, or $1.18 a share, from $653,991, or 62 cents a share, in the preceding year. Results of Wacker corporation, nonconsolidated subsidiary, and its two manufacturing divisions were excluded.

Owen L. Coon, chairman, said automobile financing shrank to less than one-fifth the 55 million dollar 1941 volume, but this business was more than replaced by a department established two years ago to lend on accounts receivable, consumer goods, and machinery.

A. C. Moore, president of Chicago Railway Equipment company, reported net income was $407,350 last year after setting aside $100,000 for reconversion of facilities, against 1943 profit of $299,892. Shipments increased 58 per cent. Calling attention to the large amount of obsolete and deteriorated railroad equipment, Moore said the company should share in large volume construction of new freight cars if business activity remained at a high level.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 [AP].—Small lots of print cloths and sheetings for delivery in the first quarter were sold in the cotton textile market today. Most mill offerings continue to be absorbed by government agencies and other holders of high priorities.

The wool goods market was quiet due to the lack of offerings. Rayon goods moved in routine fashion to the converting trade against previously placed [illegible]

Pictures of Costly Landing on Iwo, Jap Stronghold in Pacific—Allies Drive Deep Into Germany from West

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

[Acme Telephoto.]

Wounded marine is carried back to Iwo Island beach past group of fellow fighters who have taken refuge in huge shell hole. The first three days of battle cost more than 5,000 casualties, it has been announced. (Story on page 1.)
